Chap. 12. A bill "for altering the place of holding the courts of law for the county of Suffolk" was brought down to the House, October 30, 1775, had its first reading, November 2d, and was specially assigned for a second reading, but seems to have reached no further stage during that session. At the next session (January 27), a bill for the same purpose was read a first time, in the House, and read a second and third time, on the second and third of February, and passed to be enacted, February 6th. It came back from the Council, with a proposed amendment, substituting "Braintree" for "Dedham," in the fourth section, but the House voted to adhere to their vote in favor of the latter as the shire town. See note to 1776–77, chap. 19, post.

Chap. 13. The following letter was communicated to the House, December 9th, by the speaker: —

"To The Hon^ble. The Council and the Hon^ble The House of Representatives of the Colony of the Massachusetts Bay in General Court assembled

* Printed resolves, chapter CVII.

† Sic: down?

Samuel Freeman, in behalf of the Inhabitants of the Town of Falmouth, in the Colony aforesaid

Humbly shews. That in consequence of the late unparalled Barbarity of the British Forces, in wantonly burning and destroying the greatest part of the Buildings in said Town, The Inhabitants thereof, who before were suffering by the Loss of the only Trade with which they were chiefly supported, are now reduced to extreme Indigence and Distress: The Poorer sort, more especially, are now unable to supply themselves with Food or Cloathing, or to provide comfortable Habitations for them against the approaching Winter Their hospitable Friends, in the adjacent Country Towns, have for the present, shelter'd them in their small unfinish'd Houses, and in the depth of great Distress, have administred to them some Relief — But the People of these Towns are very poor, and scarcely able to support themselves, at such a Time as this — In this deplorable situation then, They humbly address themselves to the tender feelings of your Honours, for Relief; not doubting but your Honours will commiserate their unhappy situation, & grant them such Relief, as in your Wisdom may be thought sufficient, to alleviate their distress — And your Petitioner in their behalf as in Duty bound — will ever pray.

SAM. FREEMAN." — Mass. Archives, vol. 180, p. 230.

This letter was immediately read, and committed to Mr. Sullivan, Dr. Rice and Col. Sayer, and, on the first of January, the bill of this chapter was read a first time. The next day it was read again, and ordered to lie on the table, and a new committee was appointed to bring in a resolve for the same purpose. The bill, however, came up again, January 5th, when it was "read a second time," and, on the 6th, it was read a third time, passed to be engrossed, and sent to the Council. From the Council it came down, on the 7th, with the following vote thereon: —

"In Council, January 6. 1776. Read a first Time. February 7th. Read a second Time and passed to be engrossed, with the Amendments at A. B. and C. viz. at A. insert 'by Vessels belonging to the British Navy.' At B. dele from B. to C. and insert in Place thereof 'shall be subject to the same Penalties, as if they had been convicted of stealing the same. Sent down for Concurrence." — House Journal, p. 255.

It was then read, as amended, and the House concurred therein.

On the 9th, it was passed to be enacted, by the House, and sent back to the Council, whereupon it was returned, the same day, with the following proposed amendment, which was concurred in by the House; viz., —

"To dele 'with an intent to preserve' and insert 'under pretence of preserving' and to dele 'intent' and insert 'end.'" — Ibid., p. 265.

Chap. 14. On the 12th of December, Major Fuller, Mr. Rawson and Mr. Caldwell were appointed a committee to consider what laws, that "are near expiring, it will be expedient to revive," and, January 5th, this committee laid upon the table a bill for this purpose, which was specially assigned for its first reading, January 6th, but was not so read until the 9th, when it was ordered to be read again the following day — the chairman of the committee having been instructed to bring in, at that time, the temporary laws which were to be continued. On the 16th, it was read a second time, agreeably to an assignment made the day previous. It was read a third time, and passed to be engrossed, January 17th, and, on the 8th of February, was passed to be enacted.

Chap. 15. After the passage of the act of the second session (chapter 7), with the same title as this chapter, the Continental Congress passed the following resolves: —

"3d. That no master or commander of any vessel shall be entitled to cruize for, or make prize of any vessel or cargo before he shall have obtained a commission from the Congress, or from such person or persons as shall be for that purpose appointed in some one of the United Colonies.

4th. That it be and is hereby recommended to the several legislatures in the United Colonies, as soon as possible, to erect courts of justice, or give jurisdiction to the courts now in being for the purpose of determining concerning the captures to be made as aforesaid, and to provide that all trials in such case be had by a jury under such qualifications, as to the respective legislatures shall seem expedient.

5th. That all prosecutions shall be commenced in the court of that colony in which the captures shall be made, but if no such court be at that time erected in the said colony, or if the capture be made on open sea, then the prosecution shall be in the court of such colony as the captor may find most convenient, provided that nothing contained in this resolution shall be construed so as to enable the captor to remove his prize from any colony competent to determine concerning the seizure, after he shall have carried the vessel so seized within any harbour of the same.

6th. That in all cases an appeal shall be allowed to the Congress, or such person or persons as they shall appoint for the trial of appeals, provided the appeal be demanded within five days after definitive sentence, and such appeal be lodged with the secretary of Congress within forty days afterwards, and provided the party appealing shall give security to prosecute the said appeal to effect, and in case of the death of the secretary during the recess of Congress, then the said appeal to be lodged in Congress within twenty days after the meeting thereof.

7th. That when any vessel or vessels shall be fitted out at the expense of any private person or persons, then the captures made shall be to the use of the owner or owners of the said vessel or vessels." — Journals of Congress: Nov. 25, 1775.

"Resolved, That in cases of re-captures, the re-captors have and retain in lieu of salvage, one eighth part of the true value of the vessel and cargo, or either of them, if the same hath or have been in possession of the enemy twenty-four hours; one fifth part if more than twenty-four hours, and less than forty-eight hours; one third part, if more than forty-eight and less than ninety-six hours; and one half if more than ninety-six hours, unless the vessel shall, after the capture, have been legally condemned as a prize by some court of admiralty, in which case the re-captors to have the whole: in all which cases, the share detained or prize to be divided between the owners of the ship making the re-capture, the colony or the continent as the case may be, and the captors, agreeable to a former resolution." — Ibid., Dec. 5, 1775.

"Resolved, That all transport vessels in the same service, having on board any troops, arms, ammunition, cloathing, provisions, military or naval stores of what kind soever, and all vessels to whomsoever belonging, that shall be employed in carrying provisions or other necessaries to the British army or armies, or navy, that now are or shall hereafter be within any of the United Colonies, or any goods, wares, or merchandizes, for the use of such fleet and army, shall be liable to seizure, and, with their cargoes, shall be confiscated." — Ibid., Dec. 19, 1775.

"Resolved, That the several vessels heretofore taken and carried into Massachusetts-Bay, by the armed vessels in the service of the United Colonies, be proceeded against by the rules of the law of nations, and libelled in the courts of admiralty erected in said colony." — Ibid., Dec. 20, 1775.

To bring the legislation of Massachusetts, respecting captures and the distribution of prize-money, into harmony with these resolves of the confederated colonies, it became necessary to substitute for chapter 7, an act providing for appeals to the general congress, and adopting the rule prescribed by the latter for the distribution of prize-money in the case of recaptures. It was also thought proper to admit to the jurisdiction of the admiralty courts, under the colony law, all vessels fitted out by the Continental Congress, and such others as should make captures within twenty leagues of the shore, without requiring the owners or masters to give bond or to act under a commission from the colonial Council. Among other desirable changes, also, was the requiring the judge to direct his precepts to the sheriff of the county into which the prize was brought for condemnation, instead of to any sheriff within his jurisdiction, and also a provision exempting the captors from liability to suits for damages, in all cases in which the judge should certify that there was probable cause for the seizure.

A committee was accordingly appointed, January 26, 1776, to examine the former act and also the congressional resolves and "report what is proper to be done thereon." On the 29th, this committee reported "as their Opinion, 1*st*. That Direction be given to review the Act for fixing out armed Vessels, and conform it to the Resolves of Congress, except in the Instance of taking Prizes without Commissions; and that a Representation of the Inconveniences attending that Resolve be made to Congress, praying that it may be re-considered, and altered." — House Journal, p. 219.

On the seventh of February, a bill for this purpose was brought down from the Council, which was read a first and second time the following day, and, after being committed, was assigned, for its third reading, to the 9th, when it was read a third time, and passed to be engrossed, with amendments, and sent up to the Council, for concurrence. On the 10th, it was sent down to the House, with the following vote thereon, which was read and concurred in: —

"In Council, February 9, 1776. Read and concurr'd with the Amendments at A. B. 2, 4, 3, and X. and non concurr'd, with the Amendment at A. 2. and Ordered, That this Bill be recommitted, and that Walter Spooner, Esq; be of the said Committee, in the Room of William Searer, Esq; absent. Sent down for Concurrence." — Ibid., p. 270.

The committee reported to the Council, February 12th, that an amendment proposed by the House be not inserted; which report the Council accepted, and sent the bill, and a report of their action, to the House, and the latter, thereupon, voted to concur with the Council, and, on the 14th, the bill was passed to be enacted.

Chap. 16. The following resolve having been passed by the Continental Congress: —

"That it be recommended to the several assemblies, conventions, or councils, or committees of safety of the respective colonies, to ascertain, by the most impartial and effectual means in their power, the number of inhabitants in each respective colony, taking care that the lists be authenticated by the oaths of the several persons who shall be intrusted with this service; and that the said assemblies, conventions, councils, or committees of safety, do respectively lay before this Congress, a return of the number of inhabitants of their respective colonies, as soon as the same shall be procured." — Journals of Congress: Dec. 26, 1775.

— a committee was appointed, January 16th, to consider it, and they reported, January 29, that a bill for this purpose be brought in. This report was accepted, the next day, by the Council, and a joint committee was immediately appointed to prepare a bill, which was accordingly done, and the bill was brought in, and read a first and second time, on the 13th of February, and then recommitted. The bill was reported in a new draught, on the 14th, and then had its first and second reading. The next day, it was read a third time, in the House, passed to be engrossed, and sent up for concurrence. The Council proposed some amendments, which were all agreed to by the House except one for inserting the Christian names of the committee. The House proposed another amendment inserting, in the first section, the words, "at their annual meeting in March." From the bill as finally enacted, on the same day, it appears that all the proposed amendments were adopted, although there is no record of the vote.

While the bill was pending, the committee that reported it — Col. Orne having been previously substituted for Capt. Stone — were ordered to prepare a blank form of lists for the census-takers, and, on the 16th, they reported as follows: —

"A List, or Return on Oath, of the Names of the Housholders in the Town of Chap. 17. The act repealed by this chapter, although containing provisions for enforcing some of the resolves of the Continental Congress, of Nov. 25, 1775, did not provide for the apportionment of prizes in cases of captures by vessels fitted out by the general congress, or by the several colonies, nor did it discriminate, in this respect, between the capture of private vessels of the enemy and vessels of war, according to a rule prescribed by one of the resolves at Philadelphia, and which is given in full in the note to chapter 19, post. The act was also loose and indefinite in so many particulars, some of which are specified in the note referred to, that, at the beginning of the fourth session, the subject of revising it was brought up in the House, and Messrs. Sullivan and Orne, of the House, and Thomas Cushing, of the Council, were appointed a committee for that purpose. On the 18th, the bill of this act, which had been reported by the committee, was read a third time and passed to be engrossed, and the next day it was passed to be enacted, and consented to by sixteen of the Council.

Chap. 18. The origin of this act is shown in the following entries: —

"Jan. 31, 1776. In Council — Whereas the General Court have received such information as that there is reason to apprehend that a confederacy is forming by some evil minded person in this and other Colonies which may injure the credit of the Continental Bills and the Bills of this and the other Colonies. —

Therefore Resolved that it be recommended to the Committee of Inspection and Correspondence in all the towns in this Colony to make strick enquiry in their several towns and if they shall find any person within the same endeavouring by any way whatever to prevent the Credit of the Continental Bills, or the Bills of this or any other of the united Colonies of America, or to alter or counterfiet the same, that they cause such person to be arrested and secured, and give information thereof to this Court, in order that such person may be proceeded with according to the just demerits of such high crimes and misdemeaners, and that this resolve be published in all the news Papers in this Colony. — In the House of Representatives Read & Concurred Consented to by fifteen of the Council." — Council Records, vol. XXXI., p. 519.

"Feb. 1, 1776. On a Motion, Ordered, That Col. Thompson, Col. Doane and Col: Smith, with such as the Hon. Board shall join, be a Committee to see if there is sufficient Provision made for making the Continental Bills, and the Bills of Credit of this Colony a tender in all Payments, and to prevent the Counterfeiting and Depreciation of the same, and if there is not, to bring in a Bill for that Purpose. Sent up for Concurrence." — House Journal, p. 231.

In the Council the above order was tabled, and the third session closed without further action on the subject; but, at the opening of the fourth session, on information given to the House, by Jonathan Brown of Watertown, that one Abiel Brintnall had been arrested for counterfeiting the bills of credit of this colony, it was moved and voted that the said Brintnall "be proceeded with as in case of forgery," and a committee was thereupon appointed "to bring in a bill to prevent the forging the bills of credit of this and the other colonies," which bill was accordingly reported, and read a first time, on the twenty-third of March, and the twenty-fifth was assigned for its second reading. On the day last named, a representation of the committee of correspondence, inspection and safety, of the town of Mendon, was brought down from the Council, and referred to a joint committee. This representation charged that Joseph Butler and Asa Butler, of Stafford, in the colony of Connecticut, who had been arrested by the committee, and were in custody, for altering certain bills of credit of this colony, had, together with the altered bills, been sent to the Assembly, to be dealt with as, in the justice and wisdom of that body, "may seem meet." This representation was referred to a joint committee which was ordered to take the same "into consideration and report thereon."

It appears from a letter written by Joseph Dorr, the magistrate at Mendon, to Jedediah Foster, who brought the representation down to the House, that he supposed the above resolve of January 31st, was intended to supersede regular prosecution, in the courts of law, for the offences therein described. The bill, which had been recommitted for amendment, was read three times, and passed to be engrossed, on the twenty-ninth. On the third of April, it was brought down from the Council, with certain amendments, which were concurred in by the House, and on the 12th, the House proposed to amend the heading of the bill by striking out the words, "In the sixteenth year of the reign of George the Third, King, &c.," and substituting therefor the words, "In the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventy-six;" and the bill thus amended was passed to be enacted — it being the first act passed without the royal style.

The nature of the amendments which were offered to the original bill is shown in the supplementary note to this chapter on p. 544, post.

Brintnall, who was arrested before the evacuation of Boston, had been committed to Cambridge jail, whence, on the 20th of August, he wrote to the Council a most obsequious and contrite letter, asking to be set at liberty as soon as possible, or, if he must be tried before the Superior Court, that the trial might be at Braintree, where the Court was to sit on the last Tuesday of that month. On the second of September, the Council passed a resolve authorizing the justices of the Superior Court to bring the prisoner before them, by habeas corpus, at the next session in Suffolk County, and, if he should not have had the small-pox, to remand him to Cambridge jail, "if it shall appear to them a further confinement be needfull." Accordingly, he was arraigned at a court held at Braintree, on the second Tuesday of September, by adjournment, pleaded guilty and was sentenced as follows: —

"It is therefore Considered and Ordered by the Court here that the said Abiel Brintnal be set in the Pillory for the space of one hour, that he become bound by Recognizance in the Sum of twenty pounds with two Sureties in £10 each for his keeping the peace and being of the good behavior towards all the good people of this government until the next term, and that he pay costs of prosecution, standing committed (to the governments gaol in Cambridge in the County of Middlesex) until this Sentence be performed." — Mass. Archives, vol. 218, p. 406.

In the case of the Butlers, who were minors, and soldiers in the Continental Army, there were extenuating circumstances, which were mentioned in their favor both by the magistrate who ordered their arrest and by the committee of the House to which their case was referred. On the 29th of March, an order was passed by the House, and concurred in, the next day, by the Council, directing Major Fuller to take sureties for their appearance at the Superior Court to be held at Worcester in September following; but no record of an indictment against them has been found.

The reward offered in section two of this chapter, was extended to those who were instrumental in securing Brintnall's arrest and conviction, as appears by the following petition and resolve: —

"State of Massachusetts Bay 1777.

To the Honorable Council and Honorable House House* of Representatives in Gen: Court assembled —:

Humbly shew, Nathaniel Farrington, John Ellis, and Timothy Bullard, that the said Nathaniel Farrington on or about the 21st Day of February 1776, for a Valuable Consideration received of one Abiel Brintnal of Mansfield in the County of Bristol, one Bill or Note for the sum of £9 — dated the 25th day of May A D 1775. purporting to be signed by Henry Gardner Esqr Receiver General of this State, at the same time received of the same Person another Bill or Note for the sum of Six Pounds, also purporting to be signed by the said Henry Gardner Esqr. both which Bills or Notes were Forged or Counterfeited; and thereof the said Abiel Brintnal was afterwards Convicted before the Superiour Court of Judicature &c. held at Braintree in Septemr. last, all which will appear to your Honors by the Papers herewith exhibited. — Your Petitioners humbly beg leave to mention, that from a sincere Regard to the Publick good, and from an honest Zeal to support the Credit of our Currency they pursued the said Brintnal to the Town of Mansfield aforesaid, and there apprehended him, and with great fatigue, labour and expence, conveyed him at Watertown for Advice of the Council, &, thereupon the said Brintnal was committed to Cambridge Goal for trial; and afterwards was convicted and sentenced in manner as aforementioned, — one of Your Petitioners has been defrauded of £15 - - lawf money; besides the loss of their time, trouble and Expence — they therefore pray your Honors to take this matter into your wise Consideration and grant them the sum allowed by a late act of the State, to any Person that shall inform & prosecute to final Judgment any Person or Persons who shall Forge or Counterfeit the Bills of publick Credit of this State — or otherwise relieve your Petitioners as your Honors shall think best. —

As in duty Bound will ever pray

NATHANIEL FARRINGTON
JOHN ELLIS
TIMOTHY BULLARD." — Ibid., p. 404.

"Apr. 30, 1778. In the House of Representatives. †On the Petition of Nathanael Farrington and Others, Praying they may be allowed and paid out of the Publick Treasury of this State the Sum granted by a late Act of this State to any Person or Persons that shall inform and prosecute to final Judgment any Person or Persons who should forge or counterfeit the Bills of Publick Credit of this State.

Resolved, that the said Nathanael Farrington with the other Petitioners be paid out of the Publick Treasury of this State the Sum of Twenty Pounds as a Bounty for their trouble and expence they were at in detecting and bringing to Conviction one Abiel Brintnal named in said Petition and also the Sum of Fifteen Pounds, being the Sum of which the said Farrington has been defrauded. In Council Read and Concurred Consented to by Seven of the Council." — Council Records, vol. XXXVIII., p. 514. See, also, note to 1776–77, chap. 44 post.

Chap. 19. The following preamble and resolve, for giving a bounty for the capture of armed vessels of the enemy, were passed in the House and sent up for concurrence, but no proceedings of the Council thereon have been discovered: —

"Mar. 22, 1776. Whereas the Sea-Coast of this, and the other United Colonies, have been for a long Time infested with swarms of armed Vessels, sent there by our unnatural Enemies, for the Purpose of annoying and distressing the Inhabitants of our Sea-Port Towns, our Trade and Fishery, &c. all of which have been thereby greatly distressed, some of our Sea-Port Towns burnt, and their Inhabitants reduced to a State of Misery and Want. It is of great Importance that suitable Encouragement be given to such Persons as shall take, captivate and bring into any Port in this Colony, any such armed Vessel or Vessels abovementioned.

Therefore, Resolved, That for every armed Vessel of our Enemies, sent for the Purpose of cruizing, &c. to Annoy and Distress us in our Trade and Fishery, or any other Way whatever, which shall be taken and brought into any Port of this Colony, or that shall be taken in any Harbour of this Colony by any of our armed Vessels or Boats, which are, or shall be fitted out at the expence of private Persons, belonging to this Colony, the following Bounty shall be paid out of the public Treasury to such Person or Persons as the Captors shall appoint to be by him, or them distributed amongst the Persons concerned in taking and bringing in any such Vessel or Vessels of our said Enemies, according to their Rank in the same Manner as their other Prizes are to be shared or divided, viz.

For each and every such armed Vessel of our said Enemies so taken, and brought in, that is mounted with ten Carriage Guns, eighty Dollars per Gun, and every such Vessel mounted with eight Carriage Guns seventy-two Dollars per Gun, and every such Vessel mounted with twelve Carriage Guns eighty-eight Dollars per Gun, and so in that proportion for a greater or a lesser Number of Carriage Guns, any such Vessel so taken shall be mounted with. Sent up for Concurrence." — House Journal, p. 31.

The resolve of the Continental Congress, referred to in the note to chapter 17, ante, was as follows: — "that where the vessels employed in the capture shall be fitted out at the expense of any of the United Colonies, then one-third of the prize taken shall be to the use of the captors, and the remaining two-thirds to the use of the said colony, and where the vessels so employed shall be fitted out at the continental charge, then one-third shall go to the captors, and the remaining two-thirds to the use of the United Colonies, provided nevertheless, that if the capture be a vessel of war, then the captors shall be entitled to one-half of the value, and the remainder shall go to the colony or continent as the case may be, the necessary charges of condemnation of all prizes, being deducted before distribution made." — Journals of Congress: Nov. 25, 1775.

It seems to have been supposed that the repeal of chapter 15, by chapter 17, revived chapter 7, which is expressly referred to, in the second section of chapter 17, as the foundation of the existing admiralty jurisdiction. Though the operation of repealing acts to revive acts formerly repealed, was not at that time generally denied, it would seem that, practically, there were no admiralty tribunals in operation between the date of the passage of chapter 17, and the enactment of the present chapter — a period of twenty-five days.

Besides the want of any provision for giving effect to the above resolve of Congress, both chapters 7 and 15 were defective in several particulars which were deemed sufficiently important to require further legislation. For instance, neither act had prescribed any limit of time for filing bills or libels against prizes, or for the filing of adverse claims; nor had they provided for the trial of the latter by the jury. Furthermore, neither of these acts had limited the juries to the trial of cases entered and published before the jurors were drawn; and neither had subjected libellants to the payment of fees; nor provided, in any case, for appeals to the Superior Court of the province — which, it was thought, might in some instances, be desirable and convenient — nor for the taking of depositions out of court, nor for the sale of perishable goods before condemnation, nor for some other details of importance which will appear upon a comparison of the acts.

Accordingly, after the repeal of chapter 15, the House began to consider the subject of amending the existing law relating to the capture and condemnation of prizes, and, on the twenty-sixth of March, a bill was brought in, and read a first time, for the amendment of chapter 7. It was read a second time, on the 27th, and assigned, for a third reading, to the afternoon of the same day; when it was recommitted. On the first of April, the bill was again read the second time; and was passed to be engrossed on the third, and sent to the Council, whence, on the 6th, it came down, with certain proposed amendments, in part of which, only, the House concurred. On the 10th, the bill was referred to a committee of conference, proposed by the Council. This committee reported, on the 11th; whereupon the House accepted the last paragraph of their report, and rejected the first. At this stage, the bill was again sent up to the Council, for concurrence; and on the 13th, it was passed to be enacted.

Chap. 20. A division in the church over which the Rev. Theophilus Pickering was settled, grew out of a conflict between the pastor and some of the church-members, as early as 1740 or 1741, relative to the views and practices of Whitefield, the itinerant revivalist preacher, who had publicly expounded his peculiar doctrines in Ipswich and its vicinity. Sixteen members of this church, which was known as the Second Church in Ipswich, assembled at the house of Daniel Giddings, Jan. 13, 1746, for the purpose of separating from their pastor "and his church," and setting up "a distinct society, unless Mr. Pickering would consent to resign his pastorate." The proceedings which led to this separation were as follows: —

The minority, who had felt aggrieved at the treatment they received from their pastor respecting the differences between them, after repeated applications to the church, for redress, which were refused, withdrew from the church and proposed a mutual council. At first, upon the suggestion of the pastor, the church declined this proposal, on the ground of the irregularity of the withdrawal of the aggrieved brethren, but afterwards reconsidered their action, and, in March, 1745, the pastor and church offered to call such a council, which the seceders, in turn, declined, unless the church itself should first pass upon the matters in controversy, agreeably to the request repeatedly made by them.

The Third Church in Ipswich, under the pastoral charge of Rev. Mr. Wigglesworth, now interposed, and advised the contending parties to agree to a mutual council, one-half of the members of which should be chosen by the aggrieved brethren. To this advice, the pastor and church, in the autumn of 1745, yielded a seeming assent, but, on the pretext that the seceders were not fully represented by those of their number who approved of it, hesitated and delayed until it was evident that the calling of a council was inevitable, when the pastor made a conditional tender of resignation. The pastor's retirement promising a satisfactory settlement of all differences, the call of a council was thereupon mutually abandoned, and the aggrieved brethren renewed their communion with the church. The pastor, however, now refused to resign, upon the ground that the conditions upon which he had made the tender of resignation — the chief of which being the consent of the church and parish — had failed. The church had, at first, given its consent, but was afterwards prevailed upon to withdraw it, and several of the seceding brethren were summoned for discipline; whereupon they again signified their intention to withdraw.

No immediate efforts were made by either party to revive the call for a council; but the seceders were called to account, at a church meeting, where they appeared, but declined to give a written statement of the grounds of their withdrawal, as demanded by the pastor, which was made another obstacle to reconciliation; and they thereupon formally withdrew from the church, and began to hold separate meetings, of which the meeting at the house of Daniel Giddings was the first. Meanwhile the original seceders and those who had followed them were censured by the church, and suspended from "communion and all special privileges."

An ex parte council was now called by the church, for advice. This council met in April, 1746, and was composed of representatives of five churches; but the separating brethren declined to attend. This council advised the church to repeat the offer of a mutual council, which they entreated the seceders to accept, if tendered, and in the mean time recommended the latter to abstain from separate meetings, and the church to forbear to censure them; and, in case their offers were refused, to call upon other neighboring churches to join with the five churches, "and strengthen the advice which may be found necessary."

The offer of a mutual council was accordingly repeated, but not accepted, whereupon four more churches, at the request of the Second Church, joined, the following month, in the advisory council. The separating brethren, while declining to unite in the call of this council, or to submit their grievances to its adjudication, appeared before it, "put in their papers," and gave the council a hearing of their case, whereupon a majority of the council, while blaming Mr. Pickering, in some particulars, and advising both the pastor and the church to use every proper means to secure the return of their disaffected brethren, condemned the withdrawal of the latter as "unjustifiable and reproachful to religion;" and even the dissenting minority expressed their inability to justify all the circumstances of the action of the separatists, and recommended mutual efforts for a reunion.

From January to May, 1746, the separating brethren, were proceeding towards the organization of a separate church, which they accomplished, on the day the advisory council was in session, with the sanction of another council consisting of delegates from certain churches in Connecticut, and from the Separatist Church in Boston. Mr. John Cleaveland, who had been called as early as the 17th of December, previous, was ordained pastor over the new church, on the 25th of February, 1747, in the presence of a council consisting of the pastor and delegates of the First Church in Ipswich and the Second Church in Kittery, — delegates from other churches invited, with the exception of those from the church at Exeter, being detained by the inclemency of the weather. The action of the First Church in this particular was resented by the Second Church, and made the ground, first, of an offer by the Second Church to call a mutual council. A council being declined by the First Church, letters subsequently passed between the churches ending with an admonition to the former from the Second Church. To this admonitory letter the First Church replied, justifying its action, whereupon more letters followed, and finally a call was made by the Second Church, upon seven churches to second their admonition. These churches failing to respond at the appointed time, the call was revived for this council, to meet, July 19, 1748; when six of the seven churches called, appeared by their elders and delegates. Upon requesting the appearance of the separating brethren, and the representatives of the First Church, it appeared that notice had not been regularly given to either, and though, on this account, a formal appearance was declined, not only the pastor of the First Church, and several of its members, were present before the council, but a leading member of the separating congregation was admitted, upon his request, to appear in a private capacity. The council was thereupon adjourned, to meet, on the 26th, at the Old South Meeting-house in Boston, and notice of the adjournment was duly served upon the First Church and the separating brethren.

Upon the reassembling of the council at Boston all the churches interested were represented — though such of the separating brethren as were present, appeared, nominally, in a private capacity; and the First Church stated their case by letter, in which they also notified the council that if they should decide to act upon any matters concerning that church, "in the third way of communion," they expected to have the same laid before them for their consideration. The council agreed upon eight articles of advice, in which they approve of the action of the aggrieved brethren in invoking the aid of a neighboring church, and express satisfaction with the call of a mutual council which they declare to have been "a proper method of issuing their differences." They also affirm that it was the duty of all parties to have revived the call for the mutual council which had been abandoned, and declare that the conduct of the aggrieved brethren, in withdrawing, was disorderly, as well on account of their not having first endeavored to revive the call for a council, as of their not first having asked for a dismission from the church; and they condemn their not accepting the offer of a call for another council, and pronounce their excuse therefor groundless; and, though they express the opinion that it would have been more reasonable for the Second Church to have proposed a revival of the call for a council, they commend that church for forbearing to censure the separating brethren and for their seeking and following the advice of the five churches. While expressing their gratification that some of the aggrieved brethren appeared before the council they pronounce the organization of a new church "unjustifiable and sinful, inasmuch as a door appears" "to have been open to their relief, and therefore their covenant bonds, as members of said church, remained upon them," by which they had justly incurred the censures pronounced upon them by the church. They also condemn the action of the First Church in uniting with the church at Kittery to ordain Mr. Cleaveland, as unjustifiable, and declare that the pastor and his flock have no "just claim to be acknowledged a congregational church, regularly constituted." They conclude by entreating the First Church to "revise their conduct" in the matter of the ordination, and advising the separating brethren to meekly consider the censures which they have felt obliged to pass upon them; and finally they observe to the Second Church, "that where there are divisions there ought to be great searching, each one of his own heart," exhorting them to behave towards their separating brethren with all Christian moderation, without any further disciplinary process against them, and to be ready to permit their return, if they should so desire, "without any severe demands upon them."

The death of Mr. Pickering, which occurred in the autumn of 1747, had been followed by renewed efforts for a reunion of the members of the divided church; but the result of the council at Boston rather strengthened the determination of the majority, and these efforts proved unavailing; the old church refusing to give Mr. Cleaveland a trial as a candidate for the pastoral office, which would, undoubtedly, have led to a reconciliation. The principal objection, by the Second Church, to considering proposals for a reunion, was the claim that these proposals were offered by the separatists in the name of a congregational church, and signed by Mr. Cleaveland as pastor.

The separatists — who had been at the expense of erecting a meeting-house, and who were alarmed at the prospect of the settlement of a new minister over the old congregation, to whose support they would be obliged to continue to contribute, besides bearing the whole expense of their own society — applied to the Legislature for relief.

In their petition, which was dated Dec. 20, 1748, they ask to be set off, together with such others as might, within a reasonable time, indicate a desire to unite with them, into a distinct parish, and to receive, as such, a moiety of the common property of the old parish. On this petition, which was signed by fifty-five inhabitants of the second parish, and which was supplemented by a similar petition, signed by nine other inhabitants of the parish, and dated March 20th, notice was ordered to be given to the second parish to show cause, on the second Friday of the April session. The separating brethren, also, had previously presented written overtures to the parish, at a meeting held on the 8th of March, to induce them to assent to the prayer of their petition.

In response to the notice, the second parish presented an answer to the petition, in which they reply to the several charges of the petitioners, and, without directly protesting against the division, they submit it to the General Court to decide whether or not "it will not be highly detrimental, as to other churches and parishes, so particularly to our parish, which is not so large but a division of it into two will so weaken our hands as that we shall not be able to support our ministers with honour to them and comfort to ourselves; and our aggrieved [brethren] pretend not to be of different perswasion from us, in point of doctrine, worship or discipline."

The petitions and answer were read in Council, April 14, 1749, and a committee was appointed to hear the parties in attendance, "and report what they judge proper for this court to do thereon." In this, the House refused to concur, but ordered that the petition be dismissed, and on the next day, the Council concurred in this order.

Not disheartened by this failure, the separating brethren renewed their application to the next Legislature; this time, representing that, in the last year or two of their controversy with the second parish, they had acted, chiefly, under the advice of the Rev. Mr. Wigglesworth, and his church, whose advice Mr. Pickering and his church had professed a willingness to follow. They also represent that their case is one of peculiar hardship, and not likely to be taken as a precedent for other separatists not in the precise situation with themselves. Their petition, which was signed by fifty-five inhabitants of the parish, was read in the House, on the 17th of June, and notice thereon to the second parish refused.

In the mean time, the second parish had assessed a tax, to defray the expense of repairing the meeting-house, and to pay the arrearages of Mr. Pickering's salary. This they proceeded to levy, by distress; whereupon, the legality of the form of the assessment was contested, at law; eminent counsel being retained on both sides. The assessment was declared invalid, for technical reasons, by the Superior Court of Judicature, and the collector was threatened with other suits to recover moneys illegally collected by him. Thereupon, the parish trustees, so called, and the collectors, applied to the General Court, through Robert Auchmuty, their counsel, to have their doings ratified, and the defect cured in the assessment and warrant for collection, notwithstanding they had already instituted proceedings for a review, in which they hoped to avail themselves of the legislative ratification. The petition by Auchmuty was read, in the Council, on the 28th of June, 1749, and an order passed ratifying the irregular proceedings, with an order of notice to Samuel Low, the original plaintiff, to show cause on the first Tuesday of the August session, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted. This vote of the Council seems not to have reached the House until Aug. 4th, when the latter refused to concur therein, but ordered notice to Low to appear, with any others "who apprehend themselves affected thereby," and show cause, on the first Thursday of the November session; and that all proceedings, on both sides, be stayed in the mean time. This was concurred in by the Council, on the next day.

At the next session of the Assembly, Samuel Low and others, for themselves and their associates, presented their answer to this petition, alleging other grounds of objection to the assessment and collection of the tax, than the technical points upon which the Superior Court had given judgment, and, on the 24th of November, the petition was referred to a joint committee. This committee reported to the Council, December 2, 1749, that the assessment and warrants for collection be ratified, and that all further proceedings in the law be stayed, and recommended that the respondents' petition, filed at the May session, be revived. The Council accepted this report, except the recommendation of a revival of the former petition, and the stay of proceedings at law. On the 8th, the House nonconcurred in this action of the Council, and substituted an order for the appointment of a committee to repair to the second parish, hear the parties, and report what they judge proper to be done thereon. The Council refused to concur in this, but voted to adhere to their former order, with an amendment striking out a provision for barring all future actions growing out of the illegal assessment. On the 18th, the House again nonconcurred, and insisted upon their own vote; and the Council, on the next day, voted a nonconcurrence. This appears to have been the last action upon this subject by this General Court.

At the first session of the next Assembly, a committee of the second parish presented a petition praying to have the petition of the trustees and collector revived; which was accordingly done, by a concurrent vote, dated June 2, 1750, and notice was ordered to be served on Samuel Low, to appear and show cause against the same, on the 22d of the same month; at which time the petition and the answer of Low and others, were read, and an order was passed, the next day, confirming the proceedings of the second parish, at their meetings on March 21st, and October 12, 1747, and ratifying the assessment and warrants for collection, substantially in accordance with the order passed by the last Council.

At the September session, the separating brethren presented a memorial, setting forth the hardship of the operation of the order of the previous session, and praying for the stay of all further proceedings on the actions pending in the judicial courts, and that their petition to be set off might be revived and granted, and they exempted from any future taxes; at the same time expressing their willingness to pay all taxes already assessed, and to pay the expense of a committee of the Legislature appointed to visit the parish and examine into the circumstances of the case. Upon this petition it was ordered, October 4th, that notice be served upon the clerk of the second parish, to show cause, on the second Thursday of the next session, which began on the 10th of January, 1750–51, and that, in the mean time, all suits respecting parish taxes be stayed. At the time appointed for the hearing, the second parish submitted an answer to this petition, repeating substantially, the objections they had urged against previous petitions of the separatists. The Council, on the 17th, ordered the petition to be dismissed; but the House, the next day, refused to concur in this, and voted to refer this, "and any other petitions and answers referred to in this petition," to a joint committee; whereupon the Council concurred, and a committee was accordingly appointed. This committee reported, on the 20th, that the petition be dismissed. This report was accepted by the Council, but rejected by the House, which, on the 7th of February, passed an order for the appointment of a joint committee, to repair to the second parish, "hear the parties, inquire into their circumstances, and report what they judge proper for this court to do thereon." In this, the Council refused to concur.

Upon this dead-lock in the Legislature, the matter seems to have rested until the third session of the next Assembly, when a committee of Mr Cleaveland's society again presented a memorial, asking to be set off from the second parish, for the reasons assigned by them. This memorial was read, in the House, Jan. 16, 1752, and notice was thereupon ordered to be served on the clerk of the second parish, to show cause, on the second Tuesday of the next session in April; but the Council refused to concur.

At the third session of the next General Court, the persistent separatists once more presented a memorial, accompanied by a list of fifty-seven names, of inhabitants of the second parish, who desired to be set off into a distinct parish. It appearing by this memorial — which is given below, together with the action of the Legislature thereupon — that the two societies had agreed upon terms of separation, the prayer of the petitioners was granted: and the new organization, which had been known as the Fourth Church, became the sixth parish in Ipswich.

The two parishes continued separate until 1774, when Mr. Cleaveland — who had not only distinguished himself in the pulpit, but had become widely known for his enthusiastic support of the popular cause in the beginning of the Revolution — having outlived the prejudices against him in the second parish, that parish made proposals for a union of the two churches. Both parishes and both churches joined in the call of an ecclesiastical council, to be held on the 4th of October, 1774, which, at an adjourned session, on the 26th, approved of articles of agreement for perfecting the union of the churches. It now remained to effect a similar union of the parishes; and, accordingly, after the General Court had resumed its functions, the next year, the following memorial was presented: — "To the Honble the Council and Hons of Representitives in General Court Assembled at Watertown, March, 1776

The Memorial of Jonathan Cogswell junr & John Choate in behalf of the Second and Sixth Parishes in Ipswich Sheweth That the said Second and Sixth parishes are made up of the Inhabitants of that part of Ipswich Calld Chebacco. and not Seperated from each Other by a parish line, but are promiscuously Situated, and were formerly One parish, and Included the whole of said Chebacco —

That for a Considerable time past one of said parishes have ben destitute of a Minister, in which time they have Joined with the Other parish in Suporting the Revd Mr John

This memorial was immediately referred to a committee, which, on the 21st, reported that the facts therein set forth had been fully proved to them, and that the petitioners have leave to bring in a bill "for uniting both parishes in one, by the name of the Second Parish in Ipswich." This report was accepted, in concurrence, on the same day, and, accordingly, a bill for this purpose was read a first time, March 22d; and, the next day, read a second and third time, passed to be engrossed, and sent up for concurrence. On the fifth of April, the Council passed the bill to be engrossed, with a slight amendment, in which the House promptly concurred, and offered a further amendment, which received the concurrence of the Council, changing the year of the king's reign to the year of the Christian era, in the heading of the bill, and, on the 17th, the bill was passed to be enacted.

Chap. 21. "Feb. 1, 1776. In the House of Representatives — Ordered that Mr Speaker, Colonel Orne, and Colonel Freeman, with such as the Hon'ble Board may join, be a Committee to bring in a bill, establishing a Test, by which all persons inimical to the rights and Libertys of America, shall be distinguished from their Friends, and to provide some Methods to secure us against the Practices and designs of our Enemies. And that it be an Instruction to the Committee that they immediately, and previous to their reporting any Bill for this purpose, write to the delegates of this Colony at the American Congress, and obtain information from them, whether the Congress have taken, or are about to take, any measures for this purpose, or if they have taken any, what those measures are. — In Council Read and Concurred and William Sever and Thomas Cushing Esqrs are joined." — Council Records, vol. XXXI., p. 521.

The journals of the Continental Congress do not show the reception of this application; but on the 14th of March, 1776, the resolve, set out in full in the preamble to this chapter, was passed, together with the following: —

"Ordered, That a copy of the foregoing resolution be transmitted by the delegates of each colony, to their respective assemblies, conventions, or councils or committees of safety." — Journals of Congress.

On the 20th of March a message was sent up from the House to the Council to know if they had "concurred in a vote of this House, appointing a committee to bring in a test act," and on the third day of April the above-mentioned resolve of the Continental Congress, was brought down. Two days later the report of a committee on these resolves, was brought down, read and recommitted, with directions to the committee to report "a form of an association to be tendered by the committees of the several towns, to such persons as they shall have reason to suspect are disaffected to the American cause." The report was read again the same day, and recommitted — the former vote having been reconsidered — with directions to the committee to bring in a bill for carrying into execution the resolve of Congress. On the 10th of April the committee was ordered "to consider the act lately passed by the Assembly of Connecticut, for restraining and punishing persons who are inimical to the liberties of the United Colonies, and bring in one bill for these purposes." On the 23d some changes were made in this committee and it was "directed to sit this forenoon and proceed upon the bill until they have finished it," and on the 26th, the bill was brought down, with an endorsement that it had been read twice and unanimously passed to be engrossed by the Council. On the 27th, the bill was read a second time, and on the 29th, after having been committed to Messrs. Sullivan, Cushing and Freeman, it was read a third time and passed to be engrossed, with amendments, and was sent up to the Council. On the 30th, the bill was brought down with a vote of the Council, proposing amendments, which were concurred in, and a further amendment proposed by the House; and on the first of May it was passed to be enacted, and the following order was passed for distribution of printed blanks of the test declaration: —

"Ordered, That Col. Freeman, get the Association contained in the Act passed this Day printed, so many as shall be sufficient to furnish each Town with three, and disperse the same accordingly." — House Journal, p. 229.

During the first session of the next General Court attempts were made to alter and amend this act. A motion for that purpose was made as early as June 1st, which after some debate was ordered to subside; but on the fifth, the House specially assigned the afternoon of the next day for the consideration of the subject, and, on the 17th, a bill was reported and read a first and second time, when an amendment was offered for allowing those who had signed the declaration prescribed in the first section of this chapter, to erase their names, and to sign the new form prescribed by the proposed bill. The bill so amended was read a second and third time and passed to be engrossed, June 25th, and sent up for concurrence. This resulted in a committee of conference, July 1st, and the next day the following resolve * was passed: —

"July 2, 1776. In Council. On Report of a Committee of Conference appointed by both Houses to consider the Subject Matter of a Bill for altering & amending an Act passed in the last Session of the Great, & General Court call'd the Test Act. — Resolved that the Committee of Inspection & Safety of each, & every Town, & place in this Colony be, & they hereby are directed to omit tendering the Declaration prescrib'd by an Act pass'd in the last Session of the General Court of this Colony commonly called the Test Act, and also to refrain from enquiring † the Inhabitants of this Colony severally to subscribe said Declaration, and that all proceedings against such Persons as have already refused, or neglected to sign the same Declaration be stayed 'till the further Order of this Court, and that John Winthrop & Francis Dana Esq^rs with such as the Hon: House shall join be a Committee to take into consideration the aforesaid Test Act and also a Bill wch has pass'd the Hon: House of Representatives in their present Session for the alterations, & amendments of the same and in the Recess of the Court to prepare at the next sitting of this General Assembly report a new Bill touching the Subject Matter thereof with such Amendments, & Additions as they shall judge Proper. In Council. Read, & accepted.

In the House of Representatives. Read, & Concurred, & M^r Hobart M^r Wendell, & M^r Cooper are joined. Consented to by the Major part of the Council." — Council Records, vol. XXXV., p. 136.

The following order was passed by the Council: —

"July 3, 1776. In Council. Order'd, That part of the Resolution of this Gen^l Assembly respecting the Declaration prescribed in the Act commonly called the Test Act be forthwith publish'd in hand Bills, & sent to the several Committees of Inspection, & Safety of the several Towns Districts, & Plantations within this Colony, & deliver'd to every Member of this present Assembly." — Ibid., p. 142.

In the second session the committee appointed by the above resolve was enlarged, by the addition of one member from each branch, and was ordered to sit forthwith, on the thirty-first of August, and, again, on the ninth of September, but no further progress relative to the proposed amendment seems to have been made that session.

In the third session the following order was passed, but no report from the committee therein appointed, and no further action of the Assembly, upon this subject, has been discovered.

"Nov. 21, 1776. In the House of Representatives. Ordered, That M^r Cushing, M^r Murray, M^r Cooper, M^r Story, & M^r Pickering be a Committee to confer with such Committee as the Hon^ble Board may join on the subject of permitting Persons inimical to America to depart this State — In Council. Read, & Concurr'd, & Jeremiah Powell, William Phillips, Caleb Cushing, John Winthrop, & Thomas Cushing Esq^rs are joined on the part of the Board." — Ibid., vol. XXXVI., p. 192.

Chap. 22. As early as the fifth of April the bill of chapter 20 was amended, in its heading, by substituting the year of the Christian era for the year of the king's reign. The bill of chapter 18, which is the first printed act in which this change appears, was amended, in like manner, on the thirteenth. From this time forward the royal style was repudiated in all legislation, and it was now sought to introduce a similar change in the precepts for convening the General Court and in all legal processes and proceedings. Accordingly, Major Hawley and Messrs. Sullivan and Pitts, of the House, were appointed a committee, April 12th, to bring in a bill for that purpose, which they did on the following day, when the bill had it first reading. On the 16th, the bill was read a second time and "recommitted for a clause to be added providing that commissions may be changed at any time before the nineteenth of September next," and a day was assigned for its third reading. On the 17th, a message from the House was sent up to the Council, "to desire them to stay issuing all commissions, civil and military, for the present." The bill was read a third time and passed to be engrossed, on the 18th, and sent to the Council for concurrence. At this stage the Council returned the following message: —

* Printed resolves of the May session, chapter CCII. † Sic: requiring.

"Apr. 18, 1776. Gentlemen of the House of Representatives

You yesterday desired the Council by a Verbal Message, that they would desist from making out any Commissions either Civil or Military, for the present — you cannot but be sensible of the Exposed State of the Colony to the depredations of our merciless Enemies, who would, we have the fullest reason to beleive, with Eagerness, avail themselves of an Oppertunity to wreak their Vengeance upon this Colony and if possible do something to excite in the minds of the People, sentiments of their Valour, very different from what can be Entertained of them at present, by those who have heard of their late precipitate flight from Boston, and other Instances of their shameful conduct. —

You must also be sensible that in Order to prevent such mischiefs, it is of the highest importance, that our Militia should without loss of time be put upon the best footing possible for making a defence: which is far from being the Case at present, as a Considerable part thereof is still destitute of Officers — The Council can conceive of no sufficient reason why they should delay under these Circumstances to make out Commissions to persons duly appointed to Offices: but if you will Suggest any, we shall consider them with due attention, as we are greatly concerned both for the Safety & Reputation of the Colony — In the name & by Order of the Major part of the Council —

JAMES OTIS President." — Council Records, vol. XXXIV., p. 775.

To this message the House returned the following reply: —

"Apr. 20, 1776. May it Please your Honors

The House having with due attention considered your Message of the 18th Instant, beg leave to observe, that when they presumed to send a Verbal Message to your Honors, desireing you to desist from making out any Commissions Civil or Military, they were Sensible that a Considerable Part of our Militia are still destitute of Officers & are very sufficiently possessed of the Importance of putting them without Loss of Time on the best footing in order to defend this Colony, exposed to the Merciless depredations of our Enemies, who may avail themselves of our Situation to wreak their Vengeance and retrieve their reputation lost by their late precipitate Flight, but at the same time when they consider the Absurdity of Issuing Commissions in the present Stile, under our present Situation they supposed themselves fully justifyed in not troubleing your Honors with reasons they supposed obvious to every One — but as yours Honors cannot conceive any reasons sufficient to delay issuing Commissions, and are pleased to assure us that you will consider with due attention such as we may suggest — We beg leave to mention to your Honors that the Absurdity of Issuing Commissions in the present Stile is so apparent, and the tendency it has to keep up Ideas wholly inconsistant with our Conduct & Safety, has given the good People of this Colony such uneasiness as rendered it necessary to make provision for altering the Commissions already Issued, and for a different Stile for future Commiss^{on}. —

We had therefore provided & under consideration a Bill for that purpose, which we presumed would meet your Honours approbation when regularly laid before you, and appear to be calculated to promote both the Safety & Reputation of the Colony, and as the Bill is now before the Hon^{ble} Board they will be able to judge of our Sentiments & Conduct in the Provisions therein made." — Ibid., p. 783.

On the 23d of April the Council send down the bill, with the following memorandum thereon; viz., "In Council, April 23. This Bill having had two readings, passed to be engrossed, as taken into a new draught." The next day the House concurred, with certain amendments, in the draught thus sent down; but, on the 25th, the Council refused to concur and voted to adhere to their own vote. To this the House refused to agree. On the 26th, the Council again sent the bill down, and proposed further amendments, but the House nonconcurred, and voted to adhere to their own vote, and sent the bill up, again, for the concurrence of the Council. On the 27th, the bill, having been sent for by the House, was again brought down, when the House voted to reconsider its former vote, and proposed as an amendment "to dele the word 'Colony' at A, B, D, E, and F, and to insert instead thereof the word 'Government.'" In respect to the vote of the Council as to another change, they at first nonconcurred, and voted to adhere to their own vote, but subsequently reconsidered it. On the 29th, the bill was recommitted, and the committee forthwith made a report, upon which the House passed the following vote: "At A, B, D, E, and F, dele 'Colony' and insert 'Government and People,'" and sent it up for concurrence. The Council immediately voted to concur, "with the further amendments at I, K, and L,; viz., at I, dele 'civil and military.' At K, insert 'civil,' and at L, insert 'all Commissions, both civil and military.'" This vote was sent up and concurred in, and, on the first of May, the bill was passed to be enacted.

Pending the passage of this act, another bill was introduced in the Council which was read twice, and passed to be engrossed April 27th; but it provided only for changing the style in the precepts for convening the next General Assembly, and conferred upon the Council, authority to prepare such a substitute for the royal style as they might see fit to adopt. This bill went no further than the vote for engrossment.

"May 31, 1776. Benjamin Lincoln, Esq; brought down the following Resolve, viz. In Council, May 31, 1776.

* Whereas in and by an Act or Law of this Colony, made and passed in the Year One Thousand Seven Hundred and Sixty, and revived and continued by sundry Laws since made, it is provided, That the Clerk of the Superior Court of Judicature, Court of Assize and General Goal Delivery, shall issue Venires from his Office for the Choice of Jurors, Thirty Days at least, before the Return Day thereof. And whereas by Reason of the Alteration of the Stile of Law Processes, the issuing Venires for the Choice of Jurors, to serve at the said Superior Court, next to be held within the Counties of Essex and York, until this Time (which is not Thirty Days before the Time by Law appointed for holding of the said Courts) has been delayed. Wherefore,

It is Resolved, That the Clerk of said Superior Court, be, and he hereby is impowered to issue his Venires for the Choice of Jurors, to serve at the Superior Court in the Counties aforesaid, in June next, at any Time before the Seven Day of said Month, and all Constables and others concerned therein, are required to pay the same Obedience to said Venires, as if they had been issued Thirty Days before their Return Day, under the same Penalty as is provided against those who disobey such Venires, when issued pursuant to the Act aforesaid. And all Grand and Petit Jurors, chosen by Virtue of said Venires so issued, are hereby required to attend their respective Duties, under the Pains and Penalties in the aforesaid Act mentioned. Any Law, Usage or Custom to the contrary notwithstanding. Sent down for Concurrence. Read and concurred." — House Journal, p. 14.

The record plainly shows that the foregoing resolve was consented to by the major part of the Council, but that at the time of its passage in that branch there were but seven councillors present. The charter provided that the governor with the "assistants or councillors or seven of them at least" may hold a council, &c., but this did not apply to the case of the absence of both the governor and lieutenant-governor, in which exigency it was expressly provided that the Council, or the major part of them, should act, and the Council seem to have determined in this instance, that the resolve had not been regularly passed, for want of a quorum. The following measures were taken to remedy this defect: —

"June 7 1776. Francis Dana, Esq; came down and informed the House, that the Resolve of Court of the 31st May last, relative to issuing Venires, was not concurred by a major Part of the Honorable Council, and that as the same would be ineffectual as it now stands, the Honorable Board had sent down a new Draught, and proposed the same to the House. Read and committed to Mr. Lowell.

Mr. Lowell, agreeable to Order, reported. Read and accepted.* Whereas in and by an Act or Law of this Colony, made and passed in the Year of our Lord one Thousand seven Hundred and Sixty, and revived and continued by sundry Laws since made, it is provided, That the Clerk of the Superior Court of Judicature, Court of Assize and General Goal Delivery, shall issue Venires from his Office for the Choice of Persons, thirty Days at least before the Return Day thereof. And whereas by Reason of the Alteration of the Style of Law Processes, the Clerk of said Superior Court did not issue Venires for the Choice of Jurors to serve at said Court, to be held within the Counties of Essex and York thirty Days before the Time by law appointed for the holding said Courts, but has now issued such Venires.

It is Resolved, That all Constables and others concerned therein, are required to pay the same Obedience to said Venires, as if they had been issued thirty Days before their Return Day, under the same Penalties as is provided against those who disobey such Venires, when issued pursuant to the Act aforesaid. And all Grand and Petit Jurors, chosen by virtue of said Venires so issued, are hereby required to attend their respective Duties, under the Pains and Penalties in the aforesaid Act mentioned, any Law, Usage or Custom to the contrary notwithstanding. Sent up for Concurrence." — Ibid., p. 49.

Chap. 23. This chapter does not include a list of fees in the courts of admiralty, which are given in the note to chapter 7, ante; nor the fees allowed to the officers chosen to take recognizances of debts, under chapter 25, which appear in section 13 of that chapter.

On the 18th of October a committee, consisting of Messrs. Hawley, Bliss, Brooks, Smith and Rawson of the House, was ordered to bring in a fee-bill. This committee reported a bill, April 1st, which was read a first time on that day, and debated the three following days, on the last of which, it was passed to be engrossed and sent up to the Council for concurrence. On the 22d, upon a message of inquiry from the House, the bill was brought down with certain proposed amendments, in which, on the following day, the House voted to concur as to part, and nonconcurred in the others. On the 24th, the bill was again brought down from the Council, with additional amendments upon which the House were divided as before. On the 26th, the Council informed the House, by message, that they had concurred in the bill "and that it is now engrossing," and on the first of May it was passed to be enacted.

It was soon discovered that the bill had been incorrectly printed, and the following proceedings were taken by the next General Court to rectify the error: —

"June 3, 1776. The House being informed, that the Act for regulating Fees, was in one or two Particulars, misprinted.

Ordered, That the Secretary lay the Original Act upon the Table. Who brought down the same and laid it upon the Table accordingly. Whereupon, Ordered, That Mr Watson, Mr. Partridge, and Mr. Perry, be a Committee to compare the said printed Act with the original; and to direct the Printer to suspend delivering out any more of the said Acts for the present. Also, to consider what Method is proper to be taken, whereby all Matters ordered by the House to the Press may be correctly printed." — House Journal, p. 21.

Whereupon,

Resolved. That the Printer be, and he hereby is directed, to re-print the Sheet containing the four First mentioned Errors, correcting the same, and to deliver the same, with the Acts, as soon as corrected; and that Mr. Watson, Mr. Osgood and Mr. Cushing, of Scituate, be, and they hereby are appointed a Committee to inspect the Press, until further Orders, and see that all Acts, Resolves and Journals, that are ordered to be printed by this House, are correctly done. Read and accepted, and thereupon Ordered, That Mr. Ellis, Mr. Wheeler and Mr. Bancroft, prepare and bring in a Bill accordingly." — House Journal, p. 46.

On the twenty-ninth of April this committee reported a bill which was then read a first time, and on the next day was read a second and third time and passed to be engrossed, and was passed to be enacted on the second day of May.

Chap. 25. The bill for this purpose was read a first time, in the House, Dec. 25, 1775, and was read a second time on the third of January. Before it was again taken up, Dr. William Whiting, of Great Barrington, introduced a bill for a similar purpose, which with the proceedings upon it is given below: —

"Whereas the Genneral Custum of Crediting Each other in Deal and Commerce Constantly Ocations Great Numbers of the Inhabitants of this Colony to be Indebted to Each other in Varius Sums of money — and Great Numbers of Such Debtors (being Concious of the Justice of their Creditors Demands) Are Willing and Desireus the Same Should be Discharged, and it Not being in their Power Seasonably to Discharge the Same, Such honnest Debtors Are Put to Great and unnessasary Cost and Charge, by means of their Creditors Commencing Processes at Law against them in the Same manner and form as if Such Debtors Utterly Refused to Pay them — Therefore that Such honnest Debtors may for the future be Releived from such unnessasary Cost and Charge

On the fifteenth of April, the bill, which was read December 25th, was again "read a second time," and the next day was read a third time, passed to be engrossed, and sent up for concurrence. It was brought down from the Council, April 18th, with certain proposed amendments, in which the House, on the 22d, voted to concur in part, and rejected the rest. On the third of May it was read and passed to be enacted in its present form.

Chap. 26. The following interesting memorial from a county convention at Ipswich, is inserted here, together with the proceedings of the General Court thereupon, in explanation of the origin of this chapter, which was the first movement towards proportioning representation according to population — a scheme more completely carried out in the second article of the third section of chapter one of the state Constitution. The abandonment of the system of town representation, as established by the province charter, was completed upon the adoption of article XXI. of the amendments of the Constitution, by which the House of Representatives is to consist of 240 members, apportioned according to the numbers of legal voters in the several counties, which are divided into representative districts, in the manner therein prescribed.

"To the Honourarable the Council & the Honourable the House of Representatives for the Colony of the Massachusetts-Bay in general Court Assembled April 1776. —

The Subscribers delegated, by the several Towns in the County of Essex to our Names affixed, to represent them in County Convention, to be held at Ipswich in said County on the twenty fifth of this Instant April, for the Purposes appearing in this Memorial, beg Leave to Represent —

That, in the present Important Crisis, when every Member of the Cummunity must be anxiously solicitous for the public Weal, and when a new, and we trust a glorious Empire is forming on the Basis of Liberty, the present State of Representation in this Colony has gained the Attention of the Towns from whence we are delegated, & we are chosen to meet in a County Convention for the Purpose of endeavouring to procure one more equal, than is at present enjoyed —

When the natural Rights which Men possess are given up to Society, they ever expect to receive an equivalent, from the Benefits derived from a social State; Freemen submitting themselves to the Controul of others, and giving up the entire Right of Legislation and Taxation without reserving any Share to themselves, can receive no possible equivalent for the Concession; for they become absolute Slaves; But if they delegate a Number from themselves to conduct these important Articles of State, over whom they retain a suitable Controul, they enjoy a qualified Liberty, in many Respects preferable to what they relinquish —

If this Representation is equal, it is perfect; as far as it deviates from this Equality, so far it is imperfect; and approaches to that State of Slavery; & the want of a just Weight in Representation is an Evil nearly akin to being totally destitute of it — An Inequality of Representation has been justly esteem'd the Cause which has in a great Degree sapped the foundation of the once admired, but now tottering Fabric of the British Empire; and we fear that if a different Mode of Representation from the present, is not adopted in this Colony, our Constitution will not continue, to that late Period of Time, which the glowing Heart of every true American now anticipates —

In the early Period of our Settlement, when thirty or forty Families were first permitted to send each a Representative to the general Assembly, there can be no Doubt, but the proportionate Equality was duly adjusted; nor is there much more Doubt, but that, as just an equality took Place in the Representation of the several Corporations of the british Empire, when the Rule was first established there —

That striking, that unjust Disproportion, which fills us with Disgust & Detestation, has arisen in Britain, chiefly from the great Increase of Numbers and Wealth in some Places of that Empire and a Decrease in others, & continued from a blind Attachment to the Forms of Antiquity in some, and a wicked Disposition in others, who found an effectual Way to turn this Inequality to their own Advantage, tho' to the Destruction of the State —

We cannot realize that, your Honours, our wise political Fathers, have adverted to the present Inequality of Representation in this Colony, to the Growth of the Evil or to the fatal Consequences which will probably ensue from the Continuance of it — Each Town & District in the Colony is by some late Regulations permitted to send one Representative to the general Court, if such Town or District consists of thirty Freeholders, & other Inhabitants qualified to elect if of one hundred & twenty to send two — No Town is permitted to send more than two except the Town of Boston, which may send four — There are some Towns and Districts in the Colony in which there are between thirty and forty Freeholders & other Inhabitants qualified to elect, only; there are others besides Boston, in which there are more than five hundred; — The first of these may send one Representative; — The latter can send only two, if these Towns as to Property are to each other in the same respective Proportion, is it not clear to a Mathematical Demonstration, that the same Number of Inhabitants of equal Property in the one Town, have but an Eighth Part of the Weight in Representation with the other, & with what colourable Pretext we would decently enquire —

If we regard Property as the Rule of Representation, it will be found that there are certain thirty Towns & Districts in the Colony, which altogether pay to the publick Expence, a sum not equal to what is paid by one other single Town in this County; yet the former may have a Weight in the Legislative Body, fifteen Times as large as the latter; nay it will be found by Examination, that a Majority of Voices in the Assembly may be obtained from the Members of Towns, which pay not more than one fourth Part of the publick Tax —— The County of Essex, which we represent in Convention, pays more than one sixth part of the publick Tax; & they have not a Right to send one tenth Part of the Number of Representatives which may be by Law returned to the general Assembly; This County contains one or two thousand Polls more than any other County in the Colony — The Town of Ipswich is in Property (and we suppose in Numbers) nearly equal to the several Towns & Districts of Hadley, South Hadley, Amhirst, Granby, Deerfield, Greenfield, Shelburne & Conway (and more than equal to the like Number of other Places in the Colony) who are or may be represented in the general Court; Ipswich can send only two Members; the other Towns and Districts abovementioned may send ten Members at the least; can the Division of two Towns into eight, Towns and Districts furnish an Argument for the disproportionate Representation which of Consequence has taken Place; if the Property and Numbers remain the same, the Reason is to us Paradoxical —

If a new System of Government, or any material Alteration in the old is to be in the Contemplation of the next general Assembly; Is it not fitting that the whole Community should be equally concerned in adjusting this System? —

The many evil Consequences that will naturally & must inevitably arise from this Inequality of Representation, we trust, we need not attempt to mark out to a wise and free House of Americans; — the Delineation would be disagreeable as well as indecent — Nor would we arrogantly suggest, to your Honours, the Mode of Redress, we confide in your Wisdom and Justice, and if an Equality of Representation takes Place in the Colony, we shall be satisfied whether it has Respect to Numbers, to Property or to a Combination of both.

The amendments reported by this committee were accepted and the amended bill was sent to the Council for concurrence; whereupon the bill was passed to be enacted, the same day.

Chap. 27. The resolves of the Continental Congress extending the right of privateers and others, to capture and condemn merchant vessels of the enemy, not actually engaged in promoting hostilities, which made it necessary to enlarge the provisions of chapter 7, by the present act, are as follows: —

"Resolved, That the inhabitants of these colonies be permitted to fit out armed vessels to cruize on the enemies of these United Colonies.

Resolved, That all ships and other vessels, their tackle, apparel, and furniture, and all goods, wares, and merchandizes, belonging to any inhabitant or inhabitants of Great-Britain, taken on the high seas, or between high and low water mark, by any armed vessel, fitted out by any private person or persons, and to whom commissions shall be granted, and being libelled and prosecuted in any court erected for the trial of maritime affairs in any of these colonies, shall be deemed and adjudged to be lawful prize; and after deducting and paying the wages which the seamen and mariners on board of such captures as are merchant ships and vessels shall be entitled to, according to the terms of their contracts, until the time of the adjudication, shall be condemned to and for the use of the owner or owners, and the officers, marines, and mariners of such armed vessel, according to such rules and proportions as they shall agree on; provided always, that this resolution shall not extend to any vessel bringing settlers, arms, ammunition or warlike stores to and for the use of these colonies, or any of the inhabitants thereof, who are friends to the American cause, or to such warlike stores, or to the effects of such settlers.

Resolved, That all ships or vessels, with their tackle, apparel, and furniture, goods, wares, and merchandizes, belonging to any inhabitant of Great-Britain as aforesaid, which shall be taken by any of the vessels of war of these United Colonies, shall be deemed forfeited; one third, after deducting and paying the wages of seamen and mariners as aforesaid, to the officers and men on board, and two thirds to the use of the United Colonies.

Resolved, That all ships or vessels, with their tackle, apparel, and furniture, goods, wares, and merchandizes, belonging to any inhabitants of Great-Britain as aforesaid, which shall be taken by any vessel of war fitted out by and at the expence of any of the United Colonies, shall be deemed forfeited, and divided, after deducting and paying the wages of seamen and mariners as aforesaid, in such manner and proportions as the assembly or convention of such colony shall direct.

Resolved, That all vessels, with their tackle, apparel, and furniture, and cargoes, belonging to the inhabitants of Great-Britain, as aforesaid, and all vessels which may be employed in carrying supplies to the ministerial armies, which shall happen to be taken near the shores of any these colonies, by the people of the country, or detachments from the army, shall be deemed lawful prize; and the court of admiralty within the said colony is required on condemnation thereof, to adjudge that all charges and expences which may attend the capture and trial, be first paid out of the monies arising from the sales of the prize, and the remainder equally among all those, who shall have been actually engaged and employed in taking the said prize. Provided, that where any detachments of the army shall have been employed as aforesaid, their part of the prize-money, shall be distributed among them in proportion to the pay of the officers and soldiers so employed." — Journals of Congress: Mar. 23, 1776.

The subject of making such alterations and amendments in chapter 7 "as are necessary, and shall comport with the late resolves of Congress confiscating British property," was introduced in the Council, April 22d, and referred to a joint committee. This committee reported a bill, which had its second reading on the fourth of May, and two days later was read a third time and passed to be engrossed, and on the eighth was passed to be enacted.

Chap. 28. On the first of May, Mr. Sullivan, Major Hawley and Col. Orne were appointed a committee to bring in a bill empowering the treasurer to borrow fifty thousand pounds, on interest. On the fourth, this committee reported a bill which was then read a first time, and, on the sixth, it was read a second time, and recommitted. On the seventh, it was "read a second and third time, and passed to be engrossed." It was then sent up for concurrence, and, on the same day, it was "read, and passed to be enacted."

Supplementary note to chapter 18. It will have been noticed that the two classes of offences brought to the attention of the Assembly, in the cases of the persons whose arrest is mentioned in the note to this chapter, on p. 539, ante, were distinct, and that the title of the bill as first reported, did not embrace the offence of altering bills. The discovery of the original bill since that note was prepared, enables us to determine with certainty the nature of the amendments adopted.

Before the bill was sent up to the Council the word "difficulty" had been substituted for "impossibility" in the preamble; and in the fourth section, the word "information" had been changed to "indictment." In the first section, the clause requiring the payment of a fine had been interlined. There had been stricken out, between the third and fourth sections, a section empowering the court to mitigate the punishment required by the act, and also from the sixth section, immediately after the word "government," the following clause; viz., "and all bills emitted by any other government within the United Colonies, after the nineteenth day of April, seventeen hundred and seventy-five."

The amendments proposed by the Council were offered in that branch, April 3d, on the second reading of the bill. They provided for adding to the title, all after the word "credit," and inserted the words "and altering," after the word "forging." In the preamble, "altered" was inserted after "forged," in the twenty-first line, and "on" was changed to "of," in the next line. In the fourteenth line of the first section, "his" was changed to "the"; and the clause beginning in the seventeenth line, with "or shall suffer," and ending with "offence," was inserted.

The following resolve and order of the Continental Congress, are pertinent to this chapter, although no certain reference to either has been discovered in the legislative journals or state archives, previous to the passage of the bill.

"Whereas it appears to this Congress that several evil disposed persons, in order to obstruct and defeat the efforts of the United Colonies, in defence of their just rights, have attempted to depreciate the bills of credit emitted by the authority of this Congress,

Resolved, therefore, That if any person shall hereafter be so lost to all virtue and regard for his country, as to refuse to receive said bills in payment, or obstruct and discourage the currency or circulation thereof, and shall be duly convicted by the Committee of the city, county, or district, or in case of appeal from their decision, by the Assembly, Convention, Council or Committee of safety of the colony where he shall reside, such person shall be deemed, published, and treated as an enemy of his country, and precluded from all trade or intercourse with the inhabitants of these colonies.

Ordered, That the foregoing resolve be immediately published." — Journals of Congress: Jan. 11, 1776.

AN ACT IMPOWERING THE JUSTICES OF THE COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS OF THE PEACE IN THE SEVERAL COUNTIES IN THIS COLONY TO PERMIT ONE OR MORE INOCULATING HOSPITALS TO BE ERECTED IN EACH OF THE SAID COUNTIES.

WHEREAS the American army has of late been visited with the smallpox, and the inhabitants of the several towns in this colony are thereby greatly exposed to the infection of that malignant distemper, and as it has been found by long experience that such as have that distemper by inoculation have it in a very moderate degree, and therefore the permitting of hospitals, under proper regulations, to be erected for the purpose of inoculation may tend greatly to the preservation of the lives of the good people of this colony, —

AN ACT IMPOWERING THE JUSTICES OF THE COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS OF THE PEACE IN THE SEVERAL COUNTIES IN THIS COLONY TO PERMIT ONE OR MORE INOCULATING HOSPITALS TO BE ERECTED IN EACH OF THE SAID COUNTIES.

WHEREAS the American army has of late been visited with the small-pox, and the inhabitants of the several towns in this colony are thereby greatly exposed to the infection of that malignant distemper, and as it has been found by long experience that such as have that distemper by inoculation have it in a very moderate degree, and therefore the permitting of hospitals, under proper regulations, to be erected for the purpose of inoculation may tend greatly to the preservation of the lives of the good people of this colony, —

And whereas in this present session there was passed an act [i][e]ntitled "An Act [e][i]mpowering the justices of the court of general sessions of the peace in the several counties in this colony to permit one or more inoculating hospitals to be erected in each of the said counties," which act is mislaid, or lost, and which being somewhat variant from the foregoing act, it is proper it should be repealed; therefore, — 1776-77, chap. 5.

CHAPTER 8.

AN ACT TO PREVENT THE CONTINUANCE OF THE SMALL-POX IN THE TOWN OF BOSTON, AND TO LICENCE INOCULATION THERE FOR A LIMITTED TIME.

Whereas it appears to this general assembly that it has become imposs[a][i]ble to prevent a general spread of the small-pox in the town of Boston, in the county of Suffolk, and that it is of the utmost importance, considering the state of our public affairs, that the same distemper be carried through the said town with all poss[a][i]ble dispatch, — Preamble.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid,

[Sect. 2.] That the treasurer do forthwith send out his warrants, directed to the selectmen or assessors of each town or other place, within this state, that are taxed, requiring them, respectively, to assess the sum hereby set upon such town or other place, in manner following; that is to say, to assess all male polls above the age of sixteen years, within their respective towns or other places, or next adjoining to them, belonging to no other town or place, including negroes and molattoes (and such of these that are under the government of a master or mistress, to be taxed to the said master or mistress, respectively, in the same manner as minors and apprentices are taxed), at nine shillings; and proportionably in assessing the additional sums paid out of the treasury to the representatives, for their travel and attendance aforesaid (excepting the president, fellows, professors, tutors, librarian and students of Harvard College, who have their usual residence there, and settled ministers of the gospel, who are hereby exempted, as well from being taxed for their polls, as their estates being on their own hands, and under their actual management and improvement, and in the parishes where they are settled; as also the estate belonging to Harvard College); and other persons, if such there be, who, thro'[ugh] age, infirmity or extreme poverty, in the judg[e]ment of the assessors, are not able to pay towards public charges, they may exempt their polls or estate[s], or abate part of what they are set at, as they on their oaths shall think to be just and equitable.

[SECT. 4.] And the treasurer for the time being, on receipt of such certificate, is hereby impowered and ordered to issue forth his warrants to the collector or collectors, constable or constables, of such town or other place, requiring him or them, respectively, to collect the whole of each respective sum assessed on each particular person, and to pay in their collection, and to issue their accounts of the whole, at or before the first day of May next, which will be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventy-seven.

Provided, nevertheless, —

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 5.] That the several officers and soldiers now in the army shall be consider[e]'d as resident in the several towns to which they belonged at the time of their engaging in the army, their absence notwithstanding; and the assessors of the several towns and other places in this state shall consider such officers and soldiers as residents in such towns, and tax them accordingly: provided, also, that such as engaged in the Continental Army before the first day of May last, and have continued in the service until[l] this time, or have been regularly discharged, be, and they hereby are, exempted from their poll tax.

son or persons, according to their known ability in such town, in their sound judgment and discretion, their due proportion of this tax, as near as they can, agreeable to the rules herein given. And if any person or persons shall not bring in a list of their estates, as aforesaid, to the assessors, he or they so neglecting shall not be admitted to make application to the court of general sessions, for any abatement of the assessment laid on him or them.

[Sect. 7.] And if the person be not convicted of any falsehood in the list, by him presented, of the polls, rateable estate[s], or income by trade or faculty, business or employment, or otherwise, such list shall be a rule for such person's proportion to the tax which the assessors may not exceed.

CHAPTER 14.

AN ACT TO PREVENT MONOPOLY AND OPPRESSION.

Whereas the avari[t][c]ious condu[c]t of many persons, by daily adding to the now exorbitant price of every necessary and convenient article of life and encreasing the price of labour in general, unless a speedy and effectual stop be put thereto, will be attended with the most fatal and pernicious consequences, as it not only disheartens and disaffects the soldiers who have nobly entered into the service of their country for the support of the best of causes, and distresses the poorer part of the community by obliging them to give unreasonable prices for those things that are absolutely necessary to their very exist[a][e]nce, but will be also very injurious to the state in general; and whereas the committee lately empowered by this state to proceed to Providence in Rhode Island, and, in behalf of this state, there to meet with committees from the other New-England states, and among other things to confer upon measures necessary to prevent monopoly, and the high price of goods and the necessaries of life, and for regulation of vendues, have, in conjunction with the said committees, recommended that rates and prices be settled and affixed by an act of this state to the articles hereinafter enumerated, — Preamble.

Be it therefore enacted by the Council and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same,

How bounded.

[SECT. 1.] That the said plantation, called St. Georges, bounded as followeth; viz., beginning at the west side of the river called St. George's River, at the north side of William Palmer's land; thence, running a west-north-west course, to Moses Copelin's south line; and then, running upon said line, a west course, until it strikes Waldoboro'-[ugh] line to the South Pond; and from thence, along said line to West Pond; then running along said line until it reaches the township of the Hon.[orable] J[ohn][m]. Taylor, Esq[r]. ; then, running an east course, upon said Taylor's line, about six miles and an-half on the line of said township, until it comes to Camden line; and thence, on said Camden line, south-east and by south, about two miles and a-half; and from thence, taking a bend, south-south-west course, about five miles and one-half of a mile, to the old saw-mill; and from thence, down said river, as the shore is, to the old fort; and then, crossing said St. George's River, to Watson's Point; and then, running down the river, as the shore is, to said William Palmer's line, being the first bounds mentioned, — be, and it hereby is, erected into a town by the name of Warren; and that the inhabitants thereof be, and they hereby are, invested with all the powers, priviledges, and immunities which the inhabitants of towns within this state do, or may, by law, enjoy.

CHAPTER 18.

AN ACT FOR DISCONTINUING THE NAME OF A TOWN, IN THE COUNTY OF WORCESTER, LATELY INCORPORATED BY THE NAME OF HUTCHINSON, AND CALLING THE SAME BARRÉ.

Preamble.

WHEREAS the inhabitants of the town of Hutchinson have, by their petition, represented to this court that in June, 1774, when the said town was incorporated, General Gage, the then governor, gave it the name of Hutchinson, in honor to, and to perpetuate the memory of, Thomas Hutchinson, his immediate predecessor in the chair of government, whom they justly stile the well-known enemy of the natural and stipulated rights of America; and that at a town meeting, notified for that purpose, they voted unanimously to petition and accordingly have petitioned the general court, that the name of the said town might be altered, and that it might no longer bear the disgraceful name of Hutchinson; and whereas there is a moral fitness that traitors and par[r]icides, especially such as have remarkably distinguish[e]'d themselves in that odious character, and have long laboured to deprive their native country of its most valuable rights and privile[d]ges, and to destroy every constitutional guard against the evils of an all-inslaving despotism, should be held up to public view in their true characters, to be execrated by mankind, and that there should remain no other memorials of them than such as will transmit their names with infamy to posterity; and whereas the said Thomas Hutchinson, contrary to every obligation of duty and gratitude to this, his native country, which raised him from private life to the highest and most lucrative offices in the government, has acted towards her the part of a traitor and par[r]icide, as above described, which has been clearly manifested to the world by his letters lately published; and by his having thus acted it has become fit and just that every honorable memorial of him should be obliterated and cease; therefore, —

Be it enacted by the Council and House of Representatives of the State of Massachusetts Bay, in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same,

That the land lying in the county of Worcester, formerly called Rutland District, and in June, 1774, incorporated into a town by the name of Hutchinson, shall no longer bear that name, but henceforth shall be called and known by the name of Barré, the aforesaid incorporating act notwithstanding; and all officers in the said town shall hold and exercise their offices, respectively, in the same manner as they would have done had not the name of the said town been altered. Whereas the reasons assigned in the said act for altering the place of holding the said courts have since [of] the passing [of] the same ceased, —

Preamble. 1775-76, chap. 12.

Be it therefore enacted by the Council and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same,

And whereas the inferior court of common pleas and court of general sessions of the peace for the county of Suffolk were, on the first Tuesday of October last, opened and held at Braintree in said county, and then and there adjourned to the twelfth day of November, instant, then to be held at Braintree aforesaid, —

Be it enacted by the authority aforesaid,

Inferior court to be held at Boston, on the 12th day of November, 1776.

[SECT 2.] That the same inferior court of common pleas and court of general sessions of the peace, shall be held at Boston, in and for said county, on the said twelfth day of November, instant, such adjournment thereof to Braintree as aforesaid notwithstanding; and that all writs and processes, whatever, pending in the same courts, shall have day therein in like manner as they would have had if the same courts had been held upon said adjournment in Braintree.

All writs and processes returnable on the first Tuesday of January, A. D. 1777.

And all writs and processes made returnable into the inferior court of common pleas, or the court of general sessions of the peace, which, by virtue of the act above referred to, were appointed to be held at Dedham in said county, on the first Tuesday of January next, shall be returnable into or have day in the same courts, to be held at Boston aforesaid, on the said first Tuesday of January, A.D. 1777, and be heard, tr[y][i]ed, adjudged and determined therein in like manner as they would have been had the same courts been held at Dedham aforesaid on the said first Tuesday of January, A.D. 1777.

All writs and processes returnable into the superior court, on the third Tuesday of February, A. D. 1777.

AN ACT IN ADDITION TO AN ACT, PASSED IN THE YEAR SIXTEEN HUNDRED NINETY-FOUR, FOR THE RELIEF OF ID[I][E]OTS AND DISTRACTED PERSONS.

Preamble. 1693-94, chap. 18, § 1.

WHEREAS, in and by the said act provision is only made for appointing guardians for such as are naturally wanting of understanding, or shall by the providence of God fall into distraction, or become non compos mentis; and whereas there have been and are instances of persons being deaf and dumb from their nativity, who, altho'[ugh] they cannot with propriety be said either to be naturally wanting in understanding, or to come under the denomination[s] of ideots or of persons non compos mentis, yet are, by reason of their being deaf and dumb as aforesaid, incapacitated to make or execute a power of attorn[e]y, or any other instrument; and whereas, it sometimes becomes expedient to have guardians also appointed for the children of id[i][e]ots or persons non compos mentis, or deaf and dumb as aforesaid, who are incapable of taking due care of the support and education of their children, and no provision is by law made for any of the said cases, —

Be it therefore enacted by the Council and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same,

[Sect. 1.] That the judges of probate, in their respective counties, within this state, be and hereby are fully authorised and impowered to appoint guardians to persons deaf and dumb from their nativity, and to such others as from a defect in the organs of their body are incapacitated to take care of their estates, in the same way and manner as they now are by law impowered to appoint guardians to id[i][e]ots and distracted persons; and also to appoint guardians for the children of id[i][e]ots, or of persons non compos mentis, or deaf and dumb, in the lifetime of their parents

CHAPTER 21.

AN ACT FOR PROVIDING A REINFORCEMENT TO THE AMERICAN ARMY.

Whereas the state of our public affairs claims our most serious attention, and while our inveterate enemies are us[e]ing their utmost efforts to subjugate us not only to an arbitrary, but ignominious, government in which our task-masters may be those tools of power whom no laws could deter from the most flagitious crimes, and who have been ready at all times to sacrifice their country to their own emolument, it obviously becomes the duty of this assembly to make every possible provision against so great a calamity; and whereas the time for which a part of the militia of this state is engaged to serve as a reinforcement to the Continental Army is near expiring, and it is apprehended that another reinforcement may be necessary, when a movement of the whole militia would be both needless and impracticable, this court, in faithfulness to this state, has, therefore, thought proper to point out and establish the following method for determining what persons shall hold themselves in readiness to march first on this occasion, —

Preamble.

And it is enacted by the Council and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same,

[Sect. 1.] That no rank or station in life, place, employment or office, except as is hereafter excepted, shall excuse or exempt any person from serving in arms for the defence of his country, either by himself, or some able-bodied, effective man in his stead, or, in case of his neglect or refusal, from paying the fine hereinafter required: provided, nevertheless, that those persons who had, before the nineteenth day of April, 1775, been by law deemed to be of the denomination of Christians called Quakers, settled ministers of the gospel, the president, professors, tutors, librarian and undergraduates of Harvard Colle[d]ge, Indians, negroes and molatoes, shall not be held to take up arms, or procure any person to do it in their room; and also that four men to each of the powder mills in Stoughton and Andover be in like manner exempted.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid,

One fourth part of the militia to be raised.

[SECT. 2.] That one quarter part of all the able-bodied, male, persons within this state, and not in actual military service, and pay, for the defence of this or the American States, from sixteen years of age, and upward, excepting as aforesaid, and excepting the inhabitants of all such places as l[y][i]e to the eastward of Camden, so called, in the county of Lincoln, shall, either by voluntary inlistment, lot, or dra[f][ugh]t as is hereinafter provided, be appointed and held in readiness, armed and equipped with a good gun and bayonet, or, in the room of a bayonet, with a tomahawk, cutting-sword or hatchet, also with a cartridge-box, a blanket and knapsack, to march at a minute's warning, to serve for a term not exceeding three months from the time of their march from home, within and for the defence of any of the United States, when they shall be called out to reinforce the Continental Army, by the general court, or, in the recess thereof, by the council, and under the command of such general officer or officers as the general court, or, in its recess, the council, shall appoint.

Their equipment.

To serve for three months from their marching from home.

Selectmen to cause them to be marched.

[SECT. 3.] And that the commission[e]'d officers of the militia in each town in this state, shall, immediately upon their receiving this act, cause all the male persons usually residing therein, from sixteen years of age and upward[s], except[ed] those hereinbefore excepted, (and where there are no such officers in any town, the selectmen thereof shall cause them) to be muster[e]'d; and said militia officers, where there are such, in conjunction with the selectmen and committees of correspond[a][e]nce, etc., of such town[s] shall, by voluntary inlistment, lot, or dra[f][ugh]t, as to them, or the major part of them, shall appear equitable and just, cause one quarter part of all said male persons (not exempting themselves or any other persons but such as are hereinbefore exempted) in this state, and not in actual military service, and pay, for the defence of this or the American States, to be appointed and held in readiness, and equipped as aforesaid, to serve as is above provided, having regard to services already done and performed.

Military officers, selectmen, etc., to make out a fair list of the names of persons appointed brigadiers of the county to which they belong;

[SECT. 4.] And the military officers, with the selectmen and committees as aforesaid, shall immediately make out a fair list of the names of the persons so appointed, either by inlistment, lot or dra[f][ugh]t, and deliver the same, as soon as may be, to the brigadier of the county to which they belong, or, in his absence, to the next commanding officer in the brigade then in the county, who shall, as soon as such list is deliver[e]'d to him, with the advice of the field officers of such brigade, form that part of the militia which shall be so appointed, as aforesaid, within his county, into companies, as near as may be of the number of sixty-eight men (including non-commission[e]'d officers) to a company; and shall appoint, of the militia officers of such brigade, proper officers to lead them according to the rank such officers now hold; and shall form such companies into battalions, appointing proper field officers, of the standing militia, to command them, according to the rank such officers now hold in the militia, making as near as may be ten companies to a battalion; and make return to the council of the number of men, and the names of the officers, and their several ranks, who may be drafted, inlisted or appointed in consequence of this act, as soon as the same can possibly by them be ascertained.

And it is further enacted,

Selectmen to procure teams to carry baggage, and pay the soldiers' travel.

[Sect. 5.] That when the said persons so appointed are ordered to march, the selectmen of each town shall procure, by impressment or otherwise, necessary teams and waggons to carry their baggage; and shall also pay each officer and soldier twopence per mile for every mile's travel, from their several places of abode to the place or places of their destination as appointed by the general court, or, in the recess thereof, by the council; and also provide for them sufficient k[i][e]ttles, bottles or canteens; and shall lay their accounts thereof before the general court, with proper receipts, for allowance and payment.

And in order to enable the selectmen to perform and observe the prece[e]ding clause, in case they cannot otherwise procure the money needed for the purposes aforesaid, —

It is enacted,

Selectmen enabled to pay mileage and teamage:

[Sect. 6.] That they shall, as soon as the said quarter part of the male persons within their respective towns are appointed as aforesaid, return an account of the numbers so appointed, to the council, who shall make out their warrant, in favo[u]r of such selectmen, upon the treasury of this state, for a sum sufficient to enable such selectmen to pay the persons so appointed their mileage from the places of their abode to the place of their destination, and also for a sum sufficient to enable such selectmen to procure teams and waggons to carry their baggage; allowing one team to each company of men: the said selectmen to be accountable to the general court for the sums they shall respectively receive.

And it is further enacted,

Establishment for officers and men.

[Sect. 7.] That the persons so appointed, after they are ordered to march, shall be under the same regulations as are provided for the Continental Army, and receive wages, for every calendar month, according to the following establishment; viz., —

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid,

Empowering the selectmen, and committees of correspondence, to muster the men.

[Sect. 8.] That in each town or place where there shall have been a neglect in the appointment of one of those orders; viz., of military officers, selectmen or committees of correspond[a][e]nce, or of any two of those orders, such and so many of them as shall be in any town or place, shall have all the power with respect to mustering and appointing the men as aforesaid, as the military officers, committees and selectmen jointly have, and shall be held in such case, respectively, to execute this act under the same penalty as is herein provided against them in case of the joint neglect of them all.

To empower the selectmen to impress arms.

[Sect. 9.] And the selectmen of each town are also impowered and directed to impress arms for such persons as shall be appointed as aforesaid, and are unable to procure them for themselves, and shall truly appraise the arms so impressed, and give the person or persons from whom they are taken, a receipt therefor; and said receipt shall express and certify the sum such arms are appraised at, to the intent that the owner or owners may, if they please, receive pay for them out of the treasury of this state, by warrant from the council; but if the owners of such arms shall choose to have a return thereof, after the person for whose use such arms were taken shall return from the campaign, they shall be intitled to receive for the hire of each gun, the sum of four shillings; and in case of such arms being lost, the owners shall be paid therefor according to the appraisement of the same, deducting any sum that may have been paid for the hire thereof; and if any soldier to whose use such arms are impressed, shall wilfully dispose of, or negligently lose, them, he shall have the sum such arms are appraised at, deducted from his wages; and the treasurer shall not pay any non-commission[e]'d officer or soldier his wages for his service until he shall produce a certificate from the selectmen of the town (or committee of correspond[a][e]nce, etc., of any place not incorporated), expressing either that he found his own arms, or that the arms delivered him by such selectmen have been returned by him, or were unavoidably lost.

And it is further enacted,

Penalty for military officers refusing to do their duty:

[SECT. 10.] That if any military officer, not having reasonable excuse, shall refuse or neglect strictly to perform the duties enjoined on him by this act, he shall pay a fine of twelve pounds, and be reduced to the ranks in the militia; and that, if any selectman or committee man shall refuse or neglect to perform the duties enjoined on him by this act, he shall forfeit and pay the sum of twelve pounds, to be recovered, by any person who shall prosecute for the same, by action of debt in any court proper to try the same, one half of said fine to be for the use of said prosecutor, the other half to be lodged in the hands of the treasurer of the town or place where such offender lives, to be drawn out by the selectmen for the use of hiring or procuring men to serve for the defence of this or the United States of America.

— to be paid into the hands of the treasurer of the town where such offender resides.

And it is further enacted,

Soldier refusing to march.

[SECT. 11.] That if any person appointed as aforesaid, and being in person notified of such appointment, or by writing, left at his place of abode, sign[e]d by any of them who have appointed him, shall refuse or neglect, in twenty-four hours thereafter, to make a reasonable excuse, to the acceptance of said persons by whom he is so appointed, or to pay into their hands the sum of ten pounds, he shall be held and taken to be a soldier in the service for which he was so appointed; and if any such soldier neglect or refuse to march as aforesaid, when called out according to the mode prescribed in the militia act, unless he produces a discharge from or provides some able-bodied man in his stead, to the acceptance of the persons herein empowered to appoint him, he shall forfeit and pay into the hand of such persons the sum of twelve pounds, or, in default of such payment, the said persons are hereby impowered and directed to commit such delinquent, forthwith, until he pay said fine, to the common goal of the county, by mittimus of the tenor and form following, directed to such officer as is empowered to execute a warrant from a justice of the peace: —

Preamble

Whereas it appears to this court that the proprietors of Pearsontown, so called, in the county of Cumberland, were under a necessity, in the infancy of the settlement of that township, in time of an Indian war, and as the only means to prevent the breaking up the settlement, to take up a certain thirty-acre lot of land there, lying near where the fort, there, formerly stood, and near where the meeting-house, there, stands, — one side thereof adjoining the north-east side of the north-[we][ea]st road there, another side adjoining the south-east side of the north-[ea][we]st road, another side adjoining on lot No. 38, and the other side adjoining on lot No. 122, as the same is delineated on the plan of said township in custody of the proprietors' clerk, (originally laid out for a school lot), and to divide it into five-acre lots, to accommodate the settlers and bring them near together, and near to said fort; and that the persons placed upon those lots, by their labor and industry, in danger of their lives, clear[e]'d and brought the same into a state of cultivation and improvement, and, apprehending they had thereby acquired an equitable title thereto, have since sold and disposed of the same, and that now, through several mean conveyances, twenty acres, the south-west part of said thirty-acre lot, are claimed, by purchase, by Benja[min] Titcomb of Falmouth, in the county of Cumberland, gentleman, and the other ten acres thereof, by David Richardson of said Pearsontown, yeoman; and whereas it appears further, that the proprietors aforesaid, at a legal meeting on the fifteenth day of July, A.D. 1776, voted and granted other lands for the use of a school; viz., three thirty-acre lots there, numbered, on said plan, one hundred twenty-nine, one hundred [and] thirty-four and one hundred thirty-five; a strip of land there, containing thirty acres, more or less, lying between the hundred-acre lot, in the first division of hundred-acre lots, numbered seventy-one, and the two thirty-acre lots numbered one hundred and thirty-three, and one hundred and forty; and another piece of land, containing fifty acres, more or less, bounded, south-westerly, by Saco River; north-easterly, by the hundred-acre lot, in the first division of hundred-acre lots, numbered seventy-nine; south-easterly, by the hundred-acre lot numbered seventy-seven; and north-westerly, by the hundred-acre lot numbered ninety-eight; together with, and in addition to, the thirty-acre lot numbered thirty-seven, granted for the same purpose, March 31st, 1767, in lieu of said thirty acres originally laid out for a school lot as aforesaid, and as an equivalent for the same; and it appearing, also, that the inhabitants of said township are fully satisfied and contented with said equivalent lands, and they, together with said proprietors, having requested that the same may be confirmed to said inhabitants, forever, for the support of a school, agreeable to the true intent and meaning of the reservation in the original grant of the township, in lieu of said thirty acres originally laid out for that purpose as aforesaid; and that said Benjamin Titcomb's and David Richardson's titles, respectively, to the same thirty acres be confirmed to them, their heirs and assigns, —

Be it therefore enacted by the Council and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, Benjamin Titcomb's title.

That said Benjamin Titcomb's title to said twenty acres, part of said thirty-acre lot originally laid out for a school lot, be and the same hereby is established and confirmed to him, his heirs and assigns, forever; and that he and they be, and they hereby are, quieted in the peaceable possession thereof; and that said David Richardson's title to the remainder of the said thirty acres be and the same hereby is established and confirmed, to him, his heirs and assigns, forever; and that he and they be, and they hereby are, quieted in the peaceable possession thereof; and that said several parcels of land, granted as an equivalent as aforesaid, be, and they hereby are, granted and confirmed to the inhabitants of said township, for the time being, forever, for the purpose of supporting a school or schools there, agreeable to the true intent and meaning of the reservation in the original grant of said township. CHAPTER 46.

AN ACT IN ADDITION TO, AND FOR AMENDING AND MORE EFFECTUALLY CARRYING INTO EXECUTION, AN ACT INTITLED "AN ACT TO PREVENT MONOPOLY AND OPPRESSION," MADE IN THE PRESENT YEAR.

Preamble. 1776-77, chap. 14.

WHEREAS it appears that the prices at which sundry articles are fixed in the act to prevent monopoly and oppression are not adequate to the expence which will hereafter probably be incurred in procuring such articles. —

Be it therefore enacted by the Council and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same,

Selectmen and committees to settle and affix, in their several towns, once in two months, the price of farming labor, etc., and post up the same in some public place in their respective towns.

[SECT. 1.] That the selectmen and committees of correspondence, &c., of the several towns in this state, be, and they are hereby, impowered to settle and affix, in their respective towns, once in two months, during the continuance of this act, the price of farming and other labour, the price at which poultry, flour, and iron, either imported by land or water into such town, or manufactured therein, may be sold for, having respect to the quality of such flour and iron; and that said selectmen and committees cause the prices by them affixed and settled for said articles, to be posted up in some public place or places in their respective towns, and six days at least before such prices are to take effect; and that the price of the several kinds of smith's work be set by the selectmen and committees of the several towns in this state, as the price affixed by them to iron may, in their opinion, make it necessary; and also the prices beyond which innholders may not exceed, in disposing of mixed liquors to travellers and others, in their respective towns.

Committees vested with all the powers, in case.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid,

These extraordinary powers to be used in cases of the last necessity.

[SECT. 4.] That the powers and authorities by the last prece[e]ding paragraph granted to selectmen and committees, can only be justified in cases wherein the very existence of the community is depending; and must, whenever adopted, be, in its nature, short and temporary, and cannot, with any propriety consistent with the preservation of the common rights of men, be adopted but only in cases wherein the avarice and wickedness of a few endanger the ruin and destruction of the state; and therefore that this instance shall not, at any time hereafter, be drawn into precedent, excepting in cases of like necessity.

Provision made in case the articles applied for are not the property of the possessor.

[SECT. 5.] That if the possessor of any store, warehouse, &c., who may be requested to open the same, or either of them, by the selectmen or committee, as in the case before mentioned, shall, upon opening the store, warehouse, &c., assert that the whole or any part of the said enumerated articles therein contained, are the property of the United States, or any of them, then the said selectmen and committees shall stay all further procedure thereon; and if the possessor of such store, warehouse, &c., shall, upon opening the same, declare that the whole or any part of the said enumerated articles contained, are the property of any other person, and shall declare to whom they belong, then the selectmen and committee shall stay all further procedure on the articles asserted to be the property of another, till they shall, in person or by writing, apply to the person or persons thus declared to be the owner of such articles, representing that they are wanted for the present consumption of the inhabitants, and requesting the sale thereof; and if the person thus applied to, being the owner thereof, after receiving such request, shall neglect or refuse, in a reasonable time, in the judgment of a major part of the selectmen and committee of the town where the articles are, to give licence for the sale of such articles at the prices stated in the said act, then the selectmen, or committee aforesaid, shall proceed as is before directed where the possessor refused to sell his own goods; and in case the owner of said articles is not to be found, the selectmen, or committee aforesaid, shall give notice in the public newspapers, three weeks successively, enumerating the articles, mentioning the place where they are deposited, that they are wanted for the present use and consumption of the inhabitants, and calling on the owner thereof forthwith to sell them himself, or to authorize some other person to sell them, at the prices fixed by said act; and in case no person or persons shall appear, authorized to sell said articles, in a reasonable time after such adverti[z][s]ement, in the judgment of the major part of the aforesaid selectmen or committee, then they shall apply to some justice of the peace for the same county, for a warrant to take the same, and proceed thereon as is hereinbefore directed; and after paying such charges as in the former act are mentioned, and the cost of adverti[z][s]ing, the selectmen, or committee aforesaid, shall pay the overplus into the public treasury of this state, taking two receipts therefor, one whereof to be lodged in the secretary's office, there to remain till some person shall make it appear that he is legally intitled to the same, or till the further order of this court. And if the possessor of any store, warehouse, &c., who may be applied to as above described, shall knowingly give false intelligence concerning the property of any goods in his custody, he shall forfeit a sum equal to the value of the goods concerning which he shall give such false intelligence; one half thereof to the use of the prosecutor, the other half to the use of th[e][is] state, to be recovered in any court proper to try the same.

Penalty in case false information is given by the possessor of goods.

Be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid,

[Sect. 6.] That if any person, in selling any of the said enumerated articles, shall ask or receive any sum beyond that which is limitted by the first-mentioned act, or by this act, on pretence of any unusual consideration, or in any way or manner which has not been for several years last past commonly practi[s][e]ed between buyer and seller, or shall use any different method, in disposing thereof, from what has been commonly known and approved, so as to evade the plain meaning and intent of the said act, such person shall be deemed a transgressor, and suffer such penalties as are in the first-mentioned act provided.

No unusual method of sale to be made, to evade the plain intent of this or the former act.

Be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid,

[Sect. 7.] That when any vessel that is private property shall arrive into any harbour in this state, the owner or master shall lay before the selectmen, or committee, of the town where such vessel shall arrive, or a special committee of three or five of them, appointed by a major part for this purpose, a compleat manifest of all the goods on board; and shall not break bulk, for any other purpose, till the said selectmen or committee have returned, to the owner or master, a schedule of all the articles therein contained, which they have been requested by the continental agents, or the Board of War, to reserve for the army; and if any person shall break bulk before the said selectmen or committee shall have returned a schedule as aforesaid (provided the said schedule shall be returned within twenty-four hours), or if any article therein mentioned is otherwise disposed of than to the said selectmen or committee, or some person in their behalf, agreeable to the said acts, in such case the owner or master thereof shall forfeit a sum equal to that for which such article[s] shall have been [so] sold; and the remainder of the cargo shall be sold to such persons as have conformed themselves to the prices in these acts regulated. And whenever it shall be made to appear, to the satisfaction of the selectmen and committee of such town, that any person has, knowingly, violated the said act, the selectmen and committee shall keep a fair record of the names of all such persons, and give a true copy thereof to the owner or master of every cargo that shall arrive as aforesaid, directing him or them not to sell to any of those persons any article whatever until such violat[e][o]r[s] shall have made satisfaction for such his misconduct, and given assurance for his future observance to this and the former act, to the satisfaction of the selectmen and committee. And if any owner or master, or any person in their behalf, shall sell to any person who is borne on such copy, or such person as shall be knowingly employed by them, any article remaining of said cargo, he or they shall forfeit a sum equal to that for which every article shall be so sold.

Vessels importing goods not to break bulk until report is made to the selectmen, etc.

Notorious transgressors not allowed to purchase, unless.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid,

Persons to be chosen to see this act put in execution, and to prosecute the violators thereof.

[SECT. 8.] That there shall be elected, some time on or before the last day of June next, in each town and plantation within this state, three, five, or seven persons, who shall be under oath to prosecute all breaches of this act, and of the "act for preventing monopoly and oppression," which shall come to their knowledge, or of which they shall receive information; and each person so chosen shall execute said office until the annual March meeting in their respective towns, when other persons shall be chosen and sworn in their stead; and such persons shall afterwards be chosen, annually, during the continuance of said act; and any person chosen into said office, and refusing to serve therein, or to take said oath, shall forfeit and pay the sum of five pounds, to be recovered in like manner, and to the same use, that penalties for not serving in other town offices are to be recovered and applied; and the said committee shall be intitled to such proportion of the penalty recovered by any prosecution, as by either of said acts are given to the person who may prosecute for any breaches thereof; and when any person chosen to said office shall refuse to serve therein, the town to which he belongs, shall choose some other person in his place, and so as often as the case may require.

And be it further enacted,

Mode of conviction in certain cases.

[SECT. 9.] That when any person shall prosecute another for violating either of these acts, and other evidence cannot be had, in such case the prosecutor's oath shall be received as sufficient evidence, unless the adverse party shall offer, and actually swear that he is not chargeable with the fact alledged against him; in which case the person prosecuted, shall be admitted to the oath, and the prosecutor shall be denied. And in all prosecutions by indictment, of the grand jury, on this, or the former act, one-half the forfeiture shall enure to the county where the offence is committed, the other moiety to this state, and be paid to the treasury of the state and county respectively.

And be it further enacted,

Special matter in evidence may be given under the general issue.

[SECT. 10.] That when any action shall be brought against any person for proceeding agreeable to this act, he may plead the general issue, and give the special matter in evidence for his justification; and no person that has been guilty of a breach of the act to which this is made in addition, against whom no prosecution is already commenced, shall be prosecuted therefor, unless he or she shall, after the publication of this act, again violate or transgress this or the former act; and in all prosecutions already commenced, in case the persons prosecuted shall pay the prosecutor double the costs already arisen, the prosecutor shall surcease or discontinue all further proceedings in such prosecution.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid,

No execution to issue after June 15, unless oath be made.

[SECT. 11.] That no execution shall, after the fifteenth day of June next, be issued from the office of any clerk of any inferior court of common pleas, or of the superior court of judicature, &c., for any sum whatever, unless the plaintiff or plaintiffs sueing in his or their own right, and dwelling within this state, shall first take the following oath; viz., —

You, A. B., do, in presence of God, solemnly declare, that you have not, since the fifteenth day of June, 1777, wittingly and willingly, directly or indirectly, either by yourself, or any by, for, or under you, been concerned in selling any article enumerated in the "Act to prevent monopoly and oppression," at a higher price than is by the said acts limit[i]ed for such article, or by the selectmen or committees in pursuance thereof. So help you God. Form of the oath.

— which oath may be administred by any justice of the peace, or by the clerk of such court; and certificate thereof shall be made on such execution, by the clerk; and if any execution shall issue after the day aforesaid, without such certificate, the same shall be and hereby is declared to be void; and no licence shall be granted to, nor any recognizance taken from, any taverner, innholder, or retailer, by the justices of any of the courts of sessions within this state, after the day aforesaid, until[l] such taverner, innholder, or retailer shall have taken said oath, in the presence of the court, or a certificate of his having so done, from some justice of the peace, shall be presented to the court. The clerk of the court empowered to administer the oath. Retailers and innholders to be sworn before the granting license.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid,

[Sect. 12.] That this act, together with the act above mention[e]'d, intitled, "An Act to prevent monopoly and oppression," shall be and continue in force for the term of three years from the first day of January last, and no longer. [Passed May 10, 1777. 1776-77, chap. 14.

CHAPTER 47.

AN ACT TO PREVENT PERSONS GUILTY OF FORGING OR COUNTERFEITING THE NOTES OR BILLS OF CREDIT, OR ANY COIN, CURRENT IN THIS OR THE UNITED STATES, FROM DEFRAUDING THE PUBLIC, OR INDIVIDUALS, BY CONVEYING THEIR REAL ESTATES.

Whereas 'tis but just and reasonable that the estates, real as well as personal, of persons who have defrauded the public, or individuals, by issuing, forging, or counterfeiting the notes, certificates, or bills of credit of the United American States, or any of them, or any other species of money, or coin, current therein, should compensate the injury sustain[e]'d; and whereas some persons who may be guilty of the offences aforesaid, may, with design to defeat so reasonable a purpose, convey away their real estates, — Preamble.

Be it therefore enacted by the Council and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, [Sect. 1.] That no conveyance of any real estate, from any person that shall hereafter be convicted of issuing, forging, or counterfeiting the notes, certificates, or bills of credit of the United American States, or any of them, or any other species of money, or coin, current within the said United States, or any of them, shall be good or valid after the offence committed, upon which the offender may be convicted, unless the other estate of the person convicted of the offence aforesaid shall be fully adequate to make compensation to the public, and individuals, for such fraudulent practices; any law, usage, or custom to the contrary notwithstanding. No conveyance of real estate to be good after the offence committed.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid,

[Sect. 2.] That the estates of persons convicted of the offences aforesaid, shall be held liable to refund to this state any reward that Offenders' estates liable to refund the reward granted for their detection, before any other debt or damage, except the necessary cost of conviction.

may hereafter be paid, by virtue of the acts thereof, for detecting such offenders, before any other debt, damage, or demand, except the necessary cost and charges that may accrue or arise upon such conviction.

[SECT. 3.] This act to continue and be in force for the space of six months, and no longer; and that the same act may, at any time hereafter, be pleaded, notwithstanding it may have expired before the suit on which there may be occasion for its being so pleaded, is brought. [Passed May 10, 1777.

CHAPTER 48.

AN ACT FOR SECURING THIS AND THE OTHER UNITED STATES AGAINST THE DANGER TO WHICH THEY ARE EXPOSED BY THE INTERNAL ENEMIES THEREOF.

Preamble.

WHEREAS the enemies of this and the United American States are yet vigorously attempting to destroy the liberties, the peace, and happiness thereof, and it becoming the indispensable duty of the guardians of each state to exert every nerve to preserve them from impending ruin; and this court, considering that there are some within this state, who, from sordid motives, or from wicked and inveterate dispositions, are secretly endeavoring to counteract the united struggles now making for the preservation and establishment of American liberty, do judge it expedient that such persons should be prevented from uniting with, or aiding, the enemies aforesaid, in carrying into execution the plans adopted for the destruction of their libert[ie][y]s and privile[d]ges; do enact, —

And be it accordingly enacted by the Council and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same,

To empower the selectmen, or committee, to warn a meeting of their inhabitants.

[SECT. 1.] That the selectmen of each town, or the committee of each plantation, within this state, be and hereby are impowered and directed, imm[o][e]diately on r[o][e]ceipt hereof, to warn, in the usual manner, a meeting of their inhabitants, qualified by law to vote in town affairs, to chuse, by ballot, some person who is firmly attached to the American cause, to procure and lay before the court hereafter described, the evidence that may be had of the inimical dispositions towards this or any of the United States, of any inhabitant of such town who shall be charged by the freeholders and other inhabitants of said town, in manner hereafter mention[e]'d, of being a person whose residence in this state is dangerous to the public peace or safety.

Selectmen to lay before the town a list of disaffected persons.

[SECT. 2.] And the selectmen, at such meeting, shall lay before the town a list of all such persons, belonging to their town, as they shall know or believe have been endeavouring, since the 19th of April, 1775, to counteract the united struggles of this and the United States, for the preservation of their liberties and priviledges.

Others to be added, or struck out, by a vote.

[SECT. 3.] And if any freeholder, or other person, qualified to vote in said meeting, shall move to have the name of any other person, residing in such town, whom he shall conclude to be of the disposition aforesaid, added to said list, and the motion shall be seconded, the question shall be put by the moderator of said meeting; and if there shall appear a majority of the voters present at said meeting, in favo[u]r of said motion, the name of such person shall be, by the town clerk, added to such list accordingly, or the name of any person inserted in said list may, by a major vote, in the same manner, be struck therefrom.

List to be delivered to two justices, quorum unus.

[SECT. 4.] And the town clerk shall deliver such list to two or more justices of the peace for said county, quorum unus; and the said justices are hereby required, immediately on receipt on such list, to issue their warrant for apprehending and securing the suspected persons named in said list, so that they may be had before them, and such other justices of the peace of the same county as may attend the trial, at a special session of the peace to be held for that purpose (unless, when any person shall be charged with being guilty of treason, murder, or an[y] other crime which, by the laws of this state, is to be punished with death; in which case, the said justices shall cause them to be retained in custody, according to the former laws, and not proceed with them according to this act, until[l] after they shall be acquitted of such charge), which warrant shall be served seven days at least before the day fixed upon by the said justices for holding the court; and the said justices shall at the same time make out an order to the clerk of the court of sessions, forthwith to issue a venire facias, to the constables of such towns as they shall direct, for returning and summoning as many jur[e][o]rs — to be appointed in the manner petit jurors for the superio[u]r court are appointed, and to be drawn from the same box — as shall make up a full pan[a][e]l of twelve, to attend before them at the time and place they shall appoint for hearing the charge. And in case the jurors appointed and summoned as aforesaid, should not attend to make up the full number of twelve, or a sufficient objection should be made to any of the jurors returned, in the opinion of the justices, to prevent his or their judging on the accusation, in case seven of the original jurors returned remain, then the said justices shall order the sheriff, deputy sher[r]iff, or constable, attending, to return as many others of the bystanders, being freeholders in said county, as shall make up the number of twelve; which jury shall be sworn to return a true verdi[c]t, according to the evidence, upon the charge exhibited against the respondent for being inimical to the interest of this and the American States, without favo[u]r, envy, partiality, or malice; and in case the jury aforesaid, after hearing the charges against the accused, and the evidence adduced to support it, as well as the defence made by the accused, and such evidence as may be produced in his favo[u]r, shall return their verdi[c]t that the accused person now is so inimically disposed towards this and the other United States of America, that his further residence in this state is dangerous to the public peace and safety, then the said justices shall, by warrant directed to some proper officer, cause said person or persons to be immediately sent to the Board of War of this state, to be by them sent on board a guard-ship, which they are hereby impowered and directed to provide for that purpose, or otherwise secure as they shall think proper, until[l] the said Board of War can transport such persons off the continent to some part of the West Indi[a][e]s, or Europe, — those who are able, at their own expence, and others, at the expence of this state.

Mode of trial.

Tallies to be put on the jury, in case.

To be sworn.

Delinquents to be sent to the Board of War to be transported

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid,

Justices to proceed upon complaint, if they

rum, that any person within the county whereof they are justices, is evilly disposed to this state, or any of the United States of America, such the justices shall, if they see fit, have full power to issue their warrant to apprehend such evilly disposed person, and to bring him to tr[i][y]al, and deal with him in the manner hereinbefore pointed out for the tr[i][a]al of those whose name shall be exhibited, in a list, by any selectmen, as is provided by this act.

And it is further enacted by the authority aforesaid,

Penalty for returning after transportation.

[SECT. 6.] That if any person transported as aforesaid shall, voluntar[il]y, afterwards, during the continuance of the present war, return to this state, without liberty first had and obtained from the general court, he shall, on conviction thereof before the superio[u]r court of judicature, court of assize and general goal delivery, be adjudged guilty of felony, without benefit of clergy.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid,

Persons transported may carry off their personal estate, in case.

[SECT. 7.] That such persons as may be transported, as aforesaid, shall be indulged to carry off, at their own expence, their mon[ey][ie]s and all other personal estate they are possessed of, and not prohibited, in case they shall carry their families with them; deducting so much as shall be sufficient to pay their just debts; and such money or effects as shall appear, to the Board of War, to belong to other persons. And such as shall leave their families within this state, shall be allowed to carry off no more money or goods than shall be, by the Board of War, judged necessary for their immediate support; and any conveyance of real estate by any person, after he shall be inserted in such list as aforesaid, without the approbation or allowance of the general court, shall be and hereby is declared null and void, unless the person so making the conveyance shall be, on tr[i][y]al, acquitted of the charge brought against him. And the expence arising on the tr[i][a]al of any person in consequence of this act, shall be paid out of the county treasury, by order of the court of general sessions of the peace; the fees to be tax[e]'d, as in other cases, in the sessions: and the court aforesaid, in case they cannot finish the tr[i][y]al on the day assigned therefor, may adjourn, from day to day, till the tr[i][y]al sh[i][a]ll be finished.

Real estate not to be conveyed after persons are accused, unless.

Fees to be paid by the county.

[SECT. 8.] This act to be in force till the first day of January next, and no longer. [Passed May 10, 1777.

NOTES. — The sittings of the General Court this year were interrupted by four adjournments and two prorogations. Of course, the sitting after the prorogation of July 13th, was a new session, and the acts previously passed are properly classed as of the first session. The second session began August 28, and was adjourned, on the eighteenth of September, to Oct. 9. On the ninth of November the General Court was again adjourned, to meet, on the twelfth, at Boston, — which place, though evacuated by the king's forces as early as the seventeenth of March, had, up to this time, been considered unsafe on account of the small-pox which prevailed there, — and on the eleventh of December, it was adjourned to the 24th, and again, on the eighth of February, to March 5, 1777; and it was prorogued on the tenth of May. The acts passed between Aug. 28 and Sept. 18, were signed on the day last named, which circumstance seems to indicate that these two dates were supposed, by the Legislature, to include a separate session, notwithstanding it was not ended by prorogation. In like manner, all the acts passed between Oct. 9, 1776, and Feb. 8, 1777, were signed on the day last named, and would, therefore, appear to have been considered the work of a single, distinct session, although that session was ended by adjournment, merely. It is true that in the original impression, these acts are not grouped according to this division; but neither is the second session distinguished by a separate heading, although it was held after a prorogation.

If it be thought to impair the practical usefulness of the system of division here followed, that the rule of parliamentary law respecting the operation of prorogations and adjournments, upon the business of the Legislature has not invariably governed the classification of these acts, the fault must be attributed, chiefly, to the difficulty of ascertaining, with absolute certainty, in every case, whether the sitting was ended by prorogation or adjournment; and the system of grouping the acts heretofore followed (see vol. II., p. 667, note) has therefore been adhered to as most convenient and most probably in accordance with the intention of the Legislature; and the attempt to ascertain beyond question what prorogations were made has been abandoned as useless.

It may be well to repeat, here, that the chapters are enumerated in the order observed in the original impression, rather than chronologically. The only exceptions are the acts not previously printed, or those which, like the tax acts, for instance, were printed separately.

All the engrossed bills which were passed to be enacted this year, are preserved, but none were written on parchment. All were signed by fifteen or more of the Council, except chapter 5, which was signed by eleven only; chapter 13, by seven; chapter 18, by thirteen; chapter 31, by six; chapter 36, by eight, and chapter 38, by fourteen. Sufficient blank space seems to have been purposely left on each engrossment, for the signatures of all the Council, and though the charter confers no efficacy upon the assent of a less number than a majority of the Council, no question appears to have been raised as to the regularity and validity of the defective acts; and in the record of the assents, the journals make no discrimination between the acts.

Towards the end of the next Legislature, a resolve was passed, in concurrence, conferring full authority, in this respect, upon any seven members of the Council, for the time being, on account of the difficulty of securing the attendance of a majority of the board, by reason of the prevalence of the small-pox in Boston and the adjacent towns (see notes to 1777–78, post); but this appears to have been the first adoption of such a rule.

No formal notification of the signing of the Declaration of Independence appears to have reached Boston until after the close of the first session of the General Court, although, before the prorogation, undoubtedly, that event was generally understood to have taken place. Circulars publishing the Declaration, were sent out by order of the Continental Congress, on the fifth of July, and a rumor that the Declaration had been made had reached Worcester, and was published in the "Worcester Spy, or American Oracle of Liberty," on the tenth. Hancock, on the 6th of July, and Washington, on the 7th, had written to the General Court, enclosing each a copy of the Declaration; but no action thereupon was taken by that body, or by the Council, until two days after the prorogation.

The proceedings which then took place in the Council were as follows: —

"July 15, 1776. On Motion Ordered, that John Winthrop, William Phillips & Francis Dana Esq^rs be a Com̄ittee to take into Consideration, what Way manner & form the Declaration of y^e Hon^ble Continental Congress should be made publick" — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 19, p. 78.

The "Boston Gazette and Country Journal" of Monday, July 22, 1776, gives the following report of the ceremony: —

"Thursday last, pursuant to the Orders of the honorable Council, was proclaimed, from the Balcony of the State House in Boston; the DECLARATION of the AMERICAN CONGRESS, absolving the United Colonies from their Allegiance to the British Crown, and declaring them FREE and INDEPENDENT STATES. There were present on the Occasion, in the Council-Chamber, the Committee of Council, a Number of the honorable House of Representatives, the Magistrates, Ministers, Selectmen, and other Gentlemen of Boston and the neighbouring Towns; also the Commission Officers of the Continental Regiments stationed in Boston, and other Officers. Two of those Regiments were under Arms in Kingstreet, formed into three Lines on the North Side of the Street, and in thirteen Divisions; and a Detachment from the Massachusetts Regiment of Artillery, with two Pieces of Cannon was on their Right Wing. At One o'Clock the Declaration was proclaimed by the Sheriff of the County of Suffolk, which was received with great Joy, expressed by three Huzzas from a great Concourse of People assembled on the Occasion. After which, on a Signal given, Thirteen Pieces of Cannon were fired at the Fort on Fort-Hill the Forts at Dorchester Neck, the Castle, Nantasket, and Point Alderton, likewise discharged their Cannon: Then the Detachment of Artillery fired their Cannon thirteen Times, which was followed by the two Regiments giving their Fire from the thirteen Divisions in Succession These Firings corresponded to the Number of the American States United. The Ceremony was closed with a proper Collation to the Gentlemen in the Council Chamber; during which, the following Toasts were given by the President of the Council, and heartily pledged by the Company, viz.

Prosperity and Perpetuity to the United States of America.
The American Congress.
The General Court of the State of Massachusetts Bay.
GENERAL WASHINGTON, and Success to the Arms of the United States.
The downfall of Tyrants and Tyranny.
The universal Prevalence of Civil and Religious Liberty.
The Friends of the United States in all Quarters of the Globe.

The Bells of the Town were rung on the Occasion; and undissembled Festivity cheer'd and brighten'd every Face."

By the fifth of August the copies of the Declaration ordered to be printed were ready for distribution, and the deputy secretary thereupon sent the following notification to the sheriff of Suffolk County: —

"Council Chamber Aug^t 5^th 1776

Sir I am directed by the Hon: Committee of Council to Acquaint you that the Printed Declarations of Independency are on their Table & they Expect you will take proper care that they be distributed thro' this State as soon as may be — that Every town may have them publickly read, in each religious Assembly. In the Name & by Order of the Com^ttee of Council I am Sir your most hum^l Ser^t.

Sheriff Greenleaf JN^o AVERY D Secy." — Mass. Archives, vol. 195, p. 437.

When the General Court next assembled, on the 28th of August, the Council sent the following message to the House: —

"The important Period has at length arrived! The Honourable Congress have declared the united American Colonies Free and Independent States. — This Declaration we have ordered to be made public, agreeable to the Request of Congress, thro every Part of Massachusetts Bay; and we shall readily concur with you in expressing our Approbation of the Measure, and readiness to risque our Lives and Fortunes in Defence and support of it."* — Ibid., vol. 158, p. 43.

The following is an extract from the message of the House, in reply: —

"To The Hon^ble the Major Part of the council of y^e Massachusetts Bay. May it please your Honours —

The House of Representatives have given all due attention to y^e Message from your Honours of the 28^th instant & are desirous of expressing with a manly Fortitude their entire Satisfaction in y^e declaration of Independence made by y^e hon^ble Congress. & published by your Honours Order in this State They with great chearfulness congratulate y^e hon^ble Board on y^e very general approbation that Measure has met with thro all ranks of People in the united states of America, & are ready to Pledge their Fortunes Lives & sacred Honor to support it." — Ibid., p. 50.

On the fifth of September, the following order was passed in the House: —

"On a motion Ordered, That Mr. Sullivan, Major Hawley, Brigadier Palmer, Mr. Jackson and Mr. Anger be a committee to prepare an address to the Honorable Continental Congress, signifying the approbation of this Colony of their declaring the Colonies INDEPENDENT STATES, and the readiness of this Colony to support them therein; and to request that they would form a Confederation, and delineate the powers necessary to be held by that Honorable Assembly." — House Journal, p. 91.

The committee thus appointed received further instructions on the 12th, by which circumstance it would seem that they had not then reported; and as no record of the presentation of such an address as was ordered to be prepared has been found in the journals of the Continental Congress, it is believed that no report was made under the order.

The Assembly which thus recognized the independence of the province, and ratified the declaration proclaimed at Philadelphia, was composed of representatives chosen with full knowledge of the following proceedings of the previous Legislature, — the resolve with which they close having been published throughout the colony: —

"May 9, 1776. On Motion, Ordered, That Mr. Speaker, Major Hawley and Mr. Story, be a Committee to bring in a Resolve recommending the several Towns in the Colony to give Instructions to their Representatives, with respect to INDEPENDENCE.

The Committee appointed to bring in a Resolve, recommending the Towns to instruct their Representatives with Respect to Independency, reported. Read and accepted.

Resolved, That it be, and hereby is recommended to each Town in this Colony, who shall send a Member or Members to the next General Assembly, fully to possess him or them with their Sentiments relative to a Declaration of Independency of the United Colonies on Great-Britain, to be made by Congress, and to instruct them what Conduct they would have them observe with Regard to the next General Assembly's instructing the Delegates of this Colony on that Subject. Sent up for Concurrence.

* Dated Aug. 28, but presented to the House, Aug 29th.

Ordered, That Capt. Brown get the foregoing Resolve printed in Hand Bills, and sent to the several Towns in this Colony." — Ibid., pp. 263 and 269.

"May 10, 1776. On a Motion, Ordered, That a Message go to the honorable Board to know if they have passed on the Resolve of Yesterday, relating to requesting the Inhabitants of the several Towns to Instruct their Members to be chosen relating to Independency.

Samuel Holten, Esq; came down and informed the House that the Board had nonconcurred the same:

Thereupon Ordered, That the Secretary be directed to lay the said Resolve on the Table, which he did accordingly.

* * * * * * *

Resolved, As the Opinion of this House that the Inhabitants of each Town in this Colony, ought in full Meeting warned for that Purpose, to advise the Person or Persons who shall be chosen to Represent them in the next General Court, whether that if the honorable Congress should, for the Safety of the said Colonies, declare them Independent of the Kingdom of Great-Britain, they the said Inhabitants will solemnly engage with their Lives and Fortunes to Support the Congress in the Measure.

Ordered, That Mr. Cooper get the foregoing Resolve printed in the several News-Papers as soon as possible." — Ibid., pp. 274 and 276.

This resolve appeared in the "Boston Gazette," of May 10, and the "Worcester Spy," of May 18, signed by Samuel Freeman, speaker, and attested by William Story, clerk pro tempore.

And, on the third of July — the next day after the Continental Congress had voted in favor of independence, and the day before the Declaration had been prepared at Philadelphia — the following vote had been passed by the Assembly: —

"July 3, 1776. On motion, it was Voted, unanimously, That if the Honorable Continental Congress should think proper to declare the Colonies independent of the kingdom of Great-Britain, this House will approve of the measure." — Ibid., p. 58.

So that, at the beginning of the second session, there was no hesitation as to accepting all the consequences of complete separation from the mother country.

Although, in the acts, the word "state" was substituted for "colony," the latter word, by a singular oversight, continued to be used in the printed heading of the sessions for two years longer. The following vote and order* are all the proceedings that have been discovered relative to the adoption of the name of "state" instead of "colony." The resolve provided in the order does not appear to have been reported or passed.

"Sept. 10, 1776. Afternoon. On motion, That the House would determine whether the word Colony and State be used promiscuously in all the proceedings of this Court; the question was put, and it passed in the negative.

Ordered, That Mr Pitts, Mr. Ellis and Col. Bliss, be a committee to bring in a resolve to establish the use of the word 'State.'" — Ibid., p. 97.

Chap. 1. "June 5, 1776. On Motion, Ordered, That Mr. Partridge, Mr. Dix, Major Fuller, Col. Bliss and Mr. Hosmer, be a Committee to examine into the State of the Treasury, and to consider and report what further Sum is necessary to be emitted." — House Journal, p. 34.

"June 7, 1776. The Committee appointed to examine the State of the Treasury, and to report what further Sums are necessary to be emitted by this Colony, ask Leave to report as follows, viz. We find that the Treasury† has borrowed, on the Act lately made to enable him to borrow the Sum of fifty Thousand Pounds, ... £8,806 5*s.* 5*d.*
That there are Warrants on the Treasury for the sum of 9,000 0 0
That the advance Pay and Blankets of the three Regiments now raising in this Colony, will be about 5,000 0 0
That the Salt-Petre now in the Hands of our Committees and other Persons which is ready to be delivered, will amount to the Sum of . . 12,000 0 0
That the Pay and Subsistence of Sea-Coast Men, now due, is supposed to Amount to the Sum of 12,000 0 0
That there is due to Mr. Jackson, and others at Newbury-Port, for 18,190lb. of Powder, ... 5,457 0 0

£.52,263 5 5
Cash in the Treasury, ... 5,194 5 5

£.47,069 0 0

So that there appears to be Demands on the Treasurer for the Sum of forty-seven Thousand and sixty-nine Pounds paid, or to be paid immediately out of the aforesaid Sum of fifty Thousand Pounds ordered to be borrowed, and out of the outstanding Taxes due to the Colony, which are not appropriated to other Uses. And your Committee are of Opinion, that there be immediately emitted on the Credit of this Colony, a further Sum of one Hundred Thousand Pounds, to defray the Expences of this Colony for the current Year; all which is humbly submitted. Read and accepted, and thereupon Ordered, That the same Committee bring in a Bill for the Emission of one Hundred Thousand Pounds accordingly. On Motion, Ordered, That the Committee, previous to their bringing in a Bill, report what Denominations the Bills shall be of. Also, the Expence of the Impression thereof." — Ibid., p. 47.

On the 12th, Mr. Noyes was added to the committee, which, on the 13th, reported upon the denominations of the bills of credit. Their report was immediately accepted, and a bill was ordered to be brought in, accordingly. The same committee made a further report, on the 14th, "That Mr. Edes had agreed to take thirteen Pounds six Shillings and Eight Pence, less than three Farthings Old Tenor a Bill, and that it was thought best to have some device on each Bill, Voted, That it be left to the Direction of the Committee to act as they judge best." — Ibid., p. 84.

On the day last named the bill had its first and second reading, and on the next day it was read a third time, passed to be engrossed and sent up for concurrence.

On the 17th, the House passed an order for the printing of the bills of credit "as soon as the bill has passed the Honorable Board," and, on the 19th, the bill, not having been brought down, a message therefor was sent to the Council, whereupon it was carried down by Daniel Hopkins, Esq., and recommitted, for amendments, to Major Fuller, Mr. Pickering, Col. Brooks, Mr. Wood, and Mr. Story, who, on the same day, "reported several Amendments, which were agreed to by the House, and the Bill being read again, was sent up to the Honorable Board." — Ibid., p. 106.

The bill was amended, accordingly, and on the 21st, was passed to be enacted, and on the same day the committee appointed to contract for the printing of the bills, were ordered to exhibit to the House and Council a specimen thereof. The specimen which was exhibited in accordance with the order last mentioned was, on the 22d, ordered to be inspected by a committee consisting of Maj. Fuller, Mr. Pitts, Mr. Story, Mr. Mills, Mr. Wright, Brigadier Preble and Col. Robinson, who were ordered to sit forthwith and to report whether the bills of credit "are printed on a suitable type."

On the 26th, a committee was appointed to report to the House the number of persons proper to be appointed to sign and number the bills; and Messrs Chase and Codding were appointed to inspect the impression.

On the 27th, the following order* was passed: —

"In the House of Representatives. Order'd, That Abram Fuller Esq^r. Cap^t. Samuel Carleton, Stephen Hall tertius Esq^r. M^r. George Partridge, Jonathan Brown Esq^r. John Pitts Esq^r. M^r. Samuel Allyne Otis, Doctor Moses Gun, Tristram Dalton Esq^r., M^r. Abner Ellis, Joseph Nye Esq^r. of Harwich, Edward Wigglesworth Esq^r. Benj. Mills Esq^r., Israel Hobart Esq^r., George Williams Esq^r. & Caleb Davis Esq be a Committee to sign, and number the Bills of Credit of the present Emission. — In Council. — Read, & Concurred. — Consented to by the Major part of the Council" — Council Records, vol. XXXV., p. 90. — but Messrs. Nye, Pitts and Mills having been excused, Mr. Warwick Palfrey, Mr. Henry Hill and Col. Samuel Thatcher were, on the 28th, appointed in their stead, and, July 2, Daniel Hopkins was in like manner appointed in the place of Mr. Dalton who was absent; and, the next day, David Jeffries, Esquire, was appointed in the place of Mr. Hill, excused.

On the 11th of July "the committee for inspecting the impression of the bills of credit," were ordered "to take some effectual measures to prevent the printer, or any under him, from striking off any bills in the absence of the committee."

At the conclusion of their labors the committee appointed to sign and number the bills made the following report: —

"Dec. 7, 1776. The Committee appointed to Number, & sign the several Denominations of Bills of Credit mentioned in the Act that passed in June 18th 1776 for Emitting £100,000 beg leave to report, that they have performed said Service, and the Members of said Committee have number'd & signed the several denominations as follows.

Chap. 2. The act of May 1, 1776 (1775–76, chap. 22), provided for the alteration of such commissions, only, as were issued after Sept. 19, 1775; and the present chapter was passed, as the preamble shows, to authorize the alteration of all commissions issued by a majority of the Council before that date. In the Council, on the fourteenth of June, Walter Spooner and David Sewall were appointed to bring in a bill for this purpose. The bill reported by them was read a first time, in Council, June 17th, and read a second time, passed to be engrossed, and sent down for concurrence, on the 20th. In the House, the bill was read a first time, on the 21st, and on the 24th it was specially assigned to the 26th, for a second reading; and was read a third time, and passed, in concurrence, to be engrossed, on the 27th, and on the 28th it was passed to be enacted.

In the House, on the fourteenth of September, Messrs. Pickering, Sergeant and Appleton were appointed a committee to revise the laws respecting the style, and to bring in a resolve for lengthening the time for altering the military commissions which were dated in August and September, 1775. The report of this committee, together with the action of the Legislature thereon, is as follows: —

"Sept. 16, 1776. In the House of Representatives. *Whereas in, and by one Act, or Law of this State made in the present year of the Christian Era for establishing the Stile of Commissions &c. And by one other Act in Addition thereto; it is Order'd that all Military Commissions issued by the major part of the Council of this State before the first day of June One Thousand, seven hundred, & seventy six, & bearing the date of the Year of the Reign of the king of Great Britain, and not afterwards made conformable as to the Stile, and date in the manner required by said Acts before the Nineteenth day of September One thousand, seven hundred, and seventy six should on, and after said day become Void and of none effect, and as sundry military Officers of this State have neglected to get their Commissions made to conform as aforesaid; And it being necessary for the defence of this, and the other united States that the whole Militia be constantly prepared & properly organized for Duty: And especially necessary at this time to expedite the marching that part of the Militia now order'd for reinforceing the Army at New York, and defence of a neighbouring Government. It is therefore Resolved that all military Commissions now in force shall be, and continue in full force, and effect on the same Nineteenth day of September, and from thence to the 19th Day of January next after, such Commissions not being made to conform as aforesaid notwithstanding. In Council. Read, & Concurred. Consented to by the major part of the Council."—Council Records, vol. XXXV., p. 256.

Before the expiration of the time limited for the alteration of military commissions, the following resolve was passed, still further extending the time for that business: —

"Dec. 6, 1776. In the House of Representatives. †Whereas in, and by one Act or law of this State made in the present year of the Christian Era for establishing the Stile of Commissions &c and by one other Act in Addition thereto; it is Ordered that all military Commissions issued by the major part of the Council of this State before the first day of June One thousand, seven hundred, & seventy six, and bearing the date of the year of the Reign of the King of Great Britain, and not afterwards made conformable as to the Stile, and date in the manner required by said Acts, before the nineteenth day of September One thousand seven hundred, & seventy six should on, and after said day become Void, and of none effect, which commissions altho' not made to conform as aforesaid have by a Resolve of this State dated Sept. 16th 1776. been continued in full force until the 19th day of January 1777. And as sundry military Officers of this State, have still neglected to get their Commissions made to conform as aforesaid; And it being necessary for the defence of this, and the other United States that the whole Militia be constantly prepared, and properly Organized for Duty; And especially necessary at this time to expedite the marching that part of the Militia now ordered for reinforceing the American Army at, or near New-York, It is therefore Resolved, that all Military Commissions now in force shall be, and continue in full force, and effect on the same nineteenth Day of January 1777, and from thence until the further Order of the General Court. — In Council. Read, & Concurred. Consented to by 15 of the Council."— Ibid., vol. XXXVI., p. 279.

The following are the proceedings to legalize the acts of the deputies of Sheriff Richmond, of Bristol County, whose commission was not altered under the provisions of this chapter: —

"Mar. 6, 1777. Petition of Saml. Fales Clerk of the Sessions & pleas for the County of Bristol by Desire of a Number of the Justices of said County & others interested, Setting forth—That whereas your Honors in the Year of our Lord 1776. did among other things Enact, that all Commissions Issued by the Major part of the Council since the Nineteenth of Sept. 1776. & no longer, except renewed and altered agreeable to an Act for the Establishing the Stile of Commissions & altering the Stile of Writs &c—That the Commission of Silvester Richmond Esqr. late Sheriff for the County of Bristol, being (Issued before the said Nineteenth of Sept. Chap. 3. Upon the following petition (the date of presentation of which, to the House, does not appear, but which was referred to a committee, before June 26, 1771,) the committee, on the day last named, reported that 'the petitioner have leave to bring in a bill, and Col. Williams was appointed to prepare the bill accordingly.

* Printed resolves, chapter II.

The bill reported in accordance with the order of June 26th, had its first reading on the 27th, was read a second time on the day following, and was read a third time, and passed to be engrossed, July 1, 1771. The Council, however, at the stage, refused to concur, and the bill was lost. The following are the boundaries of the territory sought to be incorporated by this bill: —

"The Tract of Land aforesaid, contained within the Lines and Limits following, Viz^t: Bounded North on the South Line of Williamstown, West on the Line between this Province and the Province of New York; South upon the South Line of Uziel Barker and Ezra Sanford's Farms, from thence East twenty Degrees South to the Top of the mountain; thence north Twenty Degrees East to the north Line of Benjamin Gutridge's Grant; thence East Twenty Degrees South to the Southwest Corner of Lanesborough; then by the West Line of said Lanesborough 'till you come to the northwest Corner; from thence North 40. Degrees West to the South Line of said Williamstown." — Extract from the original bill: ibid., p. 456.

No further attempt to secure an act of incorporation has been discovered, until 1775, during the second session of the General Court, when the following proceedings began: —

"Oct. 13, 1775. A Petition of Asa Douglass, Agent for the Town of Jericho, praying that that Town may be incorporated; read and committed to Major Smith, Mr. Kollock, Mr. Mills, Mr. Roseter and Mr. Wilson." — House Journal, p. 160.

On the 16th of October this committee reported "that the prayer of said petition be granted," and a committee of three was appointed to bring in a bill. On the 28th, the bill, having been reported, was ordered to be read a second time, at "the next session of this court."

On the 20th of June, 1776, an order was passed, in the House, appointing a committee to bring in a resolve for admitting Asa Douglass, the petitioner, to a seat in the House, upon the certificate of a special committee of the plantation of Jericho. On the 22d, this committee reported a resolve, as ordered, and, though the report was not accepted, the bill of this chapter passed its several stages, to engrossment, and was sent up for concurrence.

On the 24th, a petition from Jericho, and the answer thereto, were laid upon the table. These papers have not been found; but the following entry appears in the journals of the House: —

"June 28, 1776. Caleb Cushing, Esq; brought down the bill, intituled, 'An act for erecting the plantation called Jericho, in the county of Berkshire, into a town by the name of Jericho.' Passed in Council, and sent down for concurrence.

Read and concurred, with the following alteration, viz. The House propose to dele at (A) the name 'Jericho,' and insert 'Hancock.' Sent up for concurrence." — Ibid., p. 50.

On the second day of July, this bill was passed to be enacted by both branches, and a precept was ordered to the inhabitants, for the choice of a representative "if they see cause."

The next day after the enactment of the bill, the following proceedings took place: —

"To the Great and General Court of Assembly for the Province of the Massechusetts Bay — now Conveigned at Watertown the Adress Remonstrance and Petetion, of us the Subscribers being Inhabitants of a New place Called Jericho, Ajoining York Goverment, lying in the County of Birkshire and Province aforesaid. Humbly Sheweth that whareas a Petetion hath been prefered to this Honnourable Court, for the Incorporating Said Jericho as a Township, we your Humble Petetioners haveing well Considered the Consequenses ariseing tharefrom, would beg leave to represent to your Honnours the present Circomstances of your Petetioners, Relative to our Situation for a Township, that our Lands fit for Cultivation Cheifly lie Confined in a Very Narrow Hollow, between two large ranges of Ruged Mountains, which Mountains contain and take up more than two thirds of the whole quantity of our Lands, the Hollow in many places not more than one hundred Rods wide, from one Mountain to the other, admiting of but one teer of Farms through the whole Place, together with Some Scattering people upon the Granted & ungranted parts of the Mountains, and the Distance from Lanesborough and Pitsfeild West lines, which is our East line, to the Supposed York line, Scarcely three miles at the widest place, and the South part not near that Distance, Lying as is Petetioned for, near Seventeen Miles in length, which must make us Extreamly Ill Situated, So that many of the Inhabitants that live not more than three or four Miles from Ritchmont, Meeting House, in order to meet and come together in the middle of this long and narrow Extent, must Travel Near ten Miles and this middle is like the middle of a Cord Close to one Side, by York line, and the Ruggedness of the Mountains, is such, that tis impracticable to mak a Road in Jericho, to pass from the North to the South Part of the Intended Town, and Consequently are obliged to Travel four, or five Miles in York Goverment, the Cheif Settlers being only one Row of Houses through the the Hollow, and but Very few Spots that will Admit of a Good Farm on Either Side the Mountains, East and West of us, and whereas this place is the out Skirts of the Province, and has been under no proper Regulation, Lying upon the Disputed York line, it has proved an Assalum for many Poor People, that had no whare Else to go, who have Settled upon the ungranted Lands, who greatly Swell our Numbers, but are not like to Increase our Abilities, many of whom being Ignorant of the manner and Duty of an incorporated Town, and Consequently have been the easyer Drawn into and Influenced to Consent to the affors^d Petetion, by a few artfull ambitious and Designing Men, in Order as is thought to Probegate their own Intrest, however Disintresting it may prove to the rest of the Inhabitants, the particulars of which will be too tegeous to Trouble your Honnours with at Present, Said Inhabitants haveing well Considered the fatal Consequences of Incorporating as a Town a place So ill Situated for a Township and unequal to the Task, Considering at the Same time that a Small Variation in the Supposed York line, when ever it may be Settled may take a great Part of the most Valluable land in the place, and if so those Very men who Strive most to Git the Town Incorporated will fall into York Goverment whare much of their most Valluable Improvements are at preset, and thereby Shun the Burthen themselves, which they are precureing for others, we would further ask leave to Inform your Honnours, that this is the Second Petetion of this Kind which we have endeavoured to Lay before the Assembly, the former of which we Sent Some Years ago was ungenerously Stoped by the way. Your Humble Petetioners beg leave to add, that from a Due Consideration of our own Inabilities by being So young a Settlement, not more than nine or ten Years Sence it began, and three fourths of the Inhabitants not half that time, together with our Inconvenient Situation, the Poverty of Great part of our Inhabitants, together with the Great Expence our Invaded Country must be at in the present unhapy Dispute with Great Brittain, we think Renders it our indespensible Duty to come Like Children to Parents Beseeching your Kind Interposition in our behalf, that beging leave, to tell your Honnours that we Vew our Selves altogether unfit for a Township and incapeable to perfom the Duties thereof but are willing if your Honnours in your Wisdom shall see fit, to be Set off as a District, to begin at the Norwest Corner of Pitsfeild, and Extend North to the South West Corner of Williams Town, and West to York line, or if not that we may be Anex[d] to to Lainsborough, and Williamstown, the Same Extent — wherefore we pray that Your Honnours would take the affair into Consideration, and do that which in your Wise Council Shall apear to be most Constitutional Just and Equal, and your Petetioners as in Duty Bound will Ever Pray

On the 7th of September the two foregoing petitions were read, and referred to a committee consisting of Messrs. Otis, Bliss and Preble, of the House, and Messrs. Greenleaf and White, of the Council; upon the report of which committee, the Council, on the 14th of September, passed an order directing the petitioners to serve the town clerk of Hancock with a copy of the petition and of the order thereon, twenty days, at least, before the return day, requiring the town to show cause, on the third Wednesday of the next session of the General Court, why the prayer of the petitioners should not be granted.

Though this order was sent to the House for concurrence, the latter took no action thereon until Oct. 25th, when the petitions were again read, and ordered to be recommitted, and the order was sent to the Council, for concurrence.

On the 4th of November the committee was changed, by the substitution of Messrs. Guild and Noyes, of the House, for Messrs. Otis and Bliss; and David Sewall, of the Chap. 4. On the 28th of June, a joint committee, consisting of Messrs. Hawley, Lowell, Watson, Orne and Pickering, of the House, and Powell, Spooner, Winthrop and Thomas Cushing, of the Council, was appointed "to consider and report what is necessary to be done by this court before it is adjourned." The report of this committee was brought down to the House the next day; the second paragraph running as follows: —

"Your Committee would further recommend that the Treasurer be directed to hire the Sum of one hundred thousand Pounds as soon as may be for the Use of the Colony & that a Bill be brot in to enable the Treasurer so to do." —Mass. Archives, vol. 137, p. 97.

Messrs. Story, Whittemore and Preble were thereupon "appointed to bring in a bill to direct y^e treasurer to borrow £100,000 agreeable to y^e 2d paragraph."

A bill was prepared, accordingly, which was "read a first and second time, and recommitted," on the 29th, and passed to be engrossed on the first of July, and passed to be enacted on the day following.

On the 25th of October a committee, consisting of Messrs Dalton, Palmer and Wendell, of the House, was appointed "to bring in a resolve to increase the interest agreed to be allowed on the money the treasury* is ordered to borrow, and that the same be fixed at six per cent and the same interest be allowed to those that have already lent this government any money in conformity to the acts of this government empowering the treasury* to borrow money."

On the same day this committee reported the following resolve†: —

During the third session the following resolves* were passed, to secure a more prompt subscription to the loan: —

"Dec. 6. 1776. In the House of Representatives. Whereas it is of the greatest importance to the safety of this State that a large supply of money be immediately put into the public Treasury to answer the present Exigencies of the Government, and it will be very inconvenient at present to make any further Emissions of paper Money, and whereas by an Act of this Court passed this present Year the Treasurer is impower'd to borrow the Sum of One hundred thousand pounds, Therefore Resolved, That the Committees of Correspondence, Safety, and Inspection of every Town and place in this State be, and hereby are directed immediately to open Subscription Lists, and to apply to such persons within their respective Town or place as they may think proper for the loan of such Sums of Money as they can possibly spare for the service of this State for which according to said Act the Treasurers Notes payable the twentieth day of July 1778 with Interest at six ℔ Cent ℔ annum according to a late resolve of this Court shall be given, every note to be for ten pounds, or upwards, and the Interest to be paid annually, and that the Committees cause such subscription lists to be compleated as soon as may be, and deliver'd into the Treasurers office and the persons so subscribing to lend are earnestly desir'd to bring, or send their Monies to the Treasury as soon as possible, and the Treasurer is hereby ordered to give his Notes for any sums received according to the foregoing directions as will best suit the persons who lend such Monies.—

And further Resolved, that M^r^. Serjeant of Malden get this Resolve printed in hand Bills and sent to the Committees of each Town, and place in this State immediately. In Council. Read, & Concurred.—Consented to by 15 of the Council." — Council Records, vol. XXXVI., p. 281.

Chap. 5. Feb. 11, 1774, a joint committee was appointed "to bring in a bill to ascertain the number and places of hospitals that may hereafter be erected for the inoculation of the small-pox, and regulating the same, and also for regulating the hospital already erected at Salem for that purpose," but no report of that committee, and no further action upon the subject, until the present year, has been discovered.

On the sixth of June, 1776, a joint committee, consisting of Benjamin Lincoln and Samuel Holten, of the Council, and Messrs. Wendell, Cooper and Lincoln, of the House, was appointed "to take into consideration the state of the small-pox in this colony, and report what order may be necessary for this court to take in the matter." The report of this committee and the proceedings thereupon are given below: —

"June 8, 1776. The Com^tee^ of both Houses appointed to take into consideration the state of the Small Pox in this Colony—Beg leave to Report that there is much reason to suspect that notwithstanding the Exertions of the Selectmen of Boston, & the General of the continental Troops now in this Colony to prevent it, Inoculation hath been practised in a very secret, & unjustifiable manner both among the Inhabitants, & Army which has greatly exposed those who had not pass'd thro the Distemper—They have also Reason to believe that Inoculation has been, & is now practised in the Westward part of the Colony at a place called N^o^. 5 about 14 miles distant from North-Hampton where some Persons have repair'd to be inoculated, & it appears that many Inhabitants of this Colony are desirous for their own safety, & that of the public that there be some place under the Regulations of the General Court where Persons might be inoculated without exposeing themselves to the Penalties of the Laws in that Case provided—Your Committee won'd therefore propose to the Hon: Court, whether it be not expedient to allow of one, or more inoculating Hospitals in some interior part of the Colony to be properly regulated by some Law of this Assembly at the same time imposing a severe Penalty on any Person or Persons, who may inoculate, or otherwise voluntarily take the Distemper in the Sea Ports, or Vicinity thereof as such Conduct must be very fatal to the safety of the Colony during the present Summer S: HOLTEN ℔ order

* Printed resolves of the November session, chapter CLVI.

Comittee in the Room of Benj^a Lincoln, Esq^r. absent, & Samuel Holten Esq^r excused"— Council Records, vol. XXXV., p. 33.

On the 28th of June, John Taylor was put upon this committee, in place of Richard Derby, who was absent, and, on July 2d, the bill passed its several stages to be engrossed. On the 3d, the bill was again read in the House, "and referred to the next sitting of the General Court;" but, the next day, this last vote was reconsidered, and a message was sent to the Council, proposing a clause to be added to the bill, which was accepted, and constitutes the fourth section of the act. The House, thereupon, passed the bill to be enacted, and, on the 4th, it was also passed to be enacted by the Council.

The engrossment of this act was mislaid soon after its passage, and the act was repealed, on the 9th of July, by chapter 7, which differs from it in the provision respecting the manner of recovering penalties, and in the provisions of the fourth section. The act is here printed, for the first time, from the original engrossment.

Chap. 6. The bill of this chapter was brought in, June 22d, on leave of the House, by Mr. Freeman. It was read a first time the same day; a second time, on the 24th; and a third time, and passed to be engrossed, on the 25th, when it was sent to the Council for concurrence. It was passed to be enacted in the House, on the 28th, and on the 29th, in the Council.

Chap. 7. Chapter 5, covering the same subject matter as chapter 7, differs from the latter in the provision for recovering penalties, and also in the postponement of its operation until the third day of August. Whether these variances, which were intentional, as appears by the preamble to section 4 of the present chapter, were of themselves considered sufficiently important to require the enactment of this chapter, does not appear, since the fact that the engrossment of chapter 5 could not be found, was good ground for re-enacting it. The bill of this chapter was brought down from the Council, July 8th, with an endorsement, of the same date, that it had been read a first and second time and had been passed to be engrossed. On the 9th, it was passed to be enacted, by both branches.

Chap. 8. The Legislature of the previous year had appointed a committee, consisting of Messrs. Hawley, Cushing and Story, of the House, and Spooner and Holten, of the Council, "to take into immediate consideration the best measures proper to prevent the spreading of the small-pox," whose report, and the legislative proceedings thereon, are given below: —

"The Committee of both Houses appointed the 21^st^ March Curr^t to consider the best Measures to prevent the spreading of the Small pox have attended that Service and ask leave to report the following Resolve as the best measure for the end aforesaid —

In Council March 22, 1776. The infection continuing to spread, the following additional measures were proposed in the House of Representatives, on the report of Messrs. Cooper, Mayhew, Robinson, Curtis and Wendell, a committee appointed, July 3d, "to consider what directions are proper to be given to the selectmen of the town of Boston relative to the state of the small-pox in that town."

"In the House of Representatives July 3. 1776 *

Whereas it appears to this House from a representation made by the Selectmen of Boston, next to impossible to stop the spreading of the Small Pox in that Town, — whereby the provision made for preventing the same is now become intirely useless — therefore Resolved, that the Selectmen of said Town be directed to forbear hiring any other Houses for the reception of those Persons that may hereafter be taken with the Small Pox, as also making further provision for their being carried thro' the Distemper, any Resolve or Order of this Court to the contrary notwithstanding — and that said Selectmen be furnished with a Copy of this Resolve

This report was read, in the Council, on the same day, and committed to Messrs. Derby, Taylor and Sewall, "to consider on some method to prevent the spreading of the small-pox in Boston."

On the 4th of July, Richard Derby brought down from the Council a bill "to prevent the further spreading of the small-pox," which had been passed to be engrossed in the Council. This bill was read a first time in the House, the same day, and assigned for a second reading, to the 5th, but appears to have been dropped at this stage. On the 6th, in the Council, a bill empowering the justices of the court of general sessions, to allow inoculation in Boston, was "committed to Messrs. Taylor, Gill and Dana," and, on the same day, a bill, bearing the same title as this chapter, probably reported by the committee last named, was brought down to the House, by Benjamin Austin, with an endorsement thereon, that, after two readings in the Council, it has passed to be engrossed there. This bill was immediately read a first time and referred to a committee, consisting of the Speaker, and Messrs. Cooper, Wendell and Watson. On the 8th, Mr. Otis was substituted for Mr. Wendell, on this committee, and the bill was read a second time and recommitted. On the 9th, the bill had its third reading, and "was passed, in concurrence, to be engrossed, as taken into a new draught," and sent up to the Council. On the 10th, Benjamin White brought down the bill from the Council, with a vote of Council proposing amendments therein, and, on the 11th, the House concurred in some of these proposed amendments, and nonconcurred in others, and recommitted the bill to a committee, consisting of Messrs. Phillips, Story and Wendell, and such as the Council should join, and sent up their vote, for concurrence. On the same day the bill was passed, in the Council, to be engrossed, and, on the 13th, it was passed to be enacted, by both branches.

While the bill was on its passage to enactment a joint committee was appointed, consisting of Messrs. Greenleaf and Taylor, of the Council, and Stickney, Phillips and Adams, of the House, "to consider whether some further provision may not be made to prevent the spreading of the small-pox through the province than is made by" the bill under consideration. Pending this proceeding the Legislature was prorogued; but the Council subsequently passed the following order: —

§ 4 — "Mass^{ts} Bay In Council July 16th 1776

Ordered That notice be forthwith given to the several persons who have opened and set up Hospitals for the purpose of innoculating persons with the Small Pox within this State without the permission of the General Court of Sessions of the Peace of such County wherein such Hospital is opened and set up, that they immediately desist from innoculating in, or receiving any persons innoculated with the Small Pox into, their several Hospitals at their peril: The Council being determined that every Person who shall offend against the Laws of this State made for the security of the good People of the same against that infectious & dangerous distemper, shall be prosecuted with the severity of Law— And that all such persons as have opened and set up such Hospitals without permission as aforesaid, be and they are hereby at their peril directed to restrain their patients within such limits from their respective Hospitals as will not endanger any of the People of this State or others untill they shall be thoroughly cleansed from all infection Read & accepted Jn^{o}. Chap. 9. On a motion originating in the House, a joint committee, consisting of Messrs. John Brown and Col. Orne, of the House, and William Phillips, of the Council, was appointed, Aug. 29th, "to take into consideration the expediency of prohibiting the exportation of lumber from one part of this state to another, and to foreign parts, for a limited time, and to report a resolve necessary to be passed for that purpose." On the next day, Daniel Hopkins brought down from the Council the report of this committee, signed "William Phillips ℔^r^ order," "that they judge it expedient that an embargo be laid upon all lumber, and that an act prohibiting the exportation thereof from all and every port within this state, till the first day of November next, will be the most effectual method for preventing the same" This report was accepted, the same day, by both branches, and the same committee was ordered to bring in a bill, accordingly.

Sept. 2d, a bill bearing the title of this chapter was read twice, in the Council, and passed to be engrossed. It was then sent down to the House, where, after three readings, it was passed, in concurrence, to be engrossed, with certain amendments to which the Council agreed, and, on the 4th, it was passed, by both branches, to be enacted.

In the mean time the following resolve¶ was passed by both branches: —

"In Council Sept^r^ 2^nd^ 1776. Whereas Benj^a^ Greenleaf & Oliver Wendell Esq^rs^ & Capt Geor. Chap. 10. On the 4th of September, the committee of the House, on "the state of this State", reported "that a committee be appointed to consider the state of the treasury, and report with what sum, and in what manner, it shall be supplied." This report was accepted, and a committee, consisting of Messrs. Osgood, Davis, Wood, Sullivan and Sartell, was appointed, accordingly. This committee appears to have proceeded to business at once; for their report was in the orders of the day for Sept. 5th, and was that day accepted, and a resolve was passed, thereupon, "that there be immediately emitted the sum of one hundred and twenty-five thousand pounds to supply the treasury," and Messrs. Brown of Watertown, Brown of Boston, Fuller, Osgood and Pickering were appointed a committee "to consider and report of what denominations the bills shall be."

On the 6th of September, Messrs. Brown, Davis and Otis were appointed a committee "to wait upon Mr. Revere to know if he can recut the former plates to answer in part for the new emission of the bills agreed to be made and emitted;" and, on the 9th, the same committee was "directed to receive from the treasurer the copperplates in his possession, engraved for the emission of £75,000;" which the treasurer, by the same order, was directed to deliver to them. The same committee was further directed "to agree with some suitable person to engrave plates for the emission of one hundred thousand pounds, of such denominations as shall hereafter be agreed upon."

It thus appears that the bills to be emitted under this chapter, were to be printed from the old plates, while the remainder of the emission were to be printed from plates of a new design.

On the 10th, Mr. Wendell was ordered "to wait on Mr. Revere to desire him to alter the word Colony, in the plate on which the bills of credit are to be struck off, and insert State in the room thereof."

On the 9th of September, Messrs. Davis, Pickering and Whiting were appointed a committee to bring in a bill "for the striking off the sum of £25,000, part of the £125,000" already voted to be emitted, and Messrs. Parker, Williams and Billings were appointed a committee "to procure paper for that purpose, and to agree with a printer for striking off the same."

A bill for emitting £25,002 was read a first time on the 10th, a second time on the 11th, and, on the 12th, it was read a third time, and sent to the Council, for concurrence. On the 13th, this bill, by request of the House, was sent down to them; and, on the same day, it was passed in the Council, in concurrence, to be engrossed. On the 16th, the bill was again sent to the Council, with an amendment by which the sum to be emitted was made £50,004, instead of £25,002, to which amendment the Council immediately agreed; and the bill was passed to be enacted in both branches, and the Rev. John Murray, Thomas Cook, Abraham Fuller, Jonas Dix, John Bliss, Jonathan Brown, John Lewis and Henry Hill, were appointed a committee to sign and number the bills emitted under this act. On the next day, "Mr Davis and Col Goodwin" were substituted for "Major Fuller and Col. Bliss, excused," on this committee.

With regard to the remainder of the bills the emission of which was required by the resolve, it was ordered, on the 11th of September, "that the committee appointed to report suitable denominations of the bills of credit, be directed to consider some proper device for the same, and report." Accordingly, the following report was made, read and accepted, on the 16th of the same month:—

"The committee appointed to consider of what denominations the emission of money ordered by this House, should be, reported, as their opinion, That there be engraved, two plates, twelve bills on each plate; the large plate to contain bills of one dollar, two dollars, three dollars, four dollars, five dollars, six dollars, seven dollars, eight dollars, nine dollars, ten dollars, eleven dollars, and of twelve dollars; the small plate to contain bills of two pence, three pence, four pence, six pence, eight pence, nine pence, twelve pence, one shilling and six pence, two shillings, three shillings, four shillings, and four shillings and six pence; that each bill, on each plate, have a border, handsomely engraved, for the face of the bill, and the value of the bill expressed thereon, in several places;

That on the face of the bills, on the largest plate, be engraved, the arms of this State, with this motto round the same, 'POST TENEBRAS LUX,' and on the scrole, in the Americans hand, IND; and that on the back of such bill, be printed the value of such bill, with suitable ornaments cut on type metal." — House Journal, p. 109.

On the same day, Messrs. Wendell and Davis and Mr. Brown of Boston were appointed a committee to procure paper for the bills last described, — four and one-half reams for the larger plate, and ten reams for the smaller.

In the mean time, paper had been procured for printing the bills ordered to be emitted by this chapter, and, on the 18th of September, Capt. Brown of Watertown was ordered to "cause the three reams of paper (for emission of money) to be brought from Milton to Watertown," where the General Court was sitting Chap. 11. "Sept. 4, 1776. Read, and Ordered, that the prayer of the said petition be granted, and that Col. Cushing bring in a bill for that purpose." — House Journal, p. 87.

A bill was brought in, in accordance with the above order, and read a first time, on the 9th. On the 10th, it was read a second and third time, and passed to be engrossed. In the Council it was passed, in concurrence, to be engrossed, on the third of December, and on the 7th, it was passed to be enacted. The petition of Thomas Rice and others has not been found in the archives.

"Sept. 5, 1776. The committee appointed to consider what sum the inhabitants of this State should be taxed, reported, verbally, That one hundred thousand pounds would be a suitable sum. And the House assigned three o'clock in the afternoon to consider said report. * * *

The House was moved, That, previous to determining what tax should be laid on the inhabitants of this State, a committee should be appointed to consider the circumstance of the several towns, and report what towns abatements shall be made from, or what additions shall be made to the proportion of the tax that might be laid on them respectively, agreeable to the last valuation; and the question being put it passed in the negative

The House was then moved, That a committee be appointed to consider and report what Towns shall be abated of the proportion of the taxes that might be laid on them, agreeable to the said valuation, and what part of such tax shall be abated them; and the question being being put, it passed in the negative

Reconsidered, and the members from the several counties had leave of the House to nominate a person for their respective counties, such person not being of the committee appointed to bring in a Form of Government, or belonging to such suffering towns as expect an abatement of their taxes; whereupon the following gentlemen were appointed as a committee for the purpose proposed, viz. Major Crane, Mr. Wood, Major Fuller, Col. Mosely, Mr. Turner, Dr. Sweeting, Mr. Basset, Mr. Cottle, Capt. Parker, Col. Goodwin, Mr. Fabyan, Col. Cushing and Capt. Stratton." — Ibid., p. 90.

The following report is dated September, though the day is not given. No action thereon by the House has been discovered; but the tax act shows that the abatements reported, except in the case of Wellfleet, were actually made: —

"The Committe appointed to consider what Towns Shall be abated, of their Proportion, of the Taxes that might be laid on them, agreeable to the last Valuation, and what part of Such Tax Shall be Abated them, have considerd the matter and beg leave to Report, the folling abatement, to the Towns hearafter named (Viz)

The following order does not appear to have been concurred in by the Council and the clause referred to is not in the act, though a similar clause was in the act of the previous year. From this it may be inferred that the fugitives had generally returned to their respective towns: —

"Oct. 22, 1776. Ordered, That the inhabitants of Boston, Charlestown and Falmouth, that are now out of town, be taxed to the several towns to which they respectively belonged; and that a clause be inserted in the tax act, accodingly as it was in the last tax act." — House Journal, p. 132.

"Oct. 25, 1776. Voted, That a tax of fifty thousand pounds, be laid on the several towns in this State, for the year 1776; and that Major Fuller, Mr. Dix and Capt. Noyes, be a committee to bring in a bill for proportioning the same among the several towns" — Ibid., p. 134.

Nov. 26, 1776. In the House of Representatives. Order'd, That Major Fuller, M^r

Speaker, Mr Phillips, Mr Cooper, and Mr Plympton be a Committee to confer with such as the Honble Board may appoint on the subject of the Tax Bill.

In Council Read, & Concurred, and Jeremiah Powell Artemas Ward, Thomas Cushing, John Whetcomb, and Francis Dana Esqrs are join'd on the part of the Board" — Council Records, vol. XXXVI., p. 204.

"A Bill has been laid before the Board, intitled, 'An Act for apportioning, and Assessing a Tax of Fifty Thousand five hundred, & ninety four pounds 13s 7½d upon the several Towns, & other places in this State for defreying the Public Charges, and also for assessing a Tax of Seven Thousand three hundred, & twenty pounds, 17s paid the Representatives for their Travel & Attendance in the General Court in the year 1775.

The levying so low a Tax upon the People the present year is liable to so many objections, and will in our opinion be attended with such fatal Consequences to this State that the Board could not see their way clear to concurr with the Honble House in passing this Bill. You Cannot but be sensible that the public Exigencies have of late required large Emissions of paper Bills, or Notes. These Bills or Notes are no other than a promise or obligation which the State brings itself under to pay the Possessor the sum specified in the Bill or Note within a certain time; and they owe their Currency to the credit of the State, or to an Opinion that the State is able to make good its Engagements: consequently Paper Bills owing their Currency to opinion, have only a local, and imaginary Value. This shews the absolute necessity of the States taking effectual measures to support the Credit of their paper Currency; in order to which, the utmost care should be taken that their Emissions are not Extended beyond their proper limits, For we must observe that the value of the Currency of any State has a limit beyond which it cannot go; and if the nominal sum is extended beyond that limit, the real Value will not follow. Suppose one million was the utmost limit of Currency to which this State could give real effectual Value, and they should Emit one million more. The last Million would add nothing to the real value of the whole, but would sink the value of the two Millions down to its limit, one million; that is, the two millions would not purchase more real substantial Goods than the one million before the other was added to it. This being the Case, We cannot think of any better method to reduce the quantity of paper Bills than partly by Taxing, and partly by Funding. If these sentiments are just, This State will not be able to support the credit of its Currency by levying such small Taxes upon the People while the exigencies of the State require such large Expenditures — moreover, we would remind the Honble House that the Treasurer in May 1775, was directed by this State to borrow the Sum of One hundred thousd pounds, lawful money, about seventy five thousand of which he actually did borrow, and gave his notes with Interest at 6 ℔ Cent ℔ annum payable in June 1777, and the faith of this State has been solemnly plighted to the Possessors of those notes for the payment of the same at that period. Now as no provision has yet been made to enable the Treasurer to redeem those notes, with the Interest due thereon at that Time, certainly the credit of this Government requires that this should be done without Delay, and that sufficient provision shou'd be made therefor by the present tax Act. We would further observe, that it appears from the public Acts of this Government that this State has promised the Possessors of their Bills to pay to them the sum of One hundred, & ninety thousand pounds partly in the month of March, & partly in the month of May 1778. and the three following years must also be more, or less loaded with Taxes to enable the Treasurer to redeem the Bills emitted by this State besides a Tax of Thirty Thousand pounds that must be laid upon each of those years to redeem our Proportion of the Bills emitted by the Continental Congress; In short, the Bills, and notes that have been Emitted by virtue of former Acts of this Government, and those that will be emitted in pursuance of Acts & resolves, that have been passed the present sessions will amount to above one million lawful mony. Two hundred, & sixty five thousand pounds of which must, if we mean to fulfill our Engagements, & keep our Credit good, be paid in the years 1777, & 1778 — consequently if only a Tax of about Fifty Thousand pounds is laid upon the present Year — there will remain a Tax of above Two hundred thousand pounds to be levied upon the next Year. — From this State of Facts we think you must be convinced that, in order effectually to comply with the engagements this State are under, it will be absolutely necessary to lay a larger, a much larger Tax the present year than the sum specified in the Bill referred to such a measure, will certainly tend greatly to the safety of the State as well as to the ease of the People for the present rise of every saleable Article makes it Evident that the circulating Cash within this State is plentier than usual, or necessary, & therefore easily to be obtained. Now the difficulty of collecting Taxes is in some proportion to the scarcity of money. The only time then for levying, & collecting large Taxes with ease, and safety is when money is plenty Has there then been a Time when the people could pay their Taxes with more ease than the present? will it be possible to carry on the present War, unless the credit of our paper Currency is supported? Can this be effectually done without the People are Taxed in some proportion to the money that is Emitted, or proper funds are Established to support the Credit of it? these are weighty considerations, & require the utmost attention of the whole Legislature" — Message from the Council to the House, Dec. 4, 1776: ibid., p. 259.

On the 22d of January, the House sent up, by Mr. Pickering, a message to the Council, requesting a return of the tax bill, which being sent down forthwith, was amended to the form of this chapter, and was, the same day, passed to be engrossed, in the Council, and on the 27th, it was passed to be enacted, and signed by fifteen members of the Council.

"To the Honble the Council & the honorable the House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the State of Massachussets-Bay for the year One thousand seven hundred & seventy seven,

The joint petition of Zachariah Mayhew of Chilmark of Dukes County & Gideon Hawley of Mashpee in the County of Barnstable humbly sheweth,

That they have for many years past been ordained to the work of the Gospel ministry and are now employed as Missionaries to the Indian Natives in their respective Counties and have under their care several Indian Churches & congregations which they visit occasionally & to one or another of which they constantly preach the Gospel on the Lords Day and at other times: And have on account of their office been exempted from all taxation till the last year when by virtue of a Clause in the tax bill they were assessed, which would have been a singular Burden at any time but is now very heavy upon them as they have been long since deprived of remittances from a charitable fund in England by which they were supported — and therefore your petitioners do respectively pray that the Great & general Assembly would make such order & ordanance in their favor as is agreeable to their piety & goodness and your petitioners will always pray.

ZECHARIAH MAYHEW
GIDEON HAWLEY." — Mass. Archives, vol. 183, p. 277.

The foregoing petition was referred to a committee, consisting of Messrs. Wendell, Jeffries, and Niles, Nov. 28, 1777, whereupon the following resolve * was passed Dec. 1, 1777: —

"Resolved. That the Assessors of the Towns of Chilmark & Mashpee respectively, abate & remitt the whole Tax assess'd on the Revd Zachariah Mayhew & the Revd Gideon Hawley Missionaries to the Indians they having heretofore been exempted from public Taxes by Virtue of their sacred Office in which they still continue to be faithfull Servants." — Ibid., vol. 216, p. 43. — See, also, note to 1777-78, chap. 13, p. 834, post.

Chap. 14. The following order of the House marks the beginning of the movement to prevent, by legislation, the rise of the price of goods, caused by the risks and losses attending foreign commerce during the war, and by the depreciation of the currency: —

"Feb. 5, 1776. On a Motion, Ordered, That Maj. Brooks, Maj. Fuller and Capt. Brown of Watertown, with such as the Hon. Board may join, be a Committee to take into Consideration the present high Price of Goods, and report what is proper to be done at the next sitting of the Court. Sent up for Concurrence." — House Journal, p. 248.

No intimation of the concurrence of the Council in the above order having been received, the House, on the 14th of March, passed an order that a message upon this subject be sent to the Board; and the same day the following proceedings occurred in the House: —

"A Petition of the Committee of Inspection of the several Towns of Medfield, Wrentham, Attleborough, Dedham, Medway, Billingham, Holliston, Mansfield, Natick, Stoughton, Stoughtonham, Sherburn and Walpole, praying the Court to take into Consideration the extravagant Price which is demanded for English Goods, Wood, Flax, Shoe-Leather, Grain, and sundry other Articles, and make some Provision to prevent the growing Evil.

Read and committed to the Committee appointed the fifth of February last, to consider what was proper to be done with regard to the high price of Goods. Sent up for Concurrence" — Ibid., p. 6.

A second message to the Council, to know if the order of the House relating to the high price of goods had been concurred in, was sent on the 20th; and, six days later, there was presented to the House the petition of a committee, chosen out of the committees of correspondence, safety, &c., for the towns of Newburyport, Newbury, Bradford, Andover, Boxford, Salisbury, Haverhill and Methuen, in Essex County, and Londonderry, Plaistow, New Salem and Atkinson, in New Hampshire, "representing the exorbitant prices of goods and articles vended by the merchants and farmers, and praying that some speedy and effectual remedy might be applied to prevent the evils arising therefrom." At the third session, the following resolve † and order were passed: —

"Nov. 16, 1776. In the House of Representatives.—Resolved, That the Honble Tristram Dalton, & Azor Orne Esqrs with such as the Honble Board shall join be a comtee to meet Committees from the General Assemblies of the States of Connecticut, New Hampshire, & Rhode-Island at Providence in Rhode Island the tenth Day of December next, provided said assemblies think proper to appoint such Committees—then, & there to hold a Conference respecting further Emissions of Paper Currency on the Credit of any of said States—Also on measures necessary for supporting the credit of the Public Currencies thereof—and that the said Committee (if the Committees of the other States so met agree thereto) be empowered to communicate to the other United States of America the Intention of their Convention, and urge that some measures be taken by them to the same purpose, and to give like information to the Honble the Continental Congress, and propose to them whether the regulation of the Currencies is not an object of necessary attention—and to report as soon as may be.—

And it is Orderd, That the Secretary immediately transmit authenticated Copies of this Resolve to the General Assemblies of the several States aforemention'd.

In Council. Read, & Concurred, & Thos. Cushing Esqr. is joined on the part of the Board.— Consented to by 15 of the Council." — Council Records, vol. XXXVI., p. 175.

According to the above resolve and instructions the committee met at Providence, in Rhode Island, Dec. 25, 1776, with a similar committee from Connecticut, consisting of Eliphalet Dyer, Richard Law, Nathaniel Wales and Titus Homer, and a similar committee from New Hampshire, consisting of Nathaniel Folsom, Josiah Bartlett and Supply Clap, and still another committee, with similar powers, from Rhode Island. The last committee consisted of Stephen Hopkins, William Bradford and Henry Ward.

Before the departure of the committee from Massachusetts a letter was received from Governor Cooke, enclosing a resolve of the assembly of Rhode Island proposing a council of war, at Providence, on or before Dec. 23, 1776, to devise measures to repel the British fleet and army then invading that state. Accordingly, on the 16th, the Council of Massachusetts Bay adopted the following resolve: —

"Resolved That it is highly necessary and expedient that the Honble Thomas Cushing Azor Orne and Tristram Dalton Esqrs (a Committee appointed the sixteenth day of November last by the General Assembly of this State to proceed to providence and confer with such Committees as might be appointed by the several States of New England upon the measures necessary to support the Credit of the public Currencies of said States) should proceed and they are hereby impowered to proceed to Providence in Rhode Island and on the part and in behalf of this State on the 23d. instant there to meet and to confer with the Council of War appointed by the Assembly of the State of Rhode Island and also with such other Committees as may be appointed by the States of Connecticut and New Hampshire upon the expediency of raising an Army for our immediate and common defence upon the measures necessary to support the Credit of the public Currencies of the New England States, for preventing Monopoly and high price of goods and the necessaries of Life Regulation of Vendues Embargo on Shipping and such other matters as are of general concernment to the New England States and not repugnant to or interfering with the powers and Authorities of the Continental Congress and report the result of their conferrence to the General Court and the Secretary is hereby directed to Notify the Gentlemen before mentioned of this Resolution of the board inclose them a Copy of the same and desire them immediately to signify to the Board whether they shall proceed upon the business aforesaid or not." — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 20, p. 107.

The committee organized and proceeded to business, Dec. 25, 1776, and, on the 28th, they took up the subject of regulating prices. After some progress made, they postponed the subject, but resumed the consideration of it on the 31st, when the following recommendations were agreed upon: —

"This Committee taking into Consideration the unbounded Avarice of many Persons, by daily adding to the now most intolerable exorbitant Price of every necessary and Convenient Article of Life, and also the most extravant Prices of Labour in general, which at this time of Distress unless a speedy and effectual stop be put thereto will be attended with the most Fatal and Pernicious Consequences.— As it not only Disheartens and Disaffects the Soldiers who have nobly entered into Service, for the Best of causes, by obliging them to give such unreasonable Prices for those Things that are absolutely needful for their very existence, that their pay is not sufficient to subsist them; but is also very Detrimental to the Country in General.—

And that the Respective States regulate the Mode of recovering such Penalties as they shall judge most agreeable to their Circumstances & most likely to prevent the Breaches of the Acts they may pass in pursuance of the recommendation aforesaid."— Mass. Archives, vol. 144, p. 17.

While the committee were absent, the General Court, passed an order (Dec. 26) directing Richard Derby and Benjamin Austin, "agents for the Middle District in this state," to permit no more of the cargo of the prize-ship Julius Cæsar (which had been brought in early in November) to be sold, until the further order of the Assembly. An order had passed, on the 12th of November, directing Mr. Derby to furnish to the Council a box of stationery from the cargo of that vessel — "the state allowing the same price as the rest of these articles sell for at vendue."

On the 4th of January, 1777. Thomas Cushing, in behalf of the above committee from Massachusetts, submitted to the Council a written report, which, on the same day, was read in Council, and sent down to the House, where it was committed to Messrs. Wood, Cooper, Brooks, Storer and Story, with such others as the Council should join; and, on the 6th, Messrs. Powell, Spooner, Fisher and Dana, of the Council, were joined. This committee promptly reported, through James Bowdoin, who had been appointed thereon, "that the rates and prices of the necessary and convenient articles of life be regulated and settled agreeable to the recommendation" of the committee at Providence and "that vendues and other public sales be regulated in such manner as not to interfere with, but to enforce the said regulations; and that [an] act or acts be passed for that purpose."

A committee was appointed the same day to bring in a bill, and to this committee was referred the report of the committee that had sat at Providence. On the 14th, Judge Sullivan brought to the Council a message from the House inquiring whether or not the committee appointed to bring in a bill had reported, and requesting to have it sent down if it had been passed upon by the Council. The bill, which for the first time appears on the record by the title given to the act, was, on the same day, read and sent down. On the 21st, Mr. Pitts carried a message from the House to the Council proposing a conference of both branches on certain amendments which had been offered to the bill. The Council immediately declined this proposal, and suggested referring the bill to a joint committee, to which the House agreed, and appointed thereon Messrs. Danielson, Sullivan, Cooper, Palmer and Pickering. The Council thereupon joined Messrs. Powell, Sever, Greenleaf, Cushing and Phillips. On the 25th, the House proposed an amendment in the last two lines of § 9, striking out "so," between "shall" and "take," and inserting the final words "for such service and labour," which was agreed to by the Council.

After the bill had been enacted, the House passed a resolve to require the secretary to attest the printed acts. This resolve, which has not been discovered, was not concurred in by the Council.

"Jan. 30, 1777. In Council — * Whereas it is represented to this Court that some persons within this State are purchasing pork at an extravagant price as well as other Provisions, and are also employing persons to do the same within the State of Connecticutt, and that they are causing such Provisions to be transported to some Sea port Towns within this State, which evil practice if tolerated must prove very prejudicial to this and all the united States, and if carried on by persons inimical to the Rights of America may be attended with fatal Consequences.—

Wherefore it is Resolved, That the Board of War be directed to make the Strictest Enquiry possible from time to time and if they shall obtain knowledge where quantities of pork or other Provisions are deposited that they have reason to believe were procur'd in this manner that they immediately secure such Provisions for the public use agreeable to a late Act of this Government.—

And all Selectmen & Committees of Correspondence Inspection & Safety of the several Towns within this State are also enjoin'd & directed to exercise the utmost Vigilance for the detection of such pernicious practices; and if they shall at any time learn where any such Provisions are plac'd within their respective Towns, that they forthwith pursue such measures by taking the same into their own Custody or otherwise as they shall judge necessary to prevent the purchasers or possessors thereof from secreting them, and they are then forthwith to give Information thereof to the Board of War, acquainting them of the names of the persons concerned and other Circumstances, and wait the Instructions of the Board of War respecting the same, which it is expected the Board of War will give without delay and make returns to this Court from time to time. †

In the House of Representatives — Read & Concured and the Board of War are directed to cause this Resolve to be published in all the Boston News Papers. In Council read and Concurred Consented to by fifteen of the Council." — Council Records, vol. XXXVI., p. 512.

XXXVII., p.* 68.

Chap. 15. On the 9th of October, Messrs. Partridge, Dix and Davis were appointed by the House a committee to report a bill for repealing the act for laying an embargo upon lumber, which had been passed on the 5th of the previous month. A bill was accordingly reported which, on the 11th, had its several readings in the House, and was passed to be engrossed and sent to the Council, for concurrence, and, on the same day, was, by the Council, passed, in concurrence, to be engrossed. On the 16th, it was passed, by both branches, to be enacted; and, at the same time, by a concurrent order, the secretary was directed to get it "published in the several newspapers."

Chap. 16. On the twenty-fifth of October the bill of this act was ordered to be brought in, by a committee consisting of Messrs. Pickering, Otis and Ingalls. The bills were to be from the "plates the last emission were struck off from," and a committee, consisting of Mr. Davis, Mr. Brown of Boston and Mr. Brown of Watertown, was appointed "to get the last plates repaired for the new emission" On the same day, the bill was reported, read three times, passed to be engrossed, and sent to the Council by a committee consisting of Messrs. Palmer, Cooper, Pitts, Brown and Storer. At the same time, the committee appointed to get the plates altered was directed to secure a quantity of paper sufficient for the impression of the bills.

On the 26th, the Council passed the bill, in concurrence, to be engrossed. The bill was passed to be enacted, by the House, on the 28th, and, on the next day, by the Council.

The following orders were subsequently passed by the House: —

"Oct. 29, 1776. Ordered, That Mr. Ingalls and Mr. Robinson, be a committee to inspect the press for the emission of fifty thousand and four pounds.

Voted, That Mr. Dix, Mr. Wood Capt. Brown, of Watertown, Col. Goodwin, Mr. Hubbard, Mr. Drew, Mr. Sergeant, of Malden, and Mr. Noyes, be a committee to sign and number the bills of the emission of fifty thousand and four pounds." — House Journal, p. 138

Chap 17. "To the Honourable the Council and House of Representatives of the Colony of Massachusetts Bay

The Petition of the Subscribers Inhabitants of a Tract of Land lying on & near St Georges River in the County of Lincoln in said Colony, being part of the Plantation called St Georges (the whole Plantation being much too large for a Township) Humbly sheweth, That whereas the Hon^ble^ the great & general Court of said Colony have ordered a Tax of forty nine pounds three Shillings & seven pence farthing, to be paid by the Inhabitants of said Plantation called St Georges; and whereas by a late Act or Law of the Province the Inhabitants of new Plantations were enabled & impowered to assess, levy & collect Province and County Taxes; Yet the Inhabitants of said St Georges have not pursued the Directions of said act & thereby have lost the Benefits thereof: But being willing to bear our part of the publick Charges according to our Ability, have agreed to assess, & collect our Proportion of said Tax (tho' attended with Difficulty) according to the last Assessment made in this Place, which was a County Tax: Wherefore, to prevent the like Difficulties for the future, and to shun the many other Inconveniencies to which unincorporated Plantations are exposed, and procure the Benefits arising from Incorporation, which we apprehend will increase the growth of this Place, Your Petitioners pray that the said tract of Land may be incorporated into a Township Bounded as followeth viz. Northwesterly by a Line beginning at St Georges River at the westerly Corner of John Alexander's Lot from thence running, as his Line runs, North thirty two Degrees East about seven Miles, to the Line of the Township called Camden, belonging to the twenty Associates called the Lincolnshire Company; westerly by St Georges River southwesterly by a Line beginning at a Spruce Tree marked number twenty three and twenty four on the Neck the eastern Side of St Georges River, thence running East South East about three Miles between the Lots Number twenty three & twenty four across said Neck to the Sea Shore; Southerly by Muscle Ridge Bay, so called; Easterly by Owls Head Bay, and Northeasterly about five Miles by Camden Line aforesaid, to where it intersects the Line first mentioned, said Camden Line runs from the Sea Shore, or Owls Head Bay aforesaid, at a place called Clam Cove Neck, a North west by North Course. Together with all the Island that lieth within three Miles of the Main Land, & within the Direction of the Lines that run to the Sea; And that we may be invested with all the Powers and Priviledges that the Inhabitants of other Towns in said Colony do enjoy— And your Petitioners as in Duty bound shall ever pray &c.

Since writing the above, we understand that a Small Number of the Inhabitants on the western Side the River are desirous of being connected with us, & their Sentiments as to Church Goverment being the same with ours, we are very willing; If the Hon^ble^ Court, for the Reasons they give, shall think proper to annex them.

"To the Honourable the Council & House of Representatives of the Colony of Masschusetts Bay

The Petition of the Subscribers Inhabitants in the Plantation called St Georges in the County of Lincoln, on the western Side of St Georges River Humbly sheweth, That your Petitioner are exposed to all the Inconvenienencies that unincorporated Plantations suffer; and more particularly, A Number of the Inhabitants of this Plantition having gathered a Church, & settled a Minister according to the Presbiterian Mode of Church Goverment; and we having been educated in, and still thinkings, That the Congregational mode is more for Edification, therefore cannot regularly join with them; And having understood, that a Number of the Inhabitants on the Eastern side of the River have petitioned to be incorporated into a Township, and our Lands lying more commodous to be joined with them, than with the other parts of the Plantation, Therefore your Petitioners pray that our Lands lying on the Eastern side St Georges River, Bounded as followeth, to wit, Beginning at a Stake and Stones at the River aforesaid, thence running (between Capt. Jonathan Nutting's Lot and John M^c^ Carters Lot, as their Line runs, which is) west North west about two Hundred & thirty two Rods and west about three Hundred and twenty Rods, making in the whole five Hundred and fifty two Rods, thence North about two Hundred and ten Rods, to the south west Corner of Land sold by Moses Copeland to Samuel Counce, thence East by the Line between said Copeland & Counce two Hundred and twenty Six Rods, & Northeasterly thirty one Rods to Ebenezer Sumner's Land, thence East between said Sumner & Copeland two Rods to Copeland's Creek (so called) thence Eastwardly by said Creek and Southerly by St Georges River aforesaid to the Bound first mentioned, may be annexed to, and erected into a Township with the Lands on the Eastern Side, And your Petitioners as in Duty bound shall ever pray &c.

The date of the presentation of the foregoing petitions has not been discovered, but both were committed, on the 12th of July, to a joint committee, consisting of Messrs. Lithgow, Pickering and Brooks, of the House, and John Taylor and Col. Thayer, of the Council. This committee, on the 13th, reported, by way of resolve, that the petitioners serve "the committee of the inhabitants on the west side of St. George's River in said plantation," with a copy of both of said petitions and of the order of the General Court thereon, to "shew cause, if any they have, on the third Tuesday of the next sitting of the General Court, why the prayer of both or either of said petitions should not be granted."

This report was accepted by both branches in concurrence.

The petition, or remonstrance, of the committee above mentioned is as follows: —

"The Petition of the Commitee of S[t] Georges to the Honourable the general Court of the Colonie of the Masachussets Bay Humbly sheweth —

That whereas a small number of of people representing themselves to consist of forty Families which upon strict enquery will be found to be false, want to tear this Town in pieces by cutting off the middle and leaving out the two-ends whereby the plantations commonly called the Lower and uper S[t] Georges wou'd be Reduced to the greatest hardships imaginable as the former has not bounds to extend themselves and as the later has but a small handful of people —

We the Commitee of S[t] Georges are appointed by the Inhabitants to send this our humble petition to this Honourable Body begging that your Honours would not grant a hearing to any petition creaving the incorporation of a part and not of the whole of this Town as the granting such a request would prove in the end very hurtful & pernicious and the Consequences very fatal —

We therefore Rely upon the virtue and integrety of this Honourable Court for granting a gracious hearing to this our very humble petition and your petitioners as in duty Bound shall ever pray —

St Georges June 20[th] 1776 REUBEN HALL Ch[n]man." — Ibid., p. 83.

No further record of proceedings upon these petitions has been found, until October, when the Council substituted Walter Spooner and Daniel Davis, for John Taylor and Ebenezer Thayer, on the committee above named; the House, at the same time, ordering that the consideration of these petitions be put off until 11 o'clock the next day. On the 16th, in the House, a petition of the inhabitants, to be incorporated, was read, and, together with former petitions and papers accompanying them, was referred to a joint committee, of which Messrs. Choate, Partridge and Sartell were appointed members, on the part of the House, and to which, on the 18th, the Council joined, in concurrence, Benjamin White and Daniel Davis.

At this stage, the following petition appears to have been first presented. The date of the petition seems to show conclusively that it cannot have been the petition which was read in the House on the 16th, and yet no other petition of similar purport has been discovered which could have been acted upon by the Assembly on that day.

"State of the Massachusetts Bay } To the Honorable the Council and Honorable House of Representatives in Great and General Court for s[d] State Assembled at Watertown by Adjournment October y[e] 9[th], AD, 1776 —

The Petition of Hugh M[c]Lean of Milton in the County of Suffolk Merchant. and Samuel Gragg of the upper Plantation on and near S[t] Georges River (so called) in the County of Lincoln in the Eastern Parts of this State Gentleman in their own Behalf and also as Agents for the Inhabitants of the said Plantation — Most Humbly Sheweth

That the said Inhabitants and their Predecessors with much Toil and Labour and at great Expence of Blood and Treasure have Cultivated and brought too the said Plantation in such a manner that through the smiles of Heaven on their Industry from a wild Desert it is now become, and is like to be a still more pleasant and flourishing Settlement consisting at present of more than Forty Familys, so that they want nothing to Compleat their Temporal Interest & Comfort but the Enjoyment of the same Civil and Religious Privileges on a Legal foundation which the several Towns in this State are happily in the possession of, Your Petitioners therefore most humbly and Earnestly Request of your Honors That the said Plantation (Butted and Bounded as follows Viz[t] Beginning on the West side of S[t] Georges River on the North side of William Palmer's Line running West North West to Moses Copeland's South Line than on a West course on s[d] Copeland's line to Waldoborough line & to the South Pond and from thence to Westerly Pond, and so on to the Hon[b]le John Taylor Esq[r]'s Township from thence East about Six Miles & an half on the Line of the said Township 'till it comes to Cambden Line and thence on s[d] Cambden Line South East & by South about Two Miles & an half, from thence taking a South South West Course about Five Miles & an half to the Old Saw Mill and so keeping along on the Shoar as it lays to Old Fort, and from thence across s[d] S[t] Georges River to Watson's Point and so on to s[d] Palmer's line being the first mentioned Bounds agreable to the Plan thereof May be by Your Honors Incorporated into a Township (as many Inconveniencys would be removed and great Advantages accrue to the said Inhabitants thereby) by the Name of S[t] Georges and that they may be Endowed with all such Privileges as the Several Towns in this State by Law Enjoy And Your Petitioners for themselves and in their Capacitys of Agents as aforesaid as in Duty Bound Shall Ever Pray &c[ra]

HUGH M[c]LEAN

Boston Octo[r] 21[st]. 1776 SAM[LL] GRAGG." — Ibid., p. 395.

This petition was, on the 22d, referred, by the House, with the concurrence of the Council, to the committee having the former petitions in charge — Messrs. Lithgow and Holt having first been substituted, on the committee, for Messrs. Sartell and Partridge, who were absent. On the 23d, a report of the joint committee, that day sent down from the Council, "that the prayer of the petition be granted, and that the petitioners have leave to bring in a bill for the purpose mentioned in the petition" — was accepted, in concurrence. The bill was read, a first time, in the House, Oct. 26th, and a second and third time, and passed to be engrossed, on the 30th, when it was sent up for concurrence. In the Council, the bill was passed, in concurrence, to be engrossed, Nov. 5th, and, on the 7th, it was there passed, in concurrence, to be enacted.

The first petitioners, Elisha Snow and others, soon discovered that this act was not in accordance with their petition, and again applied to the General Court for an act of incorporation setting them off from Warren and annexing them to the territory to be embraced in the new town of Thomaston. See the note to chapter 34, post.

Chap. 18. The following petition was presented to the House in the last session of the previous year. It was read April 16th, and referred to "Col. Grout, Capt. Hodges and Capt. Brown:"—

"To the General assembly of the Colony of the Massach^{ts} Bay now Setting at Wartertown

Gentlemen we your Humble Petitioners Beg Leave Humbly to Shew: that whereas a Certain Tract of Land or plantation Lying in y^{e} County of worcester formerly known by the name of Rut^{d} District the Inhabitents of said District Being Desirous of a new incorporation Did in the year 1773 Petition the General assembly of this Colony for to be Sett off as a Town & So have the Connection with Rutland Subside And we So far Succeeded in our attempt as to obtain the approbation & Concurrance of both Houses: But the matter was non Concurred by Gouenor Hutchinson who was then in the Chair unless he Could haue the privelidge of Filling the Blank but the House not willing to give up what they Vewed as theair right the matter was not Compleated Till M^{r}. Gage took the Chair who Very Soon after gaue us a Specimen of what he was or intended to be to this Colony by filling up the Blank with that obnoxtious nane Hutchinson that well known Enemy to the natural & Stipulated rights of America: which gave us a very Disagreable Sensation of mind not Being able to Speake of the Town in which we Lived but our thoughts ware necessarrily Turned upon that ignominious Enemy of man kind and in a measure fill'd with Shame to tell where We Live when Requested

Hutchinson 5th Febuary 1776: JOHN MASON, NATHAN SPARHAWK, PETER FESSENDEN, ANDREW PARKER } Committee in behalf of the town."—Mass. Files: Bills, 1776

No further proceedings upon the petition during the year 1775-76 have been discovered and it probably went over to the succeeding Assembly under the order of May 10, 1776 referring all unfinished business "to the next sitting of the General Court."

On the 5th of June, a resolve was passed in the House "that the member from the town of Hutchinson, have leave to bring in a bill for changing the name of the town to 'Wilkes,'" and on the 25th a bill changing the name of this town to "Barré," was read twice, and, on the next day, read a third time, passed to be engrossed, and sent up for concurrence.

On the 14th of October, the secretary was directed to lay the above petition on the table, and, the same day, it was taken up and a vote was passed that Mr. John Mason have leave to bring in a bill for the purpose mentioned therein. This bill was read three times, in the House, October 21st, passed to be engrossed, and sent up for concurrence. The bill thus passed contained the following preamble: "WHEREAS the Great and General Court of this colony, at their session in June, 1774, which was held at Salem, did incorporate the lands in the county of Worcester, aforesaid, which was known by the name of the Rutland District, into a town by the name of Hutchinson; and whereas the inhabitants of that town have petitioned this Court that the name of said town may be altered, and no longer be called Hutchinson; therefore," &c. The Council concurred in the vote of the House upon the bill, "as taken into a new draught." In this new draught a slight change was made in the title of the act; but the principal change was made in the preamble, which was finally altered to the form which appears in the act. The following copy of the preamble as first reported shows the amendments that were made in it before its adoption in the Council. The words in Roman letters, in brackets, were interlined; and those in Italic letters, in brackets, are the words that were stricken out.

"In the year of our Lord 1776

An Act for discontinuing the name of a Town in y^{e} County of Worcester lately incorporated by y^{e} name of Hutchinson and calling the same Barrè.

Whereas the Inhabitants of the town of Hutchinson have by their Petition represented to this Court, that in June 1774, when y^{e} said Town was incorporated, General Gage the then Governour gave it the name of Hutchinson, in honour to, and to perpetuate the memory of, Thomas Hutchinson his immediate Predecessor in the chair of Government, whom they justly stile the well-known enemy of the natural and stipulated Rights of America; and that at a Town-meeting notified for that Purpose, they voted unanimously to petition [and accordingly have petitioned] the General Court, that the name of the said town might be altered, and that it might no longer bear the [disgraceful] [obnoxious] name of Hutchinson. And Whereas there is a moral fitness that Traitors and Paricides, especially such as have [remarkably] distinguished themselves [in that odious character] and have long laboured [for] to deprive their native Country of [their] its most valuable Rights and Privileges, and to [pull down and] destroy [every constitutional Guard against the Evils of] [all its Fences against] an all-inslaving despotism, should be held up to public view in their true characters to be execrated by mankind; and [that there should remain] [should have] no other memorials of them, than such as will transmit their names with infamy to Posterity. And Whereas the said Thomas Hutchinson, contrary to every obligation of duty and Gratitude to this native Country, which raised him [from private life to the highest and most lucrative offices in the Government,] [from insignificance and to importance from non-importance], has acted towards her the part of a traitor and parricide, as above described, which has been clearly manifested to the world by his letters lately published; and by [his having thus acted] [many of which] it has become fit and just, that every honourable memorial of him should be obliterated and cease, Therefore

Be it enacted by the Council and House of Representatives of the State of Massachusetts Bay [in General Court assembled] and by the authority of the same., That the land lying in the County of Worcester formerly called Rutland District and in June 1774 incorporated into a Town by the name of Hutchinson shall no longer bear that name, but henceforth shall be called and known by the name of Barrè, the aforesaid incorporating Act notwithstanding. And all officers in the said Town shall [shall] hold and exercise their offices respectively in the same manner as they would have done, had not the name of the said Town been altered."— Ibid.

The bill, thus amended, was brought down to the House by Walter Spooner, of the Council, on the second of November. On the 5th, the House voted a concurrence with the Council, who, on the same day, after two readings, passed it to be engrossed "in concurrence," and on the 7th, it was passed to be enacted by both branches, and signed by thirteen of the Council.

Chap 19. This act originated in the Council, and was brought down to the House, October 22d. It was read in the House, a first time, October 29; a second time, October 30; a third time, and passed to be engrossed, November 1st. On the 2d, it was passed to be enacted, by both branches, and was signed by sixteen of the Council.

"In the House of Representatives — Nov 21st 1776.

Therefore Resolved — That the Register of Deeds for the County of Suffolk for the Time being be and he hereby is directed and impowerd to keep said Office together with the Records and Papers thereto belonging in the Town of Dedham within the said County of Suffolk, until the further Order of the General Court, any Law to the contrary notwithstanding — Sent up for Concurrence J WARREN Spkr

On the 16th, a bill, prepared in accordance with the above order, was passed by the Council, to be engrossed, and was sent down to the House, for concurrence. The bill not having been passed by the House, was, on the 11th of October, sent up to the Council, at the request of that Board, and, on the 25th, it was again sent down to the House, with memoranda thereon that it had been read a first time, in Council, on the 22d, and a second time, and passed to be engrossed, on the 25th. On the 30th, it was passed to be engrossed, by the House, with an amendment by which the words, "or even to take any proper care of such estates as consist in writings of any sort," were stricken out, after the word "instrument," in the preamble. In this amended form, the Council passed it, in concurrence, to be engrossed, on the same day, and, on the 5th of November, it was passed to be enacted, by the House, and on the 7th, by the Council, in concurrence, and signed by fifteen of the Council.

members, on the twelfth of September, which date does not appear in the records from which it is here taken: —

"Sept. 10, 1776. In the House of Representatives. Whereas it has been represented to the General Court of this State by the honorable the Governor of the State of Connecticut, that it is of the utmost Importance to the United States of America, to have a large Body of Troops station'd above the Island of New York to prevent the British Army's cutting off the communication between the American Army at the City, and Island of New York, and the Country. And whereas the honorable Congress, in consequence of an application made to them by his Excellency General Washington, in the present critical State of our Affairs, have since called upon this Government in the most pressing Terms immediately to send all the Aid in our Power, to the Army at New York: This Court being sensible that the Safety, Freedom and future Happiness of America, depends upon, and pressingly demand a vigorous, and manly Management of this Campaign; and well considering that while all that is dear to this People is at Stake, they should be chargeable with great Remissness, if they did not exercise the Powers with which they are vested by this State for its Salvation, at this critical Moment, by sending such Reinforcement to the Army at New York as the Exigency of the case requires: And whereas the Militia of this State within the Counties of York, Cumberland, & Lincoln, are too remote to march to the timely Aid of the Army. And Whereas the Situation of the Counties of Nantucket, and Dukes County the Towns of Boston, Dartmouth, Plymouth, Salem, Marblehead, Glocester, Manchester, Beverly, and Newbury Port, render it unfit for any Part of the Militia to be draughted from them at present:

It is Resolved, That one fifth part of the Militia of this State not now in Actual Service by Sea, or Land, excepting those of the Towns and Counties abovenamed, be Order'd by the Major part of the Council to march immediately under the Command of such General Officer as shall be appointed by the General Court, and Commissioned by the Council to Command them, to remain, and continue in the Service within the four New England Governments, the State of New York, or the Jerseys, until they are recalled by the General Court of this State, the House of Representatives, or the major part of the Council, under such Regulations and upon such Establishment as is herein after provided.

And that the Fifth Part of said Militia may March without delay, It is Resolved, That the Major part of the Council make out their Order in Writing to Major General Warren, commanding him that he immediately Order the Brigadier of the several Counties of Suffolk, Essex Middlesex, Worcester, Hampshire, Plymouth, Barnstable, Bristol and Berkshire, to cause the Militia as well of the Alarm List as Training Band of their respective Brigades, to be muster'd without Delay, excepting those in the Towns above excepted; and that they cause to be draughted therefrom, when so muster'd, every Fifth able bodied Man of the Non-Commissioned Officers, and Private Soldiers, under Fifty years of age, except the Officers and Students of Harvard College, Grammar School-Masters, and Persons necessarily employed in the Manufacture of Gunpowder, not exceeding four to each Powder Mill, and armed with a good Firelock, Bullet Pouch and Powder Horn, or Cartridge Box, a Bayonet, Cutlass, or Hatchet, and twenty Bullets fitted to their Gun, with a Knapsack, and Blanket, to march to the Reinforcement of the Army as aforesaid: and that they form those so draughted into Companies of Sixty four Men each, including Non-Commissioned Officers, or as nigh thereto as they conveniently can; and that the said Brigadiers, from the Officers of their respective Brigades, order one Captain, and two Lieutenants to take the Command of each of said Companies; and that said Brigadiers shall form such Companies as are rais'd and draughted from their respective Brigades, not amounting to Sixteen, into one Regiment; and where they do amount to that number of Companies, or upwards, into two; and to each Regiment so formed, assign, or order from the Field Officers of such Brigade, one Colonel, one Lieut. Colonel, & one Major to command the same, and the Officers of said Detachment of the Militia draughted as aforesaid shall have while in said Service the same relative Rank with each other as they now have.

And it is further Resolved, that if any Person of the Alarm List, or train Band, non Commissioned Officer, or Soldier shall after being duly warned thereto neglect to appear upon such Muster designed for draughting as aforesaid, he shall forfeit, and pay the Sum of Ten pounds One half thereof to the use of this State, and the other half to the Person who shall sue for the same by action of Debt in any Court proper to try the same; and if any person so draughted shall refuse to march upon being ordered thereto not having a sufficient excuse therefor, and shall not procure some able bodied, and effective Man to go in his Stead, or shall absent, or conceal himself so that his Officer cannot find him to give him marching Orders he shall for either of the said Offences pay a Fine not exceeding Ten pounds, or be committed to Prison not exceeding Two months upon his being convicted thereof on Indictment, or presentment therefor by the Grand Jury for the County where the Offence shall be committed before any Court proper to try the same whose Duty it shall be to make a Presentment thereof—

And it is likewise Resolved, that the said Detachment of the Militia shall while out of this Government be under the General Command of the Commander in chief of the Continental Army, and shall be under the Laws, & Regulations provided by the Congress for said Army. —

And it is further Resolved, that the pay, & allowance of Provision for said Detachment shall be every way the same as that allow'd the Continental Army.

And it is likewise Resolved, that the Selectmen of each Town from whence any part of such Detachment shall be draughted, shall be, and hereby are directed, & impowered to procure as many Teams, or other Conveyances within their respective Towns, as shall be sufficient to carry the Baggage of the said fifth part of the Militia to Fairfield in Connecticut in the most expeditious Manner. And the said Selectmen are also directed to furnish said Men with Kittles, and Canteens: and also to pay each Man One penny for each Mile from the Place they march from, to the Place of their Destination, to support themselves, and to render an Account of those Expenditures to the General Court for allowance, and Payment.

And it is also Resolved, That the Brigadier of each County shall appoint one Chaplain, one Surgeon, and Mate, one Adjutant, and one Quarter Master to each Regiment that shall be so draughted from his Brigade; and the General Officer appointed to Command the Detachment shall appoint a Brigade-Major to each Brigade.

And it is also Resolved, That each Brigadier General, as soon as the Men are drafted, and formed into Companies, be, and hereby is directed to order them to march to Horseneck; subject however to such further Orders as they may receive from the General Court of this State, the House of Representatives, or the major part of the Council, or the Orders of the General, and Commander in Chief of the Continental Army.

And it is further Resolved, That in the Absence of any Brigadier of any County, the next Officer in Command in said Brigade, shall be held to do the Duty assigned to the Brigadier, and shall be obeyed accordingly.

And it is also Resolved, That the Commissary-General of this State be, and hereby is directed to send forward immediately to New-Haven, such Quantities of Ammunition as this Court shall order. In Council. Read, & Concurred. Consented to by the major part of the Council."—Council Records, vol. XXXV., p 221.

The following is the resolve of the Continental Congress, above referred to:—

"Resolved, * * * That it be recommended to the assemblies and conventions of the several states to the northward of Virginia, immediately to send all the aid in their power to the army at New-York:

That one of the continental battalions in Rhode-Island be ordered immediately to march, to reinforce the army at New-York:

That it be recommended to the assembly of Massachusets-Bay, to send to Rhode-Island a battalion of their militia, to supply the place of the continental battalion ordered from thence."—Journals of Congress: Sept. 3, 1776.

"Sept. 11, 1776. In Council. *Whereas the General Assembly of this State did by their Resolve of the 12th† Inst. order, & direct that one fifth part of the militia both of the Alarm, & Train Band List not now in Actual Service be drafted from the said Militia of the Counties of Suffolk, Essex, Middlesex, Hampshire, Plymouth, Bristol, Barnstable, Worcester & Berkshire, some Towns only excepted to March to the aid of the Army at New York in manner as is by said Resolves directed. And Whereas the Hon^ble the American Congress have requested the Assembly of this State to send One Battalion of the Militia thereof to the State of Rhode Island to supply the place of a Battalion in the Service of the united States ordered from thence to reinforce the Army at New York —

It is therefore Resolved, that the Men drafted from the Brigades in the Counties of Plymouth, & Barnstable in consequence of the aforesaid Resolves be, and hereby are Ordered, instead of marching to the aid of the Army at New York, to march to the State of Rhode Island to supply the place of the Continental Battalion, aforesaid and the major part of the Council of this State be, and hereby are desired to make out their Orders in writing to Major General Warren — commanding him immediately to Order the Brigadiers of the said Counties of Plymouth, & Barnstable as soon as their men are drafted agreeable to the Resolves aforesaid to form them into Companies of sixty four men each including Non-Commissioned Officers, and to officer them agreeable to the Resolves aforesaid, and the whole to form into One Regiment, & to be Officer'd agreeable to said Resolves, and to order them to march to Rhode Island for the purpose aforementioned the Resolves aforesaid notwithstanding — This Regt. to continue in the service until they are recalled by the Gen^l. Court of this State, the Major part of the Council, or the House of Representatives. In the House of Representatives. Read, & Concurred. Consented to by the major part of the Council." — Council Records, vol. XXXV., p. 226.

On the 16th, a committee of the House, consisting of Messrs. Sergeant, Wood, Hawley, Murray and Dix, was appointed "to consider some difficulties that attend raising the militia to reinforce the army at New York, and report what is proper to be done to remove the same." This committee reported, the next day, and, though their report has not been discovered, the following resolve appears to have been passed to carry out the recommendations of the committee: —

"Sept. 17, 1776. In the House of Representatives. ‡Whereas doubts may arise in the minds of some of the good People of this State, who are willing to go out at this important juncture against our unnatural Enemies agreeable to the Resolve of this Court passed the 12th* instant, about what time they shall be held in that Service. —

Therefore for removing any difficulties of that nature —

It is Resolved, that all those persons, who shall march out on this exigence, shall be recalled within the space of two months from this date at the farthest, and as much sooner as the Service may admit of —

And whereas some persons may, pursuant to the said Resolve of the 12th* instant be drafted for the purposes therein specified whose business, or other avocations may render it inconvenient for them to attend that duty personally, and may voluntarily chuse rather to pay down their fines; and some persons that have been already drafted may have paid the Fine by reason of their not knowing what Time they should be held in service —

It is further Resolved, that the commanding Officer of each Company be, and hereby is impowered to receive the fines of all such persons who will voluntarily pay the same, and to dispose thereof in the best manner he can for the purpose of raising other men for that Service — And such persons as have already paid their fines by reason of their not know ing how lengthy* should be held in the Service shall have the said Fine paid back to them by the Officer that receiv'd it, in case they incline to receive it back and to proceed upon the Service, or do procure some ablebodied effective persons to proceed in their room —

And in Order, that there may be no deficiency in the number of men for the above Service. — It is further resolved, that the commanding Officer of each respective company of the militia in any town, or in case the militia is not duly organized in any town then the respective committees of Safety &c. of such Towns, or the Selectmen, where there are no such Committees, are hereby impower'd and directed to muster the militia when, and so often as they may respectively find it necessary in order for the obtaining the Quota designed, and that all persons for non attendance, or for not marching when drafted shall be subject to the like penalties as are specified in the said Resolve of the 12th† instant, to be applied as aforesaid and that each man on his March shall be intitled to receive for his support a further sum of one penny ℔ mile from the place he marches from to the place of his destination — And the Selectmen of the several Towns are in like manner as in the former Resolve to pay the same, and lay their Accounts before this Court for allowance, and payment. In Council. Read, & Concurred. Consented to by the Major part of the Council." — Ibid., p. 274.

On the 9th of October, John Hancock, president of the Continental Congress, wrote, from Philadelphia, to the Assembly, by direction of Congress, enclosing certain resolves of that body relative to encouraging enlistments. These resolves, together with the letter accompanying them, are given below: —

"Gentlemen, The enclosed Resolves, which I transmit in Obedience to the Commands of Congress, will inform you of the ample Provision they have made for the Support of both Officer and Soldier, who shall enter into the Service during the War. The Pay of the former is considerably encreased, and the latter is to receive annually a compleat Suit of Cloaths, or in Lieu thereof, the Sum of twenty Dollars, should he provide the Suit for himself. This additional Encouragement, besides the twenty Dollars Bounty, & one Hundred Acres of Land formerly granted, the Congress expect will be the Means of engaging the Troops to serve during the War. For this Purpose also I am to request, you will appoint a Committee or Committees, to repair immediately to the Army, to induce such of the Troops as have been raised by your State, to enlist during the War, and to appoint officers for the same.

The Congress, for very obvious Reasons, are extremely anxious to keep the Army together. The dangerous Consequences of their breaking up, and the Difficulty of forming a new one, are inconceiveable. Were this Barrier once removed, military Power would quickly spread Desolation and Ruin over the Face of our Country. The Importance, and indeed the absolute Necessity, of filling up the Army, of providing for the Troops, and engaging them to serve during the War, is so apparent, and has been so frequently urged, that I shall only request your Attention to the Resolves of Congress on this Subject; and beseech you, by that Love you have for your Country, her Rights and Liberties, to exert yourselves to carry them speedily and effectually into Execution, as the only Means of preserving her in this her critical and alarming Situation.

I have the Honour to be,
Gentlemen,
your most obed^{t} & very hble Serv.
JOHN HANCOCK Presid^{t}." — Mass. Archives, vol. 195, p. 295.

Hawley, Partridge, Orne and Palmer, of the House, and Messrs. Spooner, Sever, Thomas Cushing and Whetcomb, of the Council.

The following report of this committee was made in Council, October 19th, sent down to the House, and returned with a vote of acceptance. The Council concurred, and the resolves were thereupon passed, and signed by fifteen of the Council: —

In the House, on the 29th of October, Messrs. Hawley, Dorr and Nye were appointed a committee to prepare a resolve for a temporary reinforcement of the army, and the next day another committee was appointed, consisting of the Speaker, and Messrs. Sullivan, Sergeant, Murray and Orne, to consider what steps are necessary to be taken for making ready such a reinforcement, if it should be required, and "to send off such expresses to the army as they think necessary for the public good."

On the 8th of November, the bill of this chapter was passed, in the House, to be engrossed, and was sent up for concurrence, and on the ninth, the Council concurred, with sundry amendments. Other amendments had been made in the original draught of the bill, before it went to the Council chamber; one of which was the interlineation of the words "Indians, negroes and molattoes" among the persons exempted in the first section. The amendments subsequently proposed were nineteen in number. Eight of these were adopted upon the report of a committee of conference consisting of Messrs. Hawley, Sullivan and Goddard, of the House, and Spooner, Gardner and Sewall, of the Council. Of the other amendments, eight were proposed by the House, on the 14th. These were adopted upon the report of another committee of conference, consisting of the same persons, with the exception of Mr. Dalton, who was substituted for Mr. Goddard, of the House, and Powell and Cushing, who were substituted for Spooner and Gardner, of the Council.

The following correspondence, and resolves of Congress, reveal the origin of the proceedings, hereunder given, which took place after the passage of this chapter:—

"Camp at Philipsburg Novr ye 21st 1776

Sir — Before the unfortunate affair of Fort Washington it was my opinion that the two Armies that on the East and that on the West side of N. River must rest each on it's own bottom — that the idea of detaching and reinforcing from one side to the other on evry motion of the Enemy was chimerical — but to harbour such a thought in our present circumstances is absolute insanity — in this perswasion shou'd the Enemy alter the present direction of their operations and attempt to open the passage of the Highlands or enter N. England I shou'd never entertain a thought of being succour'd from the Western Army. I know it is impossible — We must entirely therefore depend upon ourselves — to Connecticut and Massachusets I shall look for assistance — The time of service of the Men who compose the little Corps under my command is near expiring — the Enemy's Troops are well clad for a Winter Campaign — shoud They attempt when the Winter sets in to open the communication of the Highlands or enter N. England I know not what We have to oppose to 'em — some means must be devis'd to raise your regular Battalions for as to your Militia They are grown more detestable than ever, not from the bad quality of the Men for They are certainly good, but from the wretched character of the Officers, particularly the lower sort — who want evry attribute of Soldiers and Citizens — They want Spirit Patience Constitution Integrity and public virtue of course—if Your Men run away You may be assur'd that the way is led by the Officers — there are notwithstanding — some worthy subjects amongst 'em but the bad preponderate so enormously that little confidence can be plac'd in your militia — I must repeat therefore that I hope not only the legislative Body but the whole Gentlemen of the N. England Provinces will exert themselves to forwar'd the completion of the Continental Regiments — for Heaven's sake, Sir, contrive to send us some Blankets — otherwise We must dissolve away before the time of our natural Death — I hope the cursed jobb of Fort Washington will occasion no dejection the place itself was of no value — for my own part I am perswaded that if We act with only common sense spirit and decision the day must be our own — adieu, Dr Sir, and believe me to be most respectfully yours CHARLES LEE."—Ibid., p. 371.

"Resolved, As the opinion of Congress, that if the soldiers to be raised by the state of Massachusett's-Bay be inlisted on the terms offered to them, which are more advanta-

"Nov. 25, 1776. In the House of Representatives. *Whereas the Resolve of this Court of the 19th of October last so far as it relates to the additional Encouragement to the non Commission'd Officers, & Soldiers has been found to be attended with Inconveniencies, and the mode of the said Encouragement has been disapproved by Congress—

And Whereas the Hon^ble Congress by their Resolve of the 12th Instant have permitted an Inlistment for three years instead of an Indefinite Time.—Therefore it is—

Resolved, That the said Resolves so far as they relate to the additional Encouragement therein Engaged to be given to such non Commissioned Officers, & Soldiers as should Engage in the Continental Service on the part of this State agreeable to the Establishment of Congress, and to serve during the War, be & hereby is made null, & void, & shall be so consider'd, and the several Committees employed by this State to raise the Quota of the Army assigned to it, are to govern themselves accordingly — and Whereas it is just, & reasonable that a suitable Encouragement, should be given to such non Commissioned Officers, & Soldiers as shall Enter into the service of their Country in defence of its rights, & for the safety & security of every thing dear to themselves, and their fellow Countrymen against the most cruel, & barbarous Invasion ever devised by Tyranny, & Despotism on the Rights, peace, & happiness of any Country—therefore—

Resolved, that the Committees appointed by this Court to appoint Officers give out Beating Orders &c proceed in all things as directed by said Resolves so far, as relates to the Commission'd Officers.—excepting that the Term of Time within which certain Persons receive Beating orders, & inlisting men should be Intitled to six shillings for each man Inlisted be extended to the last Day of Decr. next, and that instead of the additional Encouragment propos'd by this State by the Resolves of the 19th of October last, there shall be paid out of the Treasury of this State to each non-Commissioned Officer, & Soldier not belonging to any other of the United States who shall Inlist into the Continental Army either during the War, or for the Term of Three years as part of the Quota of men assigned this State the Sum of Twenty pounds on his passing muster the said Bounty of Twenty pounds to be paid in Treasurers notes of Ten pounds each payable to the possessor in four years, with Interest to be paid annually at the rate of six ℔ cent—

And Whereas it is convenient, & proper that all that part of the army raised on the part of this State should be on the same footing—

It is therefore Resolved, that all such non-Commissioned Officers & Soldiers as may have inlisted into the army on the Encouragement given by Congress and by this Court in their Resolve of the 19th of October last be, & hereby are discharged from their said Inlistment upon returning such moneys, or other things received as a Bounty, or Encouragement to Inlist as aforesaid, and be at Liberty to inlist on the Encouragement given by these Resolves, and all persons who shall have inlisted into said Service, and shall not return such monys, or other things receiv'd in consequence thereof shall be deemed, and held to be Engaged to serve in the capacity wherein they Inlisted for, and during the Term of three years unless sooner regularly discharged, and shall accordingly be Intitled to, & receive the Bounty of Twenty pounds as aforesaid in lieu of the Encouragement before offered by the Resolves of this Court of the 19th of October last.—In Council. Read, & Concurred.—Consented to by 15 of the Council."—Council Records, vol. XXXVI., p. 200.

"Nov. 27, 1776. In the House of Representatives. The following, undoubtedly, are the letters referred to in the proceedings of the General Court, hereafter given. Another letter, received from Gen. Lee, suggesting an embargo upon all privateers until after the Massachusetts quota for the army should have been completed, could not have influenced the General Court in their proceedings, since it bears date at "Philipsbourg, Nov. 27th 1776," — a date so recent that it could not possibly have reached Boston before the resolves were passed.

The following letter was addressed to James Bowdoin:—

"Camp near Philipsbourg 22d. November. 1776.

Sir, Indecision bids fair for tumbling down the goodly fabrick of American Freedom and with it the rights of Mankind. 'twas indecision of Congress which prevented our having a noble Army and on an excellent footing. 'twas indecision in our military counsils which Cost us the Garrison of Fort Washington, the consequence of which, must be fatal, unless remedied in time by a contrary spirit. Inclosed I send you an Extract of a Letter from the General, on which you will make your comments, and I have no doubt but that you will concur with me in the necessity of raising immediately an Army to save us from perdition; affairs appear in so important a crisis, that I think even the Resolves of the Congress must no longer too nicely weigh with us—We must save the comaunity in spite of the ordinances of the legislature—there are times when we must commit treason against the laws of the state, for the salvation of the State—the present crisis demands this brave virtuous kind of Treason, for my own part, and I flatter myself that my way of thinking is congenial with that of M^r. Boidoin's, I will stake my head and reputation on the propriety of the measure—to come to the point, I request and conjure you therefore to wave all formalities and devise some means of compleating not only your Regiments prescribed to the Province, but to add if possible four Companies to each Regiment. We must not only have a force sufficient to cover your Province and these fertil district from the insults and irruptions of the Tyrant's Troops, but sufficient to drive 'em out of all their Quarters in the Jersey's—or all is lost, disaffection is daily encreasing in Pensilvania which must be check'd by a tremendous superiority—in the mean time send up a formidable Body of Militia to supply the place of the Continental Troops which I am order'd to carry over the River—let your People be well supplied with blankets and warm Cloathes as I am determin'd by the help of God to unnest 'em even in the dead of Winter—let me hear from you soon Yours most affectionately & respectfully

For Heavens sake lose no time in sending up the Militia—and a number of Shoes Stockings and blankets for the Army—if Massachusets and Connecticut do not now exert themselves, they must, and indeed ought to be enslaved, but if they act with the necessary vigor and virtue I will answer for the Success."—*Mass. nies, to take bonds in adequate penalties, for observing the regulations made by the Congress, or assemblies, or conventions, concerning trade, and for securing the observation of such parts of the association, as are not inconsistent therewith; and that the obligor shall, within eighteen months after the departure of the vessel, produce to such officers a certificate under the hands and seals of three or more reputable merchants, residing at the port or place where the cargo shall be delivered, that the same was there unladed, and take manifests upon oath, of the cargoes exported and imported, and keep fair accounts and entries thereof, give bills of health when desired, grant registers shewing the property of the vessels cleared out, and sign certificates that the requisites for qualifying vessels to trade, have been complied with: And that the fees of the said officers be stated by the respective assemblies or conventions. Provided always, that no prosecution upon any of the said bonds, shall be commenced, but within three years after the date thereof." — Journals of Congress: April 6, 1776.

On the 30th of August, the foregoing resolve, erroneously described, in the order, as of March 6th, was referred to a joint committee of the General Court, consisting of Messrs. Cheever, Palfrey and Story, of the House, and Thomas Cushing and Benjamin Austin, of the Council, with instructions to "report what is necessary for this court to do thereon." The committee was subsequently changed by substituting Samuel Holten for Thomas Cushing, and, finally, Moses Gill for Holten.

A letter (which has not been discovered) received from Nathaniel Barber was, on the 14th of October, referred to the above committee, and, on the next day, they reported, by Moses Gill, that they "are of Opinion, that it will be necessary for this Court to appoint a naval Officer in the several Ports of Boston, Salem, Newbury port, Glocester, & Marblehead, Plymouth, Ipswich, Falmouth in Casco Bay, Dartmouth York, Pownalboro,' and the Island of Nantucket, whose Business shall be, to take bonds in adequate Penalties, for Observing the regulations made by the General Congress or General Assembly of this State concerning Trade and take Manifests of all Cargoes exported, and imported, and keep fair Accounts, and Entries thereof give bills of Health when desired, and sign Certificates that the requisites for qualifying Vessels to trade have been complied with, and that the fees of the said Officers be stated by this Court, and that a bill be brought in for the above Purposes" — Council Records, vol. XXXVI., p. 26.

This report was accepted, forthwith, by a vote signed by fifteen of the Council, and, on the 17th, a committee, consisting of Messrs. Batchellor and Orne of the House, and Gill of the Council was appointed "to prepare a bill relating to the power and fees of naval officers."

On the 17th, a petition was received praying for the establishment of a naval office at "Gooldsboro and Machias," and, on the 23d, a petition was received "praying that a naval officer may be appointed at Bristol in the county of Lincoln." These were severally referred to different committees.

On the 29th, a bill for the above purpose had been reported to the Council, read, and sent down to the House. On the first of November, the bill was recommitted, by a concurrent vote, and again reported, with amendments, on the 8th, when the amendments were agreed to, and the bill was passed, by the House, to be engrossed; which vote was reconsidered the next day, and the bill was again recommitted. The bill, was reported, in a new draught, on the 14th, to the Council, where it was read, and sent to the House. On the 18th, it was passed, in the House, to be engrossed, and sent up for concurrence. On the 19th, the Council concurred, with amendments, which the House agreed to the same day, and proposed a further amendment, which was agreed to by the Council, and, on the 20th, the bill was passed to be enacted, and was signed by fifteen of the Council.

"State of the Massachusetts-Bay in New England } To the honorable Council & honorable house of Representatives of said state in great & general court assembled—

Humbly shew the Proprietors of Pearson-town, so called, in the county of Cumberland, that they were under a necessity, in the infancy of the settlement of that township, in time of an indian war, & as the only means to prevent the breaking up of the settlement, to take up a certain thirty acre lot of land there, near the fort, before that time laid out as a school lot agreeable to the reservation in the original grant of the township, & to divide it into five acre lots to accommodate the settlers & bring them near together & near said fort; that the persons placed on said lots, by their labour & industry, & in danger of their lives, cleard & brought the same into a state of cultivation & improvement, & apprehending they had thereby acquired an equitable title to them, sold & disposed of them;—that, after sundry mean conveyances, they are now claimed, by purchase, by Benjamin Titcomb & David Richardson. Your Petitioners further shew, that they at their legal meeting on the fifteenth day of July last, desirous, at once, of complying with said reservation in the original grant of the township, of giving content & satisfaction to the Inhabitants, & of quieting the said Titcomb & Richardson in their titles & possessions to & of said thirty acres, granted other lands, in different parcels & places, in the township, amounting to two hundred acres at least, in lieu of said lot, & as an equivalent for the same, with which, the Inhabitants are fully satisfied, as your Petitioners are ready to shew;

Wherefore your Petitioners, who are joined in this request by said Inhabitants, humbly pray that said Thirty acre lot may be confirmed to said Titcomb & Richardson, their heirs & assigns, according to their respective Interests therein, & that said equivalent lands may be granted & confirmed to the Inhabitants of said Township, for the time being, forever, for the purpose of supporting a school or schools there. And your Petitioners as in duty bound shall ever pray by

On the 12th of September, a resolve was passed, in concurrence, that the prayer of the foregoing petition be granted, and that the petitioners have leave to bring in a bill, accordingly. A bill, bearing the title of this chapter, was read in the House, a first time, on the 12th of October, and, on the 30th, was read a second and third time, passed to be engrossed, and sent up for concurrence. In the Council, after two readings, it was passed, in concurrence, to be engrossed, on the 19th, and, on the 23d, it was passed to be enacted and was signed by sixteen of the Council.

Chap. 24. The bill of this chapter, having had three several readings in the House, was there passed to be engrossed, and sent up for concurrence, on the 22d of November. No information, respecting the action of the Council, having reached the House, it was sent for, by message, on the 30th of November. No response to this message has been found; but, on the second of December, this bill was read twice, and passed to be engrossed, in concurrence, and sent back to the House. The House immediately passed it to be enacted, and returned it to the Council, where it was passed to be enacted, in concurrence, but not being returned, at once, to the House, it was again sent for by message, on the third, and thereupon sent down to the House, signed by fifteen members of the Council.

"Dec. 5, 1776. M$^{r.}$ Pickering came up with a Message from the Hon^{ble} House to acquaint the Board that the House cannot agree with having a Stamp upon the Notes for the emission of £200,000 in Notes as the Delay will take up too much Time, and also brought up the Bill for said Emission." — Council Records, vol. XXXVI., p. 272.

After this disagreement the following resolve was passed, on the same day, relative to stamping notes of future emissions: —

"In the House of Representatives. *Resolved, that the Hon^{ble} Council be desir'd to cause to be procured as soon as may be a suitable Machine, and Stamp for impressing a mark on such notes as may be issued, by order of the General Assembly of this State, after the same shall be procured—and the Treasurer of this State is hereby directed to have all the Notes issued after that time stamped, or impressed in such manner as the Council shall direct.— In Council. Read, & Concurred.— Consented to by 15 of the Counvil." — Ibid.

The following order does not appear to relate to any other issue than the £200,000 authorized by this chapter: —

"Dec. 26, 1776. In the House of Representatives. †Order'd, that M$^{r.}$ Jeffries, and Mr. Hill be added to the Committee for Countersign the Treasurer's Notes for borrowing £150,000. and that any two of them countersign the said notes. In Council. Read, & Concurred.—Consented to by 15 of the Council." — Ibid, p. 343.

* Printed resolves of the November session, chapter CXLVI. † Ibid., chapter VI.

At the maturity of the notes issued under this chapter the following resolve* was passed: —

"Dec. 29, 1779. In the House of Representatives—Whereas it appears to this Court that a considerable Sum in Notes issued by the Treasurer of this State became due on the Second of this instant December and no provision is made to enable the Treasurer to pay said Notes or the Interest thereof—therefore, Resolved that the Treasurer of this State be directed and he is hereby accordingly directed to pay out of such moneys as he may have in his hands any of the aforesaid Notes for which payment may be demanded, and in case the holder of any of the aforesaid notes is not disposed to receive the principal, the Treasurer is hereby impowered and directed in such case to pay the Interest only, and the holder of said Notes shall be intitled to receive and the Treasurer is hereby impowered and directed to pay the Interest of said Notes annually until the Note or Notes shall be paid.—In Council Read and Concurred Consented to by fifteen of the Council." — *Ibid., vol. This was the last act for emitting bills that were not to replace bills already issued either by the Legislature of Massachusetts or the Continental Congress, passed in this state before the Constitution. — See note to 1777-78, chap 7.

Chap. 31. The following resolve having been passed by the Continental Congress, a joint committee was appointed to consider and report thereon: —

"Resolved, therefore, That it be recommended to the several legislatures in these colonies, whether assemblies or conventions, to pass acts or ordinances, prohibiting the arrests of continental soldiers for small debts; and in order that the same rule may pervade all the colonies, that no soldier be arrested at the suit of any of his creditors, unless the said creditor make oath, that the said soldier is justly indebted to him in the sum of thirty-five dollars over and above all discounts; and that the estate of no such soldier be liable to attachment at the suit of, or for the benefit of all his creditors, unless their debts in the whole, on being ascertained by their oaths, shall amount to more than one hundred and fifty dollars." — Journals of Congress: Dec. 26, 1775.

The above committee reported to the House, as early as Jan. 29, 1776, as follows: —

* Printed resolves, chapter LVI. † Ibid., December session, chapter CXXXV.
‡ Ibid., November session, chapter CLXIII.

"4th. That a Bill be brought in prohibiting the Arrests of Soldiers in the Continental Army, and the Attachment of their Estates for small Debts." — House Journal, p. 219.

A committee, consisting of Messrs. Godfrey and Mills, of the House, and Sever, of the Council, was thereupon appointed to bring in a bill, accordingly. An ineffectual attempt was made, in the House, the next day, to procure the insertion of a "provision to prevent desertion from the army, and any person from harbouring deserters."

Before any further action was taken upon the subject of this bill, a letter was received from Gen. Gates, which led to the passage of the resolve, given below, exempting enlisted soldiers from arrest in actions of trespass. This resolve was reported by James Sullivan:—

"Apr. 1, 1776. Whereas this Court has received Information that John Park, the Deputy-Quarter-Master-General of the Army of the United Colonies, and Richard Duff, his Clerk, are arrested at the Suit of William Thompson Merchant, in an Action of Trespass, wherein the said Thompson, Complains that the said John and Richard broke, and entered his Dwelling-House, and made an Assault on his Person, and broke his Household Furniture in said House being — and it being suggested to this Court, that the said John and Richard entered said House by Order of their superior Officer, to quarter Soldiers there, and it appearing to said Court, that in the present State of our public Affairs, the producing Suits against Persons employed in said Army for their entering the Houses and Enclosures of the Inhabitants of this Colony, in support of said Army would have a Tendency more Dangerous than the suspending such Suits for the present:

It is therefore Resolved, That there shall be no Suit produced or prosecuted, nor any Writ or Precept served on any Officer or private Soldier now in, or that have been in the Army aforesaid, the last or present Campaign, for any Entry by them made on Houses or Lands in this Colony, while they were in the Service of the said Colonies, and all Sheriffs and other Officers are commanded to take Notice and govern themselves accordingly, and that they do not execute or return any Writ against such Person now in their Hands, or that shall hereafter be delivered them, until this Court shall further consider of this Matter and re-consider this Resolve." — Ibid., p. 68.

Here the matter of exempting soldiers from arrest seems to have been allowed to subside, until Feb. 4, 1777, when a bill, which had been passed to be engrossed, in the Council, was sent to the House, for concurrence. The House proposed amendments, striking out the words "the fifteen battalions allotted by the American Congress as the quota of this state for reinforcing," after the word "raising," in the preamble, and adding the second section. These amendments were agreed to by the Council, which, in turn, proposed amendments, changing "fifth" to "seventh," in the third line of the first section, and inserting the word "further," in the second enacting clause. These amendments being concurred in by the House, the bill was passed to be enacted, in concurrence, on the seventh, and was signed, though by only six of the Council; notwithstanding which, its authority seems never to have been questioned.

By the following resolves, the exemption was extended to cases of all debts contracted since enlistment, and to all debts contracted previous to enlistment under £15 in amount:—

"State of Massachusetts Bay In the House of Representatives May 8th, 1777 *Resolved that no Soldier inlisted into the Contenental Army shall be arrested for any Debt which he has contracted or may contract after his Enlistment. —

Resolved that any such Soldier, who may have been already arrested for any debt contracted since his Inlistment, shall, at the desire of his Commanding Officer, be immediately released, the said Officer paying all Charges then arisen on the Suit — which Officer is to lay his Account before the General Court, or in the Recess thereof before the Council for immediate payment.

Resolved that no Soldier inlisted into the Continental Army shall be Arrested for any Debt by him contracted previous to his Inlistment unless it amounts to more than Fifteen pounds to be ascertained as is prescribed in an Act of this State intitled 'An Act to prevent the Arresting Soldiers for Small Debts, who have inlisted or shall inlist into the Continental Army any Act or Resolve of this State to the Contrary notwithstanding

This act was intended to apply only to soldiers enlisted in the campaign then projected. At a later period, therefore, it was deemed necessary to extend the exemption to soldiers enlisted in a subsequent campaign, which was done by the following resolve†: —

"State of Massachusetts Bay In the House of Representatives June 23: 178 Whereas some detriment may arise to the Publick if some provision is not made to hold the men from being arrested for Debts who have or may voluntarily Inlist or that have been or may be drafted to Reinforce the Continental Army the present Campaign.

in any of the said colonies, being entitled to the protection of the laws during the time of such passage, visitation or temporary stay, owe during the same allegiance thereto:

That all persons members of, or owing allegiance to any of the United Colonies, as before described, who shall levy war against any of the said colonies within the same, or be adherent to the king of Great Britain, or other enemies of the said Colonies or any of them within the same giving to him or them aid and comfort, are guilty of treason against such colony:

On the third of September, by a concurrent vote of both houses of the Assembly, the committee, appointed in July, to take into consideration the test-act of the previous year (see note to 1775–76, chap. 21, ante), were empowered to bring in a bill relative to high treason, and "enjoined to sit forthwith." On the 25th of October, the Council, in response to a message from the House, replied that the committee had not reported a bill. On the ninth of November, the House appointed Mr. Sullivan, upon the committee, in place of Mr. Cooper, who was absent; and, ten days later, the House sent a message to the Council, informing the Board that it was their desire that they would enjoin the committee "to sit forthwith." This request was repeated on the 25th; whereupon the Council replied that the committee had reported a bill, which they had under consideration; that the bill had had one reading, and that a time had been assigned for a second reading. The date of the first reading was November 20th, and of the second reading, November 25th, when it was passed to be engrossed and was sent to the House for concurrence.

On the seventh of January, the House passed the bill, in concurrence, to be engrossed, with fourteen amendments, the most important of which were the insertion of the words "within or without the limits of this state," twice in section two; also of the clause, in section nine, relating to the forfeiture of goods and chattels; the changing of the number of peremptory challenges, in section thirteen, from thirty-five to twenty-three, and, finally, to twenty; and the substitution of the words "immediately upon such attainder," in section twenty-two, for the words "without any office found of the same."

The following substitute for section twenty-four was rejected; but the other amendments, proposed, were adopted upon the report of a committee of conference appointed on the 28th of January: —

"And be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid. That any Person who shall commit or be attainted of Treason or Misprision of Treason, at any time — in any Recess of the General Court of this State may be reprieved by the Supreme Executive Authority thereof until the second Wednesday of the then next sitting of said General Court and no longer — But no Pardon shall be at any time granted, in any such Case, but only by the General Court for the time being by Warrant under the Great Seal of this State."

The bill passed to be engrossed, in the Council, on the 31st, and, on the next day, it was passed, in concurrence, to be enacted.

The foregoing memorial was presented to the Council, Sept. 13, 1776. It was referred to a joint committee, consisting of Holton, of the Council, appointed that day, and Messrs. Dix and Turner, of the House, appointed three days later.

On the 16th of October, the committee reported to the Council, "as their opinion, that the memoralists have leave to bring in a bill for the purposes mentioned" in their memorial. This report was forthwith accepted, and a resolve was passed in accordance therewith, in which the House concurred.

No further proceedings on this memorial have been discovered, until March 11, 1777, when a bill for the purpose prayed for was passed, in the House, to be engrossed, after having been read three times. It was sent to the Council, for concurrence, the same day. Five amendments were proposed by the Council, which were concurred in by the House on the 12th, and, on the 19th, the act was passed and signed.

Chap. 34. The prayer of the inhabitants of the territory "on or near St. George's River," resulted in the enactment of chapter 17, which, as will be seen on a comparison of their petition (note to chapter 17, ante) with the act aforesaid, was not a compliance with their request. The reasons of the failure of the petitioners to secure such legislation as they asked for, appear in the petition below; and the proceedings which ensued thereupon, also given hereunder, show the steps leading to the enactment of the present chapter, which was intended to gratify the wishes of the original petitioners: —
"State of Massachusetts } The Memorial of Mason Wheaton to the Honble the Bay } Council and the Hoñble the House of Representatives of said State in General Court assembled—
Your Memorialist would humbly represent to the Hoñble Court the Misconduct of Capt. Samuel Gragg & the Imposition on the Hoñble Court by him, in his maletreatment of me & divers Inhabitants on the Easterly Side of St. George's River—
In July last your Memoralist with thirty six others on the Easterly Side of said St. Georges River petitioned the Hoñble Court praying that We & our Lands might be incorporated into a Township, whereupon the Hoñble Court ordered us to notify the other Inhabitants of said St. Georges by serving them with a Copy of said Petition & the order of Court thereon, that they might shew Cause if any they had on the third Tuesday of the then next sitting of the General Court why the Prayer thereof should not be granted. The Petition we sent by Col. Cushing of Pownalborough & none of us were present— said Gragg being then at Watertown went to the Deputy Secretary as I have been credible informed & took said order of Court to bring to us, but neglected ever to deliver the same to either of us & secreted the same by which means we were ignorant of the time when we were to be heard—just before the appointed time we accidentally heard that there was to be a hearing but knew not the time—we however sent up Mr Elisha Snow to support said Petition, but the Court having at that time matters of greater Moment before them could not attend to private Affairs. Upon which said Mr. Snow left his Papers with Mr Murray a Member of the Hoñble Court who promised if another Day was appointed for a Hearing he would endeavour we should be notified thereof, but we were never informed by Mr. Murray or any other Person that a further time was appointed—Nor did we hear anything further of the Matter till in October, when to our Great surprize and Damage we were informed that said Gragg & one Capt. McLean of Milton petitioned the Hoñble Court that the Inhabitants with their Lands on the West Side of said St. Georges might be incorporated into a Township & unknown to us included your Memoralists & six other Families with our Lands within the Bounds of said Township, utterly against our Wills & much to our Damage as is fully set forth in the Petition accompanying this Memorial—

The Town of Warren has more Inhabitants & much more and better Lands without us than the Petitioners on the Eastern Side of said River hath with us—

Your Memorialist would further represent that said Gragg, in order to injure the Character of your Memorialist, in a Petition presented the Honble Court in July last set forth that he was in Possession of certain Lands belonging to Thomas Flucker & others & that he refused to put the same under the Care & Direction of the Committee, which your Memorialist can make appear an absolute Falshood by the Testimony of the Committee themselves accompanying this memorial

The Land prayed for to be incorporated is contained within the Yellow Lines in the Plan on the East Side of the River, and the Land on the West Side of the black line within the Yellow lines is the Land incorporated in the Town of Warren

"To the Honourable Council and House of Representatives of the State of the Massachusetts Bay, in general Court assembled

The Petition of the Subscribers, Inhabitants of a Tract of Land lying on and near to St Georges River in the County of Lincoln, Humbly Sheweth, That your Petitioners with a Number of other Persons, did sometime past, prefer a Petition to the Honourable Court, therein praying, that we, with our Lands might be Incorporated into a Township; but through some inattention or neglect, the Prayer of said Petition hath not been granted, and also we understand that several Persons then Petitioners with us, are with their Lands annexed to another Town without their Knowledge or Consent, and utterly against their inclination; The particular Reasons for their and our desiring to be joined in a Township, are Because we are of the same Opinion as to the form of Church Government, that is Congregationals (whereas the most of the Inhabitants with which they are incorporated are of the Presbiterian way) The Tract of Land also is very conveniently scituated, & not over large, being but little more than the Contents of Six Miles square, viz. about twenty four Thousand eight Hundred & twenty acres but exclusive of those Families & their Lands which are taken off from us, and annexed to the other Township, we have but about nineteen thousand four Hundred & fifty acres, which we apprehend is much too small for a Township, neither is there any Islands or other Lands that can conveniently be annexed to us (without including some Inhabitants without their Consent, which we desire not to do) whereas the Town now incorporated by the Name of Warren contains above Sixty Square Miles viz. about thirty eight Thousand eight Hundred and thirty acres. A due Consideration of these Facts we humbly apprehend, will induce your Honours to discontinue that incorporating Act so far as relates to those Families. And to shun the many inconveniencies to which unincorporated Plantations are exposed, and procure the Benefits arising from Incorporation which we apprehend will greatly increase the growth of this Place; Your Petitioners pray, that the said Tract of Land, Bounded as followeth viz. Northwesterly by a Line beginning at St Georges River at the westerly Corner of John Alexander's Lot, from thence running as his Line runs North thirty two Degrees East about seven Miles to the Township called Camden belonging to the twenty associates called the Lincolnshire Company; westerly by St Georges River; Southwesterly by a Line Beginning at a Spruce Tree marked Number twenty three and twenty four on the Neck the Eastern Side of St Georges River, thence running East South East between the Lots Number twenty three and twenty four across said Neck about three Miles to the Sea Shore, Southeasterly by Muscle Ridge Bay, so called, Eastwardly by Owls Head Bay, and Northeasterly about five Miles by Camden Line aforesaid, to where it intersects the Line first mentioned, said Camden Line runs from the Sea Shore or Owls Head Bay at a place called Clam Cove Neck a North west by North Course; together with all the Islands that lieth within three miles of the Main Land, and within the Direction of the Lines that run to the Sea; may be incorporated into a Township, and that we may be invested with all the Powers and Priviledges that other Towns in the said State do enjoy: But if the Honourable Court should not be disposed to annex those Families and their Lands to us according to these given Lines, we being so few in Number and the Tract of Land so small and uncultivated, that we are by no means able to maintain a Minister or support the Gospel and enjoy the other essensial Benefits arising from Incorporation, in that Case we cannot desire to be incorporated, but pray that a Committee of the Honourable Court may be appointed, and come down, at our Expence, view and determine the Proper Lines and Boundaries of our Township. And your Petitioners as in Duty bound shall ever pray &c.

"To the Honourable the Council and House of Representatives of the State of Massachusetts-Bay, in general Court assembled.

The Petition of the Subscribers, humbly sheweth, That your Petitioners with a Number of other Persons, living on and near St Georges River in the County of Lincoln, did prefer a Petition to the Honourable Court praying that we might be incorporated into a Township by certain Meats and Bounds therein mentioned. The Reasons for our desiring to be annexed to them, with whom we then petitioned are, First, Because our Lands and Possessions are much more commodiously scituated for that purpose, than to be joined to any other, Secondly, Because our Sentiments as to the Mode of Church Government is the same with theirs, that is, Congregational; And thirdly, Because we find a general Hermony between us and them in other Matters, as well as in the Mode of Church Government; the reverse of all these we find with respect to the other Inhabitants with whom we (to our great Sorrow) understand that we are incorporated, they having gathered a Church and settled a Minister according to the Presbiterian Mode, in which Proceedures we never could unite, but ever declined, & absolutely refused to have any concern therewith, for the above mentioned Reason: and now they have stated their Lines and included us in their Township purely with a view to have us under their Controul, and to take and dispose of our Money not only without our Consent, but contrary to our express Sentiments and Principals (so far as relates to Mode of Church Government) which is a Hardship so great, that we humbly trust your Honours will never expose us to: Wherefore your Petitioners most earnestly pray that we with our Lands may be disconnected from that Township, and erected into a Township according to our former Petition: But if the Honourable Court should not think proper, from a Consideration of these Reasons, to grant this Petition, we further pray that a Committee of the Honourable Court may be appointed and come down, at our Expence, and view and make Report according to their Discretion. And your Petitioners as in Duty bound shall ever pray &c.

N B Altho there is but about Twenty three signers to M$^{r.}$ Snows Petition and Others, yet I am Confident, that there is Ten more, that would Gladley have signed, if they had an oppertunity, nor is there one man Within the Limits, Prayd for but what is Desireous to be Incorporated with us, this I Can Assert with the greatest Asurance and can Evedently make the same Appear MASON WHEATON."—Ibid., p. 139. On the first of January these petitions, and the accompanying papers, were referred to a joint committee consisting of John Taylor and Joseph Cushing, of the Council, and Messrs. Partridge, Kimball and Danielson, of the House. On the same day the following counter-petition or remonstrance, was referred to the same committee.

"State of the } To the Hon^{l} Council, and the Hon^{l} House of Representatives of Massachusetts Bay } said State In General Court assembled, at Boston Dec^{r} 1776

The Petition of Hugh M^{c}Lean of Milton Agent for the Inhabitants of the town of Warren in the County of Lincoln, humbly shews—

That your Petitioner, being informed, that a Number of Settlers in said County scituate on and near the River S^{t} George's & commonly known by the name of the middle town, have petitioned your Honors to be incorporated, and in order thereto have requested certain Lands within the said township of Warren to be set off to them; Your Petitioner therefore begs leave to represent to your Honors, that the said tract of Land, which is requested by the said Inhabitants of the middle town to be set off to them, is almost the only valuable spot within the township of Warren, and is of more Importance to the Inhabitants of said town, than all the other Land within their boundary, and without the benefit & profit of which they shall be entirely unable to support a Minister.— For these Reasons, the Subject of the Petition of the said Inhabitants of the middle town, (which has been long apprehended) has been matter of serious Consequence to your Petitioner's Constituents, he therefore prays your Honors that the said Petition may be dismissed, or at least suspended. 'till the said Inhabitants of Warren can have an Opportunity of being freely & fully heard upon the matter; which cannot be till they have compleated & complied with the Requisitions of this Hon^{l} Court for supplying their proportion of Men for the Continental Service, a matter which at present engrosses all their Attention, and as in Duty bound shall ever pray &c HUGH M^{c}LEAN."—Ibid, p. 130.

On the 3d of January, 1777, Elisha Snow and others, and John Shibles and others, the petitioners, were ordered to serve the committee of correspondence of the town of Warren, with a copy of their respective petitions, that the town might show cause why the prayer thereof should not be granted, on the second Tuesday of February, if the Assembly should be in session; otherwise, upon the first Tuesday of the following session. On the the sixth of February, an order was passed reciting that,—

"Considering the great Distance all the aforesaid Parties are from this Place, it being more than two hundred miles Distance and the great Probibbitily there is that the Parties are now on their Journey to attend this Court and the great cost that must Necessarily attend their Coming again and more especially inasmuch as some of them have already been at the expence of three or four Journeys the above Distance, on the aforesaid subject And the great probibitily there is that this court will not be setting on the second Tuesday of February instant."—(Ibid, p. 137.)

— and appointing a joint committee, consisting of Moses Gill, of the Council, and Messrs. Story and Pitts, of the House, "to hear the parties and report what is best for this court to do thereon, and to make their report at the next sitting of this court."

In the mean time, the following memorial from the town of Warren, and the accompanying two powers of attorney to Major Wheaton, were received:—

"To the Honourable Counsil and house of Represen ives of the State of the Massechusetts Bay in General Court assembled at Boston

On the 7th of March, the committee last appointed made the following report, which was accepted, the same day, by the Council, and, on the 13th, by the House:—

"The Committee of Both Houses appointed to consider the Petitions of John Shibbels & others of the Town of Warren Praying the Lands mentioned in said Petition might be

disannexed from said Town & incorporated with the Easterly Part of S^t^ Georges, also the Petition of Elisha Snow & others on the Easterly Part of S^t^ Georges, Praying that the Lands mentioned in Both said Petitions might be incorporated into a Town — have attended that service and after a full hearing of both Parties are unanimously of opinion That the Lands mentioned in the said Shibbels Petition ought to be disannexed from the Town of Warren and Annexed to the Eastern part of S^t^ Georges as they apprehend that the General Court would never have made said lands part of said Town of Warren had they been Acquainted with their Situation and Circumstances

And your Petitioners are also Clearly of opinion that if the Eastern part of S^t^ Georges together with the Lands aforesaid be taken off from the Town of Warren and are Erected into a Town it may be of Service to the Inhabitants and of public Utility —

Your Committee therefore beg leave to report that the Petitioners have leave to bring in a Bill for disannexing the Lands mentioned in said Shibbells Petition from the Town of Warren, and for incorporating the same with the Easterly part of S^t^ Georges as Described in a Petition of Mason Wheaton & others of July last into a Town — All which is humbly submitted — MOSES GILL dp^y^ order." — Ibid., p. 140.

After this report had been accepted by the Council, and before the House had passed upon it, the following petition was presented, which gives some interesting details respecting the case of the petitioners, not to be found elsewhere: —

"State of the Massachusetts Bay } To the Hon^ble^ the House of Representatives of said State —

Humbly sheweth The Petition of Mason Wheaton of the Town of Warren in the County of Lincoln —

That in July last your Petitioner with about forty others, Inhabitants on the Easterly part of S^t^ Georges petitioned the hon^ble^ Court praying that we together with the Lands described in our Petition might be incorporated into a Town that we might enjoy the Privileges as well as perform the Duties of a Town; but as we were at more than two hundred Miles distance, we did not either of us attend personally but sent said Petition by Col. Cushing of Pownalborough a member of the hon^ble^ House; & the Court at that time were pleased to order your Petitioners to notify the Inhabitants of the West side of S^t^ Georges to shew Cause if any they had why the Prayer of said Petition should not be granted, but your Petitioners were so unhappy as not to receive said Order of Court — Just before the time appointed we heard a Rumour that we were to have a hearing but knew not the time when, however we sent up M^r^. Elisha Snow to find out the time & to support said Petition. But when he came he was informed by M^r^. Murray a Member of the hon^ble^ House that the Court were so much engaged in raising a Reinforcement for the Continental Army at Ticonderoga and near New York that they could not attend to any Matters of a private Nature, & promised that he would endeavour to have some future time appointed for a hearing & in case he obtained it he would inform us thereof, upon which said Snow returned home, after which a day in October was appointed for a hearing, when again we were so unhappy as not to hear thereof till the time was elapsed altho' I have no doubt M^r^. Murray wrote to us as he promised. Soon after this to our great Grief & Surprize we were informed that Cap^t^. Gragg of S^t^. Georges & one Cap^t^. M^c^Lane of Milton in behalf of the Inhabitants on the West Side of S^t^. Georges petitioned Your'Honors praying that they with the Lands mentioned in their Petition might be incorporated into a Town and in said Petition they included the best part of the Land and Improvements & at least one third part of the rateable Estates mentioned in our Petition, altho' the West part had much more Land and better Land as may fully appear from a Plan now on your Honors' Table and more Inhabitants without any part of that mentioned in our Petition, than we on the East part had even ask'd for, yet the Prayer of their Petition was granted altho' none of us were at Court or knew any thing of the Matter. But, as we were confident the Court never would have taken from Us four or five Thousand Acres of the best Lands & Improvements to our utter Ruin and give it to the West Side who had upwards of thirty three thousand Acres without & your Petitioners not twenty six thousand with it, had the true Circumstances of the Case been known; we who were incorporated with the Town of Warren without our Consent or Knowledge and to our great Grief & Damage, again petitioned the hon^ble^ Court in January last praying we might be disannexed from the Town of Warren and with the Inhabitants of the East Part be incorporated into a Town agreable to our first Petition, & the Inhabitants of the East part at the same time petitioned, praying that they with us might be incorporated together, at which time the Court ordered us to notify the Town of Warren to shew Cause if any they had on the second Tuesday of February then next, why the Prayer of our Petition should not be granted, with which order we readily complied & your Petitioner was at the trouble & Expence of going himself to said Warren which is upwards of two hundred Miles to serve said Notification & return'd here in the beginning of February to support said Petitions, but the Court adjourn'd before the Day appointed for a hearing, having first in their great Goodness appointed a Committee of both Houses to hear the Parties, in order to prevent any more Journies and needless Expences to the Petitioners which had been very great and grievous already — Cap^t^. Gragg & Cap^t^. M^c^Lane were seasonably & fully acquainted with the above order yet by their nonattendance they prevented a hearing before the hon^ble^ Committee repeatedly & from time to time, till at length your Petitioner was again at the trouble of notifying them by an order from said Committee of the Appointment of another day for the hearing when they attended, for the truth of which together with the unweary'd Pains & Expences I have been at in order that the matter may be fully & fairly heard & finally determined I appeal to the hon^ble^ M^r^. Gill, W^m^. Story & John Pitts Esq^rs^. who were the Committee, who unanimously reported in favour of our Petition, which Report has been considered and accepted by the Hon^ble^ Council but your Petitioner is informed the Hon^ble^ House after reading the Report of the Committee & order of Council thereon have ordered the same to lye on the Table till the Members of the County of Lincoln come to Court; But as there are but four Representatives from the County of Lincoln neither of whom live nearer than thirty or forty Miles to the Lands in Dispute & considering the great distance they are from Court being almost two hundred Miles & the Travelling very bad renders it very uncertain whether they be here this Session — And in as much as your Petitioner hath been obliged to make three or four Journeys more than two hundred Miles each & hath now been waiting for the Determination of the hoñble Court more than thirty Days, he therefore most earnestly prays your Honors would be pleased once more to take into Consideration said Petition & the Report thereon & let the matter be finished that your Honors and your Petitioner may have no further Trouble on that Account —

If the hoñble Court desire further Information relative to the true State of facts, your Petitioner begs leave to mention that the Hoñble John Taylor Esq^r. Major Minot and Cap^t. Minot all of whom live in the Town adjoining the Town of Warren & S^t. Georges and are now in Town can give Information relative thereto and if your Honors please can be inquired of —

And your Petitioner as in Duty bound shall ever pray —

Boston 12^th March 1777 MASON WHEATON."

On the day the above report was accepted by the House, the bill of this chapter was read a first time, in the Council; on the next day (Oct. 14), it was read a second time, passed to be engrossed, and sent to the House, for concurrence. It was immediately returned from the House, with a vote of concurrence. On the 20th, it was passed to be enacted, and was signed by fifteen of the Council.

"The Committee appointed to make Answer to the Message of the Major part of the Council, of the 4^th of May Instant, report

In the House of Representatives May 1776

Resolved that the necessary Charges that have arisen, or may arise in Supporting such Prisoners as are or may be taken on board Vessels infesting this Coast, or Supplying our Enemies (whose Confinement is for the Safety of this Colony) and the Guards accompaning them, be paid out of the Colony Treasury, as other Contingent Charges are paid, untill further order of the General Court; and that part thereof Charged to the Continent in order for a reimbursment, of Such Prisoners that have been or may be taken by Continental Vessels."—*Mass. While this matter was in the hands of the committee the following letter was received:—

"Head Quarters Harlem Heights 29^th Sep^r. 1776

Gent^n. Gen^l Howe having signifyed to me, a desire of making a General Exchange of Prisoners both Officers and privates, it becomes necessary to have an exact Return of the Numbers in our possession.

You will therefore be pleased to have all the Continental prisoners of War, (belonging to the Land Service) in the different Towns in your State, collected and brought together to some convenient place, from whence they may be removed hither when a Cartel is fully settled — when they are collected you will please to have made out, and transmit to me, an exact Return of the Names of the Commissioned and Staff Officers, their Ranks and the Corps to which they belong; The Names of the non commissioned and privates need not be mentioned their Numbers will be sufficient.

As it will be more convenient to send them by water than by land, which may always be safely effected by means of a Flag; I think you had better order the prisoners to some place contiguous to a port, there to remain till you hear farther from me.

As I apprehend the Number of prisoners in the State of New Hampshire to be too small to make up a Freight for a Vessel, I have directed, if that should be the Case, that they should be sent to your State, that they may come forward with your prisoners.

You will be pleased to forward the inclosed to Lieu^t. Col^o. Campbell of the 71^st Reg^t. I am not certain where he is stationed but think it is at Reading.

I have the Honor to be Gent^n.

The omitted portion of the postscript related to the release of Capt. Campbell, of the 71st British regiment, who, for breaking his parole, had been removed from Lunenburg, and incarcerated in Concord jail, by order of the Council. He repeatedly petitioned the Council for release, without success, and then applied to Gen. Washington. After a while, he was restored to his parole, and ordered to Reading.

Washington's letter was referred to a joint committee, consisting of Messrs. Austin and Dana, of the Council, appointed October 10th, and Palmer, Bayley and Farley, of the House, appointed the day following." On the 17th, the committee reported,—

* "That the Council be desired to order the Sherriffs of the several Counties within this State, to make an immediate return to them of all prisoners belonging to the Land Service of Great Britain within their respective Counties, with the names of the Commissioned, & Staff Officers, and to what Corps belonging and the number of the Non Commissioned Officers, and privates, whether under their immediate care, or under the care of any Committees of Safety, or others; and that they make like returns of all prisoners belonging to the British Navy, and these Returns (of the Navy and Army) to be made in separate, & distinct Lists, And the Hon^ble. Board are desired to transmit such Returns to his Excellency General Washington — That said Prisoners remain in their present situations until advice is received from General Washington, that a Cartel is settled, and they Ordered to be exchanged. The memorial described in the following extract from the records, has not been found:—

"Oct. 25, 1776. Memorial of the Com^tees of Correspondance &c for the Town of Newbury port.—Setting forth, That there are now in that Town a number of the Subjects of the King of Great Britain, who were taken, & sent into this port in Vessels, either employ'd in his immediate Service, or by the Inhabitants of his Dominions.— As at present they have no Authority to Restrain those people, they have been down to our Fort Viewed the Entrance, & every other part of our Harbor, and daily Visiting our Wharves, Frigates, & Armed Vessels now laying there — By indulging them in these Liberties, the Com^tees conceive they will be able, when they return to England, to give the Enemy, some Interesting Intelligence — That by their taking Lodgings, in different parts of the Town, they have contracted an Acquaintance with many of the Inhabitants to whom they Represent our situation in the darkest Colors, and the Enemy as invincible — And praying the Court to Order, that those who are not Willing to Enter on board the Continental Frigates, or Privateers may be removed, to some Inland Town, till they are Exchanged, or otherwise released."—Ibid., p. 76.

This memorial was referred, October 25th, to a joint committee, consisting of Messrs. Hopkins of the Council, and Murray and Cooper, of the House. To the same committee was also referred the petition of Ellis Gray, chairman of the committees of safety, &c., of the town of Boston, which is set forth in the following entry in the records, although it is missing from the archives:—

"Oct. 25, 1776. Petition of Ellis Gray Chairman of the Com^tees of Boston — setting forth — That numbers of Persons of Sentiments the most unfriendly to these States taken by our Vessels of War are from Day to Day brought into this Port — that these Persons are not deemed prisoners of War — that no Provision is made for them as such — that they are subject to no particular Inspection, & are under no Restraint — By mixing with the People at large they receive every advantage of Intelligence, & they have every opportunity of associating of laying, & executing any Plan for the destruction of the Town — There are also a number of Highlanders who were taken, & brought into this Place who yet reside among us, & who by being able to converse with each other in the Erse, a language altogether unknown here are peculiarly qualified for the most secret, & dangerous Plots

Nor are these Persons who go at large the only ones by whom our safety is endangered — Prisoners confined in the public Goal have been discovered in their Attempts to give Information to Gen^l Howe of our present Weak, & defenceless State, & full Evidence of their Designs are now in our Possession.

Our situation calls to mind a Resolve of the honorable Con^l Congress recommending that no Prisoner of War be kept, in any sea port — which Resolve the Com^tees humbly & earnestly, pray the Hon^ble Court to put into immediate Execution &c." — Ibid.

The resolve of Congress referred to in the petition of the Boston committee, is as follows: —

"Resolved, That all prisoners taken in arms on board any prize, be deemed prisoners, to be taken care of by the supreme executive power in each colony to which they are brought, whether the prize be taken by vessels fitted out by the continent, or by others:

That such as are taken be treated as prisoners of war, but with humanity, and be allowed the same rations as the troops in the service of the United Colonies; but that such as are officers supply themselves and be allowed to draw bills to pay for their subsistence and cloathing:

That officers made prisoners in the land service be allowed the same indulgence:

That the officers be not permitted to reside in or near any sea port town, nor public post road, and that the officers and privates be not suffered to reside in the same places:

That in case the officers cannot draw or sell their bills, the Congress will allow for each of them Two Dollars a week, for board and lodgings, to be repaid by said officers before they are released from their captivity:

That no tavern keepers supply any officers who are prisoners, on the credit of the continent:

That the capitulations entered into with prisoners at the time of their surrender be punctually observed:

* Printed resolves, chapter XXX.

That such officers as surrender prisoners of war be put on their parole, unless Congress shall otherwise direct:

That the FORM of the PAROLE be as follows:

I —— being made a prisoner of war, by the army of the Thirteen United Colonies, in North-America, do promise and engage, on my word and honour, and on the faith of a gentleman, to depart from hence to —— in the province of —— being the place of my destination and residence, and there, or within six miles thereof, to remain during the present war between Great-Britain and the said United Colonies, or until the Congress of the said United Colonies, or the assembly, convention, or committee or council of safety of the said colony shall order otherwise; and that I will not directly or indirectly give any intelligence whatsoever to the enemies of the United Colonies, or do or say anything in opposition to, or in prejudice of the measures and proceedings of any Congress for the said colonies during the present troubles, or until I am duly exchanged or discharged.

Given under my hand, this day of A.D. 1776.

That the said parole be signed by the officers:

That such as refuse to subscribe the parole be committed to prison:

That David Franks, Esq; agent to the contractors for victualling the troops of the king of Great-Britain, be permitted to supply the prisoners with provisions and other necessaries, and to sell his bills for such sums of money as are necessary for that purpose:

And to enable him to do this to the satisfaction of his employers, that a commissioned officer be permitted once a month to visit the prisoners so victualled and supplied, in order to count their numbers and certify the rolls:

That a list of the prisoners in each colony be made out by the committees of the counties, towns or districts where they reside, and transmitted to the assembly, convention, or council or committee of safety of such colony respectively, who shall send a copy thereof to Congress:

That the said assemblies, conventions, and committees or councils of safety be impowered to contract with proper persons for the most reasonable terms for supplying such of the prisoners, their wives and children, in their respective colony as are not supplied by Mr. Franks:

That the said assemblies, conventions, and committees or councils of safety, be authorized and requested to take the paroles of the officers, and to cause a strict observance of the terms on which they are enlarged, and also to take especial care that none of those confined by order of the Congress, be suffered to escape; also to advance the allowance of Two Dollars a week to each of the officers who cannot draw or sell their bills and to draw for the same on the president of the Congress:

That the said assemblies, conventions, committees or councils of of* safety of the colonies respectively in which prisoners are or shall chuse or be appointed to reside, be impowered to remove such prisoners from place to place within the same colonies, as often as to such assemblies, conventions, committees or councils of safety it shall seem proper, having regard to the former resolutions of Congress concerning prisoners."— Journals of Congress: May 21, 1776.

Nothing further appears to have been done relative to securing and supporting prisoners, until the introduction of the bill of this chapter, which was passed to be enacted, March 27, 1777.

Chap. 36. The letter from Gen. Washington referred to below has not been found in the archives: —

"Aug. 13, 1775, Moses Gill, Esq; brought down from the Board the Resolve of the Committee of both Houses, in Consequence of General Washington's Letter, respecting Desertion from the Army, viz.

Whereas it is made evident to this Court, that many Non-commission'd Officers and Soldiers belonging to the Continental Army, do absent themselves from their Duty; and that there is great Reason to believe divers of them are employed in their own private Business while they are drawing Pay from the Publick, and all the Measures hitherto used have been ineffectual to prevent such base and pernicious Practices: Therefore in order to reform this Mischief and Abuse,

It is Resolved, That the Committees of the several Towns in this Colony, and the Selectmen where such Committees are not chosen, be, and hereby are directed and enjoined to make careful and diligent Enquiry from Time to Time, whether there be any Non-commission'd Officers or Soldiers within their respective Towns, belong to the said Army, and if any such shall be found, that they bring them to a strict and impartial Examination upon what Account they left the Army, by whose Leave and for what Time; and to require all such as have no Furlow, or whose Furlows are out, and have no real Impediment of Sickness, to return to their Duty immediately: And in Case they neglect it, that such Committees or Selectmen do without Fail or Delay, send an Account of their Names, the Company and Regiment to which they belong, and the Places where they are lurking, to his Excellency General Washington, that so such infamous Deserters and Defrauders of the Publick may not go unpunished. And it is strongly recommended to all the Inhabitants of this Colony, to be Aiding and Assisting to their said Committees and Selectmen in the Execution of this Resolve; and that they by no Means countenance, harbour or conceal, but on the other Hand, give Information of all such Delinquents to the said Committees and Selectmen, that they be Vigilant and Faithful in the Discharge of this Trust.

And his Excellency General Washington is hereby requested to give Orders, that the foregoing Resolve be posted up in such Publick Places in the Camps as to him shall seem proper, that the Soldiery of the Army may be excited to take into their serious Consideration, the Baseness, Fraud and Villainy of the abovemention'd Practice, that they may thereby be made sensible, that every one who shall be guilty thereof, will greatly disparage himself, become justly contemptible and deserving of severe Punishment, and wholly forfeit the respectable Character of an American Volunteer.

Ordered, That the foregoing Resolve be Printed in Hand Bills, and directed to the Committee of Correspondence or Selectmen in the several Towns in this Colony, and that Fifty Copies thereof be sent to General Washington Also,

That a Committee be appointed to procure the Printing the said Hand Bills, to direct the Printer as to Number, and to superscribe them to the several Towns, &c:

That the following Letter to General Washington, accompany the said Copy, viz.

Watertown, 13th August, 1775

General Washington, Sir,

The inclosed Hand Bills will sufficiently serve to satisfy your Excellency, that the General Court fully concur with you in your Opinion of the Importance and Necessity of the utmost Exertions for the Reformation of the infamous Practices mention'd in your Letter of the 7th inst. directed to the President of the honorable Board; and also, of the Readiness of the General Court to Co-operate with you in every Measure, tending to remedy the Mischief therein complained of. In Council, August 13th 1775

Read and accepted. Sent down for Concurrence. Read and concurred. Sent up.

Ordered, That Col. Freeman, Major Hallet and Col. Thompson, be a Committee to see to the Printing this Resolve in Hand Bills, and sending it to the several Towns in the Colony, and that fifty Copies thereof be sent to General Washington."—House Journal p. 70.

The next measure for preventing desertion was the following resolve* :—

"Sept. 10, 1776. In Council. Resolved that the several Returns of Colº Patterson, Colº. Bond, Colº. Greaton, & Colº. Porter's Regiments describing the several persons Deserters from each of said Regiments with this Resolve be printed, & sent to the Committees of Correspondance, Inspection, & safety of each Town in this State, and the said Committees are directed to make a strict search, & enquiry after such Deserters as describ'd in said Returns, and upon finding any of the said Deserters to take care, & secure them in the Common Jail of the County, in order that they may be forthwith returned to their several Regiments — And the Committee aforesaid are enjoined to take special care, & use their best endeavors to take up, & confine as aforesaid any other person, or persons who have inlisted into the public service that have, or may hereafter leave the Army, or the Regiments to which they belong before the time of their inlistment is out, unless they can shew a regular discharge, or furlo from his, or their superior Officer, and the said Committees are enjoined to make returns of their doings hereon as soon as may be to the Secretary of this State. And all necessary charges attending the securing such deserters, shall be paid out of the Treasury of this State, and shall be deducted out of the said Deserters Wages.

In Council, Read, & sent down. In the House of Representatives. Read, & accepted, & Order'd, that Mr. Appelton see that the foregoing Resolve be printed, & sent to the several Towns as is therein directed. In Council, Read, & Concurred. Consented to by the Major part of the Council."—Council Records, vol. XXXV., p. 221.

On the 21st of October a joint committee was appointed, consisting of Messrs. Nye and Lothrop, of the House, and Whetcomb, of the Council, to take the foregoing resolve into consideration, and report whether anything "further is necessary to be done in that affair." This committee reported the following resolve, which appears among the printed resolves as chapter LXIV., and bears date October 24th, though it appears not to have been finally passed until five days later:—

The bill of this chapter was passed, by the Council, in concurrence, to be engrossed, March 26, 1777, and, on April 4th, it was passed to be enacted.

The following order in Council explains itself, and seems proper to be inserted here:—

* Printed resolves of the August session, chapter LXI. † Ibid., chapter LXIV.

Chap. 37. The letter of John Hancock, dated Oct. 9, 1776, which is printed in the note to chapter 21, ante, contained the following postscript: —
"The printed Resolves herewith enclosed, relative to the establishing of Loan Offices in the respective States, for the Purpose of borrowing Money on Continental Security, and the Regulations with Regard to the same, I beg Leave to recommend to your immediate Notice & Attention, and that you will take the proper Steps to comply with them" — Mass. Archives, vol. 195, p. 297.
Hereunder are given the resolves referred to in the foregoing postscript: —
"Congress took into consideration the report of the board of treasury, on the ways and means for raising a farther sum of money; whereupon,
Resolved, That five millions of continental dollars be immediately borrowed for the use of the United States, at the annual interest of four per cent. per annum:
That the faith of the United States be pledged to the lenders for the payment of the sums to be borrowed, and the interest arising thereon, and that certificates be given to the lenders in the form following, viz.
'The United States of America acknowledge the receipt of ——— dollars from ——— ———— ——, which they promise to pay to the said ————————, or bearer, on the ———— day of ————————, with interest annually, at the rate of four per cent. per annum, agreeable to a resolution of the United States, passed the third day of October, 1776. Witness the hand of the treasurer, this ——— day of ————, A.D.
Countersigned' by the commissioners of one of the loan-offices hereafter mentioned.
That, for the convenience of the lenders, a loan-office be established in each of the United States, and a commissioner to superintend such office be appointed by the said states respectively, which are to be responsible for the faithful discharge of their duty in the said offices:
That the business of the said commissioners shall be to deliver certificates for all such sums of money, as shall be brought into their respective offices agreeable to these resolutions, which certificates shall be indented and the checks kept in the said office — to keep books, in which regular entries shall be made of the sums borrowed and the time when, and the names of the persons, by whom the said sums were lent — to transmit to the continental treasurer once a month an account of the cash in their respective offices, and to answer all draughts of the treasurer to the amount of the cash, which they shall at any time have in their hands, as aforesaid:
That the treasurer of the United States shall send to the respective loan offices such a number of certificates and of such denominations as shall be ordered by the commissioners of the treasury:
That no certificate be issued for a less sum than three hundred dollars:
That the several sums of money to be borrowed shall be repaid at the office, where the same was lent at the expiration of three years, and that — the annual interest shall likewise be paid at the said office:
That the said commissioners of the respective loan offices be intitled to receive of the United States, one eighth per cent. on all monies, which shall be brought into their respective loan offices in lieu of all claims and demands, that they may have for transacting the business of the said office." — Journals of Congress: Oct. 3, 1776.
"Resolved, That it be recommended to the assemblies and conventions of the United States respectively, to annex such penalties by law to the crime of counterfeiting the certificates or notes of the continental loan office, as are or shall be annexed to the crime of counterfeiting the continental currency.
Ordered, That the resolutions for borrowing five millions of dollars, together with the above resolve be published, and copies thereof sent to each of the United States, and that the respective states be desired to send to the committee of the continental treasury the names of the commissioners by them appointed in consequence of the said resolutions." — Ibid., Oct. 7, 1776.
The joint committee to which Hancock's letter and the accompanying paper were referred, concluded their report as follows: —
"Your Committee further report as their Opinion that it will be expedient for this State agreeable to the resolutions of Congress of the 3^d of October last to Establish a loan Office and to appoint a Commissioner to superintend said Office, for the Convenience of such Persons as may be disposed to lend their Mony to the Continent at the rate the Congress have prescribed. — All which is submitted." — Mass. Archives, vol. 210, p 480.

On the first of November, Congress passed the following resolves providing for carrying into execution the above resolve relating to the loan offices, and looking to the establishment of a lottery: —

"Congress took into consideration the report of the committee on the ways and means of supplying the treasury; whereupon,

Resolved, That a sum of money be raised by way of lottery, for defraying the expences of the next campaign, the lottery to be drawn in Philadelphia."—Journals of Congress: Nov. 1, 1776.

The following precautions were afterwards taken to prevent counterfeiting the tickets of this lottery: —

"Congress took into consideration a report from the board of treasury for carrying into execution the resolutions of Congress relative to the loan-offices; whereupon,

Resolved, That the certificates be of the following denominations —

1470	of 600	882,000
2205	of 500	1,102,500
2940	of 400	1,176,000
3675	of 300	1,102,500
11027		5,000,000

That the value or denomination of the certificates, be in different parts thereof in print and writing:

That each denomination have a check letter, corresponding with a letter in the margin to be left in the book:

That the several denominations be further distinguished from each other by having the border at the end of the certificate varied or altered from the rest:

That the engraved ornaments between the margin, or part left in the book and the certificate, be cut indentwise, first having occasional dashes made with a pen across it, of the colour with which the treasurer signs his name:

That the impressions of the rolling press with the signature of the treasurer in certificates of the highest denomination be made with yellow ink, of the second with blue, of the third with red, of the fourth with green, and of the fifth or lowest denomination with purple." — (Ibid., Nov. 15, 1776.)

— and, twelve days later, they passed the following resolve to prevent further the counterfeiting or forging of the tickets: —

"Resolved, That it be recommended to the legislatures of the United States respectively, to pass such laws as will most effectually tend to prevent the counterfeiting or forging of the tickets of the public lottery."— Ibid., Nov. 27, 1776.

On the 6th of February, the House concurred in the following resolve* passed by the Council the day before: —

"Whereas The Hon'ble Congress did by a Resolve pass'd the 3rd of October last direct that a loan Office should be Establish'd in each of the United States, & that a Commissioner to superintend such Office should be appointed by the said States Respectively, who are to be responsible for the faithfull Discharge of their Duty in said Office — And this Court in Pursuance of said Resolve have appointed a Commissioner for that Purpose.—

It is therefore Resolved That the Person appointed to said Office shall before he proceeds upon the Execution of said Trust give Bond with two Sureties to the Treasurer of this state in the penal Sum of Ten Thousand pounds that he will faithfully execute said Trust, & Strictly adhere & Conform to the directions he has or may Receive from the Congress Relative to the discharge of his Duty as a Commissioner of the Loan Office Aforesaid."— Mass. Archives, vol. 212, p. 311.

The following is a part of a report presented by Tristram Dalton; the rest of the report related to the forging of bills of public credit, &c., and appears in the notes to chapter 44, of this year, and chap. 39, of 1778–79, post: —

"The Committee appointed to consider of several Resolves of the Hon^ble^ Congress — dated Octo 7^th^. Nov. 27^th^. 1776 and Jan^y^ 14^th^ 1777 — and to report what is proper to be done thereon — have attended that Service — and beg Leave to report —

That an Act be passed by this State to prevent the counterfeiting the Bills or Notes of the Continental Loan Office — agreeable to the Resolve of Octo 7^th^ — and also to prevent the counterfeiting or forging the Ticketts of the public Lottery — agreeable to the Resolve of Nov 27^th^."— Ibid., vol. 137, p 126.

The bill of this chapter was passed, by both houses, to be engrossed, April 4th, and on the next day it was passed to be enacted.

Chap. 38. The subject of providing for the preservation and sequestration of the estates abandoned by refugees, early engaged the attention of the committee of safety, and, on May 3, 1775, they directed the quarter-master-general "to pay the strictest attention that the household furniture of those persons who have taken refuge in the town of Boston may be properly secured, and disposed of in places of safety;" and, on the 22d of May, all persons in the province were forbidden to take any deed, lease or conveyance of the real estate of the refugees. Complaints still coming in, of waste and destruction of the property of certain refugees, this committee resolved, June 13, 1775, "that it be recommended to the honorable Congress now sitting at Watertown, that they take the above into their consideration, and act thereon, as to them in their wisdom shall seem meet."

The provincial congress, upon the recommendation of the committee of safety, had already appointed "a committee to consider and report what is proper to be done with the grass growing on the estates of the refugees at Cambridge, Charlestown, Roxbury and Milton," and, upon the report of this committee, they had recommended the committee of safety to appoint some person or persons, in those towns, to cut the grass, and secure the hay, growing on the said estates, "in some convenient place, for the benefit of the colony."

They also appointed a committee to take care of the estates of the refugees, and another committee "to take into consideration the property of some persons, who have left their habitations in sundry towns in this colony, and also have discovered themselves to be enemies to the rights of this colony, and the continent."

The report of this last named committee was, on the 21st of June, put into the form of a resolve, which was accepted, and ordered to be printed in the Cambridge, Watertown and Worcester papers. It ran as follows: —

"Whereas, the property of some persons who have left their habitations in sundry towns in this colony, and have discovered themselves to be enemies to the rights of this colony, and the continent of America, in general, and have taken refuge in Boston, and other places, under the protection of the enemies to said colony and continent: therefore, Resolved, that it be recommended to the selectmen and committees of correspondence of the several towns and districts of this colony, where any property is to be found belonging to any of the aforesaid persons, that they take the same into their care, and make the best improvement thereof in their power; and also, that it be recommended to the said committees or selectmen, to use their endeavor, that no strip or waste be made on such property, and to keep an account of all the rents and profits arising from the same, and to be accountable for the same, to this, or some other Congress or assembly of this colony, when thereto required; they having a reasonable allowance made for their trouble." — Printed Journals of the Provincial Congress, p. 368.

On the 3d of July, the committee of safety, passed resolves with regard to asking the coöperation of the provincial congress, in securing the property of Gov. Hutchinson, at Milton; but the congress ordered the matter to "subside;" it "being before provided for by this congress."

Three days later, Messrs. Hawley, Sullivan and Taylor, were appointed a committee, to bring in a resolve explanatory of the resolve of June 21st. On the 8th of July, Capt. Stone was appointed to this committee, in the place of Mr. Sullivan, and, on the same day, the report of the committee was made and accepted, and the following resolve was passed: —

"Whereas, a certain resolve was made and passed, on the 21st day of June last, respecting the improvement of the estates of several persons who have fled to General Gage, in manner as is expressed in the said resolve, and it being made to appear to this Congress that the said resolve is taken in such a sense, in divers parts of this colony, as to make it necessary, that some explanation of the said resolve should be made by this Congress, it is therefore, Resolved, that henceforward the said resolve ought not to be construed to extend to any estates of such persons, excepting such estates as are left unimproved and void of any occupant, or possessor, and that no other estate of such person ought to be treated in the manner prescribed in the said resolve, until they shall be regularly indicted and tried for their supposed offences.

Ordered to be printed in the several papers." — Ibid., p. 475.

The following appears to have been the final action upon the subject, by the provincial congress: —

"July 11, 1775. Resolved, That the persons employed in cutting the grass on the land of the refugees, be allowed half a pint of rum, each, per day. — Ibid., p. 486.

On the 15th of August, 1775, the House of Representatives appointed Capt. Thatcher, Mr. Putnam and Deacon Rawson, a committee to examine and report upon the resolves of the provincial congress, respecting the estates of the refugees. This was followed by the appointment of another committee, consisting of Messrs. Nye, Kingsbury, Hovey, Allen and Low — changed some days later by the substitution of Mr. Bent, for Mr. Nye, who was absent. On the 9th of November the committee last named reported the following resolve: —

"Whereas there are a Number or Persons in y^e^ Several towns In this Colony that have Left Estates Both Reial & Personal and [A] Have taken Refuge in Boston & Else-where & joined themselves to Our inveterate & unatural Enemies & thereby Render^d^ themselves justly Odius to all true freinds of this Country Therefor Resolv^d^ that y^e^ Select men and Commitys of Corespondence In the Several towns where Such Estates may be found. And to take Care of all the Produce and Dispose of y^e^ Same to y^e^ Best advantage wherever it may be found on Such farms or Estates Except Such as are Improv^d^ for y^e^ Imediate use of this Colony or Continent and that the s^d^ Select men & Commity^s^ Continue their Care of all Such Personal Estate & Produce as they shall not dispose off & keep an aco^t^ of their Doings thereon until the further Order of this Court and Lay their Aco^ts^ [B] Before them when Requir^d^ [C] and that M^r^. J. WARREN Spk^r^." — Mass. Archives, vol. 207, p. 270.

The House, having, on the 11th of December, sent a message to the Council, to inquire if the Board had passed upon the resolve, as reported, the Council took the matter into consideration, on the 13th, and finally concurred in the resolve, with the following amendments; viz., "at [A], insert 'have left no person to occupy the same and;' at [B], insert 'on oath;' at [C], insert 'that justice may hereafter be done to the public, as also to those individuals, when due inquiry can be made into their conduct.'" Of the amendments proposed, the first and last did not receive the concurrence of the House. The resolve was sent for, by the Council, on the 18th, and, on the 27th, not having been reported upon by the Council, it was again sent down to the House, by request. By the minutes upon the original draught, in the archives, as well as by the recorded doings of the Council and House, upon this resolve, on the 18th and 27th, it does not appear to have been passed, notwithstanding an entry to that effect in the so-called records of the General Court.

On the 5th of January, 1776, a committee of the House, consisting of Messrs. Hawley, Sullivan and Rice was appointed to bring in a resolve empowering the selectmen, and committee of correspondence, of the several towns where there are estates of any refugees, to dispose of them as they may judge most just and prudent. This committee, on the 8th, reported certain resolves, which, with the amendments proposed by the Council, are given below:—

"Jan. 8, 1776. The Committee appointed to bring in a Resolve for disposing of the Estates of the Refugees, reported. Read and accepted.

Whereas several Persons belonging to this Colony have joined the ministerial Troops, and others who are in an hostile Manner endeavouring to further the Measures of the British Administration for enslaving the uniting American Colonies, and several others belonging to this Colony have absconded and removed themselves out of this Colony with intent either to promote and further the said Measures of Administration, or to escape the Trouble and Expence of a necessary Opposition to such wicked and Arbitrary Measures, and divers of both Sorts have left Estate either Real or Personal within this Colony: And whereas much Estate so left has been already wasted, and more thereof is liable to be wasted and perish: And whereas some of the said absconding Persons have by various Arts procured the Rents of their deserted real Estates, and their Personal Estate itself or the Proceeds thereof to be remitted to them.

Therefore Resolved, That the Selectmen and the Committee of Correspondence of any Town in this Colony, where the Estate either Real or Personal, or both, belonging to any such Person or Persons above described, shall be found, be and hereby are impowered and directed according to their best Discretion and Judgment so to Manage, Order, and Lease such Real Estate, as that waste may be prevented as much as possible for the future, and also to take Possession of, order and dispose such Personal Estate as (A.) above described, in such Manner as that the same may not be embezzled or suffered to perish, and also in such Manner as neither the Rents of such Real Estate or the Personal Estate itself or the Proceeds thereof should get to the Hands or Use of any of (B) the above described Persons or any of them, in no Case wherein such Selectmen and Committee shall judge it inexpedient and against the Public good of the Colony, any former Orders or Resolves of Congress or General Court to the contrary notwithstanding.

And that such Selectmen and Committee of Correspondence keep such fair and full Accounts of all their Proceedings and Doings in the Premises as that they may be able to inform the General Court thereof (C.) whenever they shall be thereto required. Sent up for Concurrence."— House Journal, p. 127.

"Jan. 11, 1776. Caleb Cushing, Esq; brought down the Resolve which passed this House the 8th Instant, relative to the Estates of Refugees, with the following Vote of Council thereon, viz. In Council, January 11th, 1776. Read and concurr'd with the Amendments specified in the annexed Paper. Sent down for Concurrence.

The Amendments proposed by the Hon. Board are as follow, viz. at A dele 'above described,' and insert,' who have joined the ministerial Troops and others, or who have absconded this Colony as aforesaid.' At B dele 'the above described Persons or any of them,' and insert,'those who have joined the Ministerial Troops and others, or who have absconded the Colony as aforesaid.' At C add, 'to whom they are to be accountable, provided always, that nothing in the foregoing Resolve shall extend to such Estates Real or Personal, as are now improved by Persons late Inhabitants of the Town of Boston, who have given up their Estates in said Town to the Owners of the Estates on which they now dwell.'

Read and non-concurr'd, and the House propose the following Amendments, viz. At A dele 'above described,' and insert 'who have joined the Ministerial Troops and others, or who have absconded this Colony as aforesaid.' At B dele 'the above described Persons or any of them' and insert 'those who have joined the Ministerial Troops and others, or who have absconded this Colony as aforesaid.' Sent up for Concurrence."— Ibid., p. 141.

Nothing appears, on the records or in the archives, to show that the foregoing resolves were adopted.

The House Journal contains the record of another set of resolves, which appear to have been the foundation of the resolves which were finally passed, April 23d, and which are hereinafter printed in full. The resolves in the Journal are as follows:—

"Feb. 14, 1776. Whereas sundry Persons of this Colony have joined our unnatural Enemies, who are in a hostile Manner endeavouring to inslave the united Colonies; and others have absconded, and removed themselves out of this Colony, with intent either to aid the despotic Measures of our Enemies, or to escape the Trouble and Expence of a manly Opposition to our wicked Adversaries: And divers of both sorts, have left Estates either Real or Personal, much of which has been already wasted, and more is liable to Waste. And as some of said Persons have, by various Arts, obtained the Rents of such deserted Estates, and such Personal Estates also, or the Proceeds thereof:

Therefore Resolved, That the Selectmen, and the Committee of Correspondence (if any such) of any Town in this Colony, where in their Opinion there is any such Real or Personal Estate as aforesaid, shall, and they hereby are impowered and directed until the further Order of this Court, according to their best Discretion and judgment, to take Possession of, and so to Order and Lease such Real Estate, as that Waste may be prevented as much as possible for the future: and also to take Possession of, and so to Order and dispose of such Personal Estate as that the same may not be embezzled, or wasted; and also, in such Manner as that no Part of such Estates, or of the Profits arising therefrom, should get into the Hands, or any way Benefit such Persons, who have (or shall have joined our Enemies, or absconded as aforesaid; any former Order or Resolve of the Congress of this Colony, or of our General Court to the contrary notwithstanding. And such Selectmen and Committees of Correspondence (if any such) shall keep fair and full Accounts of all their Proceedings and Doings in the Premises, and shall render such Accounts to this Court, when thereunto required, and unto whom they shall be accountable.

On the fifth of April, a committee previously appointed "to consider what is proper to be done with those persons, in Boston, who have appeared to be inimical to the colonies," was directed "to consider what is proper to be done with the effects of such as may be confined by order of court, and report" This action was taken in order to justify that committee in reporting a clause respecting the estates of refugees which they seem to have prepared without special authority and which was struck out of their report before it was adopted by the House. (See 1778-79, ch. 48, note, post.) On the 8th, the House resumed the consideration of the resolves which "passed the House at the close of the last session" (Feb. 14), and, for that purpose, the resolves were sent down from the Council, upon a message therefor from the House. On the 9th, these resolves were committed to Messrs. Sullivan, Dwight, Story, Rice and Freeman. This committee was changed, on the 12th, by the substitution of Messrs. Stickney, Stone and Brooks, for Messrs. Sullivan and Freeman, excused, and Dwight, who was absent. Col. Davis was added to the committee, on the 15th, and, on the 17th, Major Ely was substituted for Col. Brooks. On the 19th of April the following resolves were passed: —

"Whereas sundry persons of this Colony have joined our unnatural Enemies who have in a hostile manner been endeavouring to enslave the United Colonies; and others have absconded & removed out of this Colony with intent to aid the despotick measures of our enemies and divers of both Sorts have left Estates both Real & personal much of which have been already wasted and more is liable to waste therefore

Resolved That the Committee of Correspondence Safety & Inspection in each and every Town & plantation in this Colony where there is any real or personal Estate in their respective Towns belonging to any person or persons that in their opinion have fled to Boston in the late time of distress to secure themselves or that have joined the unnatural Enemies of the United Colonies or that have withdrawn themselves out of this Colony to aid the despotick measures of our Enemies — That they immediately take possession of all such Estates and according to their best discretion and Judgment for the use of this Colony order and Lease out such Real Estate to such person or persons and for such sum and sums of money as they shall think proper for the space of one Year and that they return to this Court a true Inventory of such personal Estate as they shall receive into their possession belonging to each such person and also an Account to whom they shall let the said Estate and the Amount of the Rent they shall agree to be paid for the same any former order or Resolve of the Congress of this Colony or of the General Court to the contrary notwithstanding provided always that nothing in the foregoing resolve shall be construed to extend to such Estates as aforesaid whether real or personal as are now held & possesed by persons friendly to this Colony by Virtue of any written conveyance bearing date and Actually executed on or before the 22d day of May 1775 —

And whereas sundry persons in this Colony did not actually join our unnatural Enemies nor remove out of this Colony but have discovered a strong attachment to them and been aiding & assisting them in their wicked designs all in their power and have approvd of their measures —

It is therefore further Resolved That the Committee aforesaid be directed to make return to this Court at or before the second Tuesday of their next Session of the names of all persons who have in any manner acted against or opposed the Rights and Liberties of this Country, or who have signed or Voted any address to General Gage approving his Errand to this Colony or his Administration since the dissolution of the General Court at Salem in 1774 or to Governor Hutchinson after the arrival of General Gage or to General How, or who have signed and promoted any Association for joining or assisting the Enemies of this Continenent and of such as have fled from this Colony to or with the British Army fleet or elsewhere together with their respective crimes and Evidences or depositions which may be procured to prove the same unless such person or persons shall have given ample Satisfaction to the public of their sincere contrition thorough reformation and firm attachment to the Rights and Interest of this and the other united Colonies of America — And it is recommended to the Justices of the peace in the several Counties to aid & assist such Committees in taking such Depositions as may be procured in the premisses:

Hereunder are given the principal proceedings that took place in respect to the estates of refugees, after the passage of the foregoing resolve: —

"In the house of Representatives May 2d. 1776

Whereas by a resolve of this Court in March last a Committee was appointed after the enemy fled from Boston to repair to the Town of Boston and there take possession of Houses and real Estates personal and other moveable Effects belonging to mandamus Councellors and others that were left in the said Town by any person who went off with the Fleet and Army and to keep the same in their possession till the further order of the General Court And whereas afterwards viz^t. on the 19th. day of April last a resolve passed this Court impowring the Com^tees. of Correspondence &c^a. to lease out the Real Estates of Certain persons therein particularly mentioned and to return an Inventory of all personal Estate belonging to such persons as they should receive into their possession as by the same resolve will fully appear —

And whereas it is Apprehended by some persons that the resolve last mentioned may interfere with the resolve for appointing the Com^tee. aforesaid to take possession of the personal Estates of those who went off from Boston with the Fleet and Army therefore

Resolved That the Com^tee. Appointed by the house of Representatives for the purpose first mentioned be and they hereby are fully Authorized and impowred to retain in their possession all such Real and personal Estate as they have already taken or hereafter may in pursuance of their first Appointment take into their possession & lease out said real Estates as the Com^tee of Corrispondence &c are authorized to do till the further order of the Great and general Court of this Colony the resolve of the 19th. of April notwithstanding — Provided always that, untill the further Order of the General Court, there be allowed to the wives and Children of such Obnoxious persons as are above described so much out of their respective Estates or the improvement thereof as is necessary, in the Judgement of the Committee, for their Support, they being unable otherways to support themselves.

And whereas Sundry Articles of the Estates above mentioned may be liable to perish, it is therefore further resolved that the Com^tee. first aforesaid be & they hereby are directed & impowered to dispose of such perishable articles & such only, by public sale and render an Account of the proceeds to the General Court as soon as may be."— Ibid., vol. 209, p 107.

Chap. 39. On the 28th of October, in the House of Representatives, a committee, consisting of Messrs. Pynchon, Perry and Mayhew, was appointed to "report what may be further necessary to be done relating to the inoculating hospitals" erected by permission of the General Court; but no report of this committee has been discovered. On the 2d of November, another committee of the House, consisting of Messrs. Appleton, Fiske, Whitney, Shiverick, and Nye of Sandwich, appointed upon the petition of Aaron Fuller and others, of Dedham, submitted the following report, which was accepted, and the committee were directed to bring in a bill accordingly :—

"Nov. 7, 1776. The committee appointed to take into consideration, what measures shall be taken to prevent the spreading of the small pox, reported as their opinion, That an act of this State, made and passed July last, impowering the justices of the court of general sessions of the peace, in the several counties, to establish hospitals for inoculating with the small pox, should be repealed. Accepted, and the committee who brought in the same are directed to bring in a bill for that purpose."— House Journal, p. 147.

The petition of Fuller and others, which related to a hospital that had been erected at Dedham, and prayed the General Court to take some steps to prevent the spread of the small-pox, has not been found in the archives. Neither has there been discovered any bill reported by the committee appointed as above.

On the 11th of March, 1777, the following petition from the town of Dedham was read in the Council, and referred to a committee, consisting of Messrs. William Phillips and Benjamin Austin, to which, on the next day, were joined Messrs. Kimball, Wood and Codding of the House :—

"To the Honourᵇˡᵉ Council & Honourᵇˡᵉ House of Representatives of the State of Massachusetts Bay in General Court assembled.

The committee to whom the above petition was referred, reported, on the 21st, that "a bill be brought in for amending the act for permitting inoculating hospitals" This report was accepted, and on the 3d of April, a joint committee was appointed to bring in a bill. A bill was accordingly reported, which, on the 5th, had been read twice, in the Council, and was passed to be engrossed, and sent down for concurrence On the 7th, the House passed it, in concurrence, to be engrossed, with sundry amendments, to which the Council agreed, except a provision, proposed to be inserted in the second clause of the fourth section, for the destruction of cats and dogs found within the hospital limits, which was finally rejected. The most important amendments adopted were the provision, in the last-named section, forbidding the bringing of paper money into the hospital, and another clause, stricken out from the third section, as first reported, limiting the number of inoculating hospitals, and still another clause, inserted in the same section, beginning after "month," in the second line, and ending with "situated," in the fourth line.

The House concurred in these amendments, on the 8th, and, on the 11th, sent a message proposing two further amendments, one of which is the sixth clause of the fourth section. To these, the Council immediately agreed, and the bill was passed to be enacted the same day.

The first of the following resolves was passed while the bill of the present chapter was pending, and was intended to dispense with the necessity, in the case mentioned, of an application to the court of sessions, as required by the act. It is preceded by the petition upon which it was founded:—

"To the Honb^le, the Council & House of Representatives of the State of Massachusetts Bay, in General Court Assembled at Boston April 7^th. 1777

This was the last action of the Legislature of this year, upon the subject of inoculation; but the next Assembly early renewed the consideration of the matter. A committee, appointed June 2, 1777, "to inquire into the state of inoculation in Boston and the adjacent towns, and report what is proper to be done," reported on the 6th; and, though their report has not been discovered, the following resolve ‡ which was brought in the 6th and passed the 7th, is probably all of the report that was submitted in writing: —

Whereas the Practice of Innoculating for the Small pox is & has been very prevalent in the Towns neighbouring & adjacent to the Town of Boston, & should the Enemy make a sudden and powerfull Invasion into this State, as Boston & the Vicinity of it is most likely to be their Object, Therefore

Resolved That from & after the 10th day of this Instant June no Person shall presume to innoculate or be innoculated with the Small pox, in either of the Towns herein after mentioned under the Penalty of Fifty pounds as in an Act already made & provided, it is enacted vizt in Boston, Roxbury, Dorchester, Milton, Braintree, Weymouth, Hingham, Dedham, Brookline, Chelsea, & Hull in the County of Suffolk — Cambridge, Charlestown, Watertown, Malden Medford Waltham & Newtown in the County of Middlesex — Any License or Permit for Innoculation granted by proper Authority notwithstanding —

Resolved also that the Selectmen & Committees of Correspondcs &c of the several Towns before mentioned do without delay see that this Order is fully complied with—& that they advertise those Persons whose proper Business it is with all convenient Speed to have the Innoculating Hospitals, Barracks, & all other Buildings within the said Towns cleared of all Infection, so that should there be any Necessity to call in the Militia, they may safely pass in & towards the Town of Boston, & that the several Barracks now infected may if wanted be used for the Quartering of Soldiers —

And for the more full Execution of this Order it is further

Resolved that Doct Dunsmore Coll Sartell & Coll Lovell be a Committee to go into the several Towns aforementioned, & in Conjunction with the Selectmen & Committees in each, see that a strict Obedience be paid to the foregoing Resolves — Sent up for Concurrence J WARREN Spkr

"State of Massachusetts Bay

To the Honorable Councill & House of Representatives of said State in general Court assembled

The Petition of the Town of Brookline Humbly sheweth —

That by an Act made in the year 1777, no Licence shall be given for erecting or improving any Hospital or House for innocculating the small Pox in any Town within this State, untill the Consent and Approbation of such Town, at a regular Town meeting, be had and obtained, and every Hospital after being licenced should be subject to certain Rules and Regulations in said Act contained; under which Act this Town thought themselves secure from the Danger and Inconvenience arising from any Hospital that might be employed for that purpose without or against their Consent.

That by two Resolves of the General Assembly of the 2nd and 6th of February last General Heath was impowered to improve the Barracks at Sewall's Point for innoculating the Continental Troops

That by another Resolve of Feby 28th Col Crafts was impowered and directed to send his Soldiers to that place to be innoculated

That those Resolves were passed and executed without consent required or even Notice given to the Town

That this Town silently submitted to the Execution of those Resolves, because they were unwilling to obstruct any measure that appeared to be calculated for the public Good tho' inconvenient to themselves and repugnant to the aforesaid Law

That this Town relied, as they ought, on the Security of the Laws, and imagined they could depend upon the Honour and Dignity of the Legislature as well as their Care that the Rights and privileges of no part of the Community should be abridged, unless apparently and indispensably necessary for the public Utility

Nevertheless they find that on the 12th of March, upon the Petition of Doctor John Warren, a Resolve passed the Assembly, giving him Leave to innoculate at Sewall's Point (which is within this Town) such persons as apply and can be accommodated, without Notice given or Consent required of the Town

That in consequence of the last Resolve your petitioners find an Advertisement dated 21st of April current, published in last Monday's Paper, purporting that the Hospital is already opened for general Innoculation, under the Conduct of Doctors Warren, Rand

* Printed resolves of the January session, chapter CCLXVII.

and Hayward, at the Barracks in this Town, which being capable of accommodating three hundred Patients at one Time, will if employed for that purpose to it's full extent, be highly inconvenient, and prejudicial to the Interest of the Town, and dangerous to several aged and respectable Inhabitants who live near the Barracks and will be exposed to Infection as well as others

That this last proceeding is also entirely without the Consent of the Town either asked or obtained, and without even the Consent of the Possessor of the Farm whereon the Hospitals are built, and thrō which as well as other Farms it is necessary to pass and repass to the Hospital, which if permitted will greatly disturb and aggrieve the Owners of said Farms and the Inhabitants in general

Wherefore your Petitioners in Town-meeting assembled this day, having considered this matter, have chosen and appointed Elhanan Winchester their Representative with Edward Kitchen Wolcot and Samuel Croft to be a Committee on their Behalf, humbly to remonstrate against this measure and to petition this honorable Court that they would in their great Wisdom and Justice interpose their Authority to prevent it's being carried into Effect, for the Reasons above mentioned, and because it will sacrifice the Quiet and Interest of this Town, only to promote the Emolument and Advantage of private Individuals who are not Inhabitants thereof, and can, consistently with the Laws, be accommodated within the Towns whereto they belong; and they further pray that the said Hospital may be immediately and totally discontinued and suppressed

*Whereas the Town of Brookline has represented to this Court that the continuance of the Hospital at Sewalls Point in said Town will be highly inconvenient & prejudicial to the Interest thereof and dangerous to the Inhabitants who live near the same, as well as to others who will be exposed to the Infection — and that an advertisement was published in the last Mondays Paper purporting that the Hospital is open'd for general Inoculation under the Conduct of Doctors Warren, Rand & Hayward at the Barracks in said Town — which is beyond the intention & design of this Court express'd in the Resolve that pass'd the 12th of March last on the Petition of sd Doct Warren —

Therefore Resolved — That the said Hospital be discontinued — & the Resolve aforesaid is hereby declared null & void — And the Doctors aforesaid are forbidden to inoculate or or receive any Persons therein after they shall have notice of this Resolve of Stow, Mr. Fisher, and Mr. Ellis of Dedham. The original of this petition has not been discovered, but the substance of it, and the action of the Legislature thereon, appear in the following entry:—

"Feb. 17, 1774. The Council now passed an order that "the petitioners" have leave to bring in a bill, &c. This was June 10, 1774; and, on the same day, the House, upon consideration of the following answer to Ingersoll's petition, nonconcurred with the Council, and referred the same to a joint committee, of which Messrs. Jones, Bridges and Denny were appointed members on the part of the House:—

No further progress appears to have been made until the present year, when the bill of this chapter, the first action respecting which appears to have been on the fifth of April, was passed to be enacted on the twelfth.

The incorporation of the town of Lee, the consideration of which began while the foregoing proceedings were pending, seems to have met the wishes of the petitioners who were not satisfied with the provisions of this chapter. — See 1777–78, chapter 11, and note, post, and 1769–70, chapter 11, ante.

Chap. 41. The following petition, presented at the third session, was referred, together with the resolve that follows it, and which appears to have been reported by a committee, to the next session. During the fourth session, the bill of this chapter was brought in, and, after two amendments proposed by the Council, had been adopted, it was passed, April 26th, to be enacted.

"To the Honble the Council & house of Representatives of the State of the Massachusetts Bay, in Genl Court assembled —

The Petition of the Town of Newbury, by their Committe legally chosen, humbly Sheweth — That your Petitionors, the Inhabitants of this Town, thô heartily engaged in the cause of their Countrey, and ever ready to concur & join with their Brethren, in defence of our common Rights and Priveledges, by prosecuting the present just & necessary war, yet have in time past, and do Still, meet with great Diffeculty in raising their Quota of men for military Service; owing not to want of Courage or zeal for the common cause, but to the mode of raising, & the Encouragement offer'd by the State, for inlisting Solders: it being the opinion of most, and of such in particular as are best disposed and qualified to go into the war, that it is highly unreasonable & unjust, that the Burden Should lie wholly upon them & Some others; — that they must fight both for themselves, and for many of their neighbours, who, thô they have large Estates, & their Interest is equally at Stake, yet, not being able bodied, or fit for actual Service, are exempted from charge.

This Town therefore, at a meeting on the 9th instant, have voted to raise, by a general Tax on the Polls & Estates of its Inhabitants (to be levied or assess'd in the same proportion with other public Taxes) such monies as they judg'd necessary to do justice among themselves for past, & for encouragement to present Services in the war.

This measure being agreeable to the Town in general (even our Brethren of the Denomination call'd Quakers, appearing ready to pay their proportion, thô averse to bearing Arms) we beg to be indulg'd in it.

But not being satisfied that any Law of this State, now in being, will fully Support us in our present Plan, we pray your Honors will, by a Special Act, or Acts of the Genl Court, with Such Restrictions & limitations, respecting Quakers, Tenants or others, as you in your wisdom Shall See fit, authenticate our votes above refer'd to and enable the Town of Newbury to raise money for the future, for the Services of the present war, by the Same mode of Taxation.

Chap. 44. The following are the resolves of the provincial congress repealed by the fourth section of this chapter: —
"June 28, 1775. The report of the committee relative to making the notes and bills of credit of this and the other colonies, a tender, being amended, was accepted, and ordered to be authenticated and printed in the Cambridge, Watertown, and Worcester papers, and is as follows: Whereas, a former Congress of this colony, ordered their receiver general to issue notes and bills upon the credit of this colony, for the payment and supply of their army, and other necessary expenses of this colony; and whereas, divers others of the sister colonies have issued notes or bills, for the payment of their respective forces; and it is necessary, that the notes and bills of this and the sister colonies should have free currency; therefore, Resolved, that the notes and bills of the colony of Rhode Island, at and after the rate of six shillings and nine pence an ounce for silver, and the bills and notes of this and all the other colonies, excepting Nova Scotia and Canada, at and after the rate of six shillings and eight pence an ounce for silver, shall be taken and received, and accounted a good and sufficient tender for the payment of all debts, and the damages that may arise upon the non-performance of any promises, and also be received into the public treasury of this colony, without any discount or allowance whatever. And if any person whatever, shall refuse to take any of the notes or bills of the colonies aforementioned, at the rates before expressed, for any debt, or in satisfaction for the damages sustained by reason of the non-performance of any promise, or shall ask, demand, or receive, any discount, gratuity, or premium, for receiving any of the bills or notes aforementioned, he or she so offending, shall be deemed an enemy to the country. And the several committees of correspondence, inspection, and safety in their respective towns, are required to return the names of all persons who shall contravene this resolve, to this or some future Congress, or House of Representatives, that they may take order thereon as to them shall seem meet." — Printed Journals of the Provincial Congress, 1774–5, p. 415.

The bill of this chapter, amended by the substitution of section three for a briefer clause, was passed, in the House, to be engrossed, May 2d, and on the same day it was read a first time in the Council. The Council proposed two amendments, on the 5th, which were rejected by the House, and, on the 6th, the bill was passed to be enacted and was signed by fifteen of the Council.

The following measures were subsequently taken for the more effectual enforcement of this act:—

†Whereas the Enemies of that Freedom for which the good People of America are Earnestly Contending, among other wicked devices to Subvert and destroy the happiness of this Country, have made and passed sundry false and forged Bills, in imitation of the true Bills Emitted by the Congress and Assemblies in America, which Wickedness if not soon suppressed will be very injurious to Individuals, and ruinous to the Publick. John Hancock wrote to the Assembly of Massachusetts, under date of Jan. 15, 1777 enclosing certain resolves passed by the Continental Congress the day before, recommending the state legislatures to enact laws inflicting penalties on all who should discriminate against the Continental currency either in paying for, or receiving the value of, goods, and also recommending the passage of acts making Continental bills a legal tender, in all cases, at the rate of four shillings and sixpence sterling, to a dollar. This letter and the resolves, were referred to a committee, which reported, through Tristram Dalton, "That the recommendations in the resolutions of January 14th, so far as they respect the supporting the credit of the Continental money, are already adopted by this state, and provided for by the several laws lately passed." The date of this report is not given, and it may have been after the passage of the present chapter.

See notes to chap. 37, ante; and 1777–78, chap. 7, § 8, and 1778–79 chaps. 5 and 25, post.

Chap. 45. Before its evacuation by the British forces, Boston had been a place of refuge for a considerable number of adherents to the royal party, from all parts of the province, but chiefly from that town and its immediate neighborhood. Many of these refugees left the country, with the departure of the troops; but others remained, who, being objects of suspicion to the popular party, required the prompt attention of the Legislature. Accordingly, as early as March 19, 1776, two days after the evacuation, a joint committee was appointed to procure from the selectmen and committees of the town, a list of such persons, "with the facts by them committed," and to report the same to the General Court.

This committee, some change in which had been made in the mean time, reported, on the 29th, and another joint committee was thereupon appointed, which was completed on the first of April, to take into consideration the report and accompanying papers, and "to report what may be proper to be done with the person named in said papers." The result of this committee's action was the establishment of a "Court of Enquiry," by a resolve in accordance with their report.

The court consisted of seven justices of the peace, of Suffolk County, who, or either of them, were directed to issue warrants, immediately, to the sheriff of Suffolk, his deputies, or to the constables of any town in the county, requiring them to apprehend and bring before them, or the major part of them, in such place in the county as the justices should appoint, the bodies of all the persons named in the aforesaid list, together with any other residents of Boston "which are or may be complained of as having designs to act, or having acted, against the rights of this or the other United Colonies, or of having in any manner aided, abetted or assisted the enemies of the United Colonies, or either of them," and thereupon to examine them forthwith and secure the persons of such as "they may judge have acted, or are acting, as enemies, spies or traitors to this or the other colonies," by taking bonds, to the colony treasurer, for their good behavior, or for their appearance to answer, at some court proper to try the same, the charges made against them, or to commit them to close custody, without bail, as the case required.

The court thus established, proceeded cautiously and considerately, until the sixth of June, when a committee was appointed to examine into, and report upon, its doings. The report of this committee was made July 2d. It approved of the doings of the court (which it found had committed only five persons, and bound over five others to the ensuing term of the Superior Court), but proposed the adoption of a resolve reconstructing the court, by limiting the number of justices to five, of whom three should constitute a quorum for business. This new court was invested with all the powers and charged with all the duties of the former tribunal, except that of taking recognizances for appearance at the Superior Court. The recognizances of those who were already bound over to appear, they were authorized to cancel, and to release from imprisonment those who had been committed, upon their giving bonds for good behavior: and these and all other suspected persons they were empowered to send into the inland towns, instead of incarcerating them, as before. They were further empowered to disarm suspected persons. All bonds taken by them were to run to the treasurer of the colony; and they were required to sit from day to day, or as often as possible, "until they have discharged the trust reposed in them," and, finally, to make a report of their proceedings, on or before the first of August, and to receive proper compensation for their services.

* Sic: "this," omitted.

† A more particular account of this court will be given in the Appendix.

The jurisdiction of this court, throughout, was limited to the county of Suffolk. The act of May 1, 1776, however (1775-76, chap. 21), for disarming, disqualifying, restraining and punishing disaffected and inimical persons, extended to the whole province; and this was the only standing law upon the subject, that was of universal application, until the enactment of the present chapter, which supplied a deficiency in the provisions of that act relative to the arrest and imprisonment of suspected persons — those provisions applying only to such as failed to recognize for good behavior and for appearance at court. The bold step was now taken of investing the supreme executive with the absolute power of arresting and incarcerating any person that it "should deem the safety of the Commonwealth requires should be restrained of his personal liberty, or whose enlargement within this state is dangerous thereto." The preamble to the act shows that it was, professedly, a war measure.

Chap. 46. The resolves passed by the House, February 5th, and concurred by the Council, on the 7th (chapter CLVII. of the printed resolves), by which the exportation of certain articles therein enumerated was prohibited, were objected to by Governor Cooke of Rhode Island, in the letters of Feb. 12th and Feb. 26th. On the 10th of March, a joint committee, consisting of Messrs. Sumner, Goodman and Hill, of the House, and Thomas Cushing and John Taylor, of the Council, was appointed to take into consideration the objections of Governor Cooke, and to revise the act against monopoly (chap. 14) "and report as soon as may be." On the 17th of March the same committee was "directed to take into consideration the price of flour and other articles recommended by the convention of the New-England states at Providence, to be affixed and ascertained by the several legislative bodies within their respective states, and to report, if any and what alterations had best be made in the prices thereof."

On the 26th of March, this committee reported to the Council, by way of resolve, that chapter 14 be "repealed so far as it relates to the prices Affixed to the Article of Flour, Tanned Hides, Hay, Horse Keeping, Teaming Work, Turkeys, Dunghill Fowls, Duck, Geese Mutton, Veal, & Chocolate And that for the future The selectmen of several sea Port Towns within this State shall affix the Price at which all Flour Imported by Water from the other United States into the several Towns within this State shall be sold at, and for their Government in the affixing the price of the article of Flour aforesaid they shall allow the Importer the first Cost & Charges of the Flour with the addition of Five ℔ Cent profit, taking Care not to allow the five ℔ Cent profit on the Cost of the Insurance — And be it further Resolved that for the Future the following Articles shall not be sold for a higher price than hereafter is settled and affixed to them respectively Viz^{t} — Tanned hides at one shilling and Eight pence ℔ pound English Hay at six shillings ℔ hundred Horse keeping at Boston for a night or Twenty four hours with English Hay at Two Shillings & Eight pence and in other Places in proportion & for keeping a yoke of oxen for the same time Three Shillings Teaming work Two Shillings for every Ton weight a mile Mutton & Veal for a fore quarter four pence ℔ pound & for a hind quarter four pence half penny ℔ pound American manufactured Chocolate Two shillings ℔ single pound." — Mass. Archives, vol. 213, p. 98.

This report was rejected by both branches.

The subject of revising chapter 14 was referred, March 29th, to a new committee, consisting of Messrs. Phillips, Brooks, Story and Wendell, of the House, and Ward, Spooner and Thomas Cushing, of the Council. This committee was changed, April 2d, by the substitution of Messrs. White and Lewis, for Messrs. Wendell and Brooks, of the House, who were absent. On the 4th this committee, by Artemas Ward, made the following report which was read and accepted by the Council, and sent down for concurrence, but no further proceedings thereupon have been discovered: —

"The Committee of Both Houses Appointed to revise the Act for preventing Monopoly and Oppression and to report what Alterations are necessary to be made therein &c beg leave to report

That the said Act, so far as it respects the Article of Flour, be repealed—That it is highly necessary there should be a revision of said Act & some alterations made therein but that it will not be expedient for this Court to make a revision or an alteration in said Act, so far as it relates to those Articles to which prices were affixed by the late Convention of Committees at Providence, without first Consulting the other New England states and therefore your Committee report that a Committee of this Court be appointed to meet Committees from the states of Connecticut, Rhode Island and Newhampshire at Providence on the Twenty ninth Day of April Instant for this Special purpose and that Letters be wrote to the Governments aforesaid proposing the Same all which is Submitted." — Ibid., p. 97.

No record of the passage of the following resolve has been discovered: —

"State of Massachusetts-Bay. In the House of Representatives, April 1777.

Resolved, That the late Act intituled an Act to prevent Monopoly & Oppression be, & hereby is altered & amended, so far only as it relates to the prices affixed to the Articles of Flour & Bloomery-Iron; And That for the future, the Selectmen & Com^{tees} of Correspondence &^{c} of the Several Towns within this State, or the major part of them, shall, monthly or as often as they judge necessary, affix the Price at which Flour shall be Sold within their respective Towns, & post up such price in the most public places in their Towns; And for their Government in the affixing the price of the Article of Flour, they shall allow the Importer the first Cost & Charges of the Flour, with the addition of five ℔ Cent profit, taking care not to allow the five ℔ Cent profit on the Cost of the Insurance, & also taking care to prevent, as far as possible, any imposition which may arise from Bartering. And also Resolved, That the price of Bloomery-Iron for the future, shall not exceed, or be sold at a higher price than thirty-six Pounds ℔ Ton in any part of this State." — Ibid., p. 101.

These ineffectual attempts to remove the objections to existing regulations respecting the prices of labor, goods and provisions, which were constantly rising with the depreciation of the currency, were followed by the bringing in of a bill with the title of the present chapter. After various amendments the bill, which had been discussed in both branches, and by committees, from the latter part of April, was finally passed to be enacted in its present form, on the tenth of May, and was printed and distributed in pamphlet form.

In the bill as originally reported and approved by the House, the duration of the act was the same as in this chapter. The Council concurred in the bill,as taken into a new draught in which the continuance of the act was limited to one year. Thereupon the House sent a message to the Council, on the 9th of May, "to acquaint the Board with the reasons of their Nonconcurrence of the Vote of the Board respecting the Continuance of the Act to prevent Monopoly & Oppression for three Years — one Reason was the Government had plighted their Faith to the Soldiery — and another reason was, if it had been continued but for one Year, the people would withhold the Articles for Sale." — Council Records, vol. XXXVII., p. 288.

The following letter from the governor of Rhode Island, shows the futility of acts of the nature of this chapter: —

"Providence May 14th 1777.

Sir The Consequences arising from the not carrying into Execution the late Acts passed by the several Legislative Bodies of the New-England States affixing Prices of Labor and Goods enumerated, are too obvious to need commenting upon

This little State hath exerted itself in some measure by prosecuting Persons who have transgressed that Law: but in vain can she alone, put in Execution a matter upon which so much depends — The Consequence hath been an almost intire stop of vending the necessary Articles of Life. —

The undoubted intelligence we have received that those Laws are not adhered too, in our Two neighboring States that are powerful, the Avarice of others, & the many designing Men who endeavor to render abortive all Laws that are made by the States tend to obstruct the Salutary effects proposed thereby.

The absolute necessity that said Laws should be strictly adhered too, is a matter of the greatest concern. — We appointed a Committee at the last Session of Assembly to prepare a Bill for the more effectual carrying the s[d] Laws into Execution, but unless they are enforced in Our Neighboring States nothing can be expected from Us. —

We have passed an Act that Soldiers inlisting into the Continental Battalions should be supplied with necessaries as they are stipulated in said Acts, & appointed Committees in each Town to supply their Families upon their Lodging the money, & also to supply the Poor Inhabitants of the State. — We should be very happy in seeing those Laws effectually carried into Execution, & wait with anxiety to know what further Steps the State of the Massachusetts-Bay takes to enforce them. — As the General Assembly sits next Monday at South Kingston should be obliged to you to inform us by the Continental Post, who sits out from Boston on Monday, what you have done, & inclose the Copy of any Acts that may pass respecting thereto * * * * I am Sir in behalf of the Council

Your most Obed. & very hble Servt. NICH[S] COOKE." — Mass. Archives, vol. 197, p. 50.

And the following proceedings (the resolve being chapter LVII. of the printed resolves of 1777–78) still further illustrate some of the difficulties attending such legislation: —

"To the whole Court

The Petition of Benj[a] Garfield & Malachi Marble humbly sheweth

That your Petitioners on or about the first Day of Jan[y] last past did enter into a Contract with the hon[le] Board of War for this State & engaged to supply them by the 1st of Ap[l] with 1500 bbs Pork & Beef the former at 5[d] ℔ lb & the latter at 2[s] ℔ C[t] — & that your Petitioners were going on to fulfill their Contract with considerable Success — But the Bill for preventing Monopoly & Oppression taking Place prevented your Petitioners from completing their Contract & s[d] Act having fixed the Price of Beef above it, what your Petitioners have been able to do has been at the Loss of about £150 L M[y]. besides all their Trouble & Expence —

Your Petitioners have represented their hard Lot to the Board of War — but the Board do not apprehend that they have Power to alter the Contract & have therefore refer'd your Petitioners to this honourable Court — We therefore intreat your Honors to take our pitiable Case into Consideration & to afford us such Relief as to your Wisdom & Humanity shall seem meet & your Petitioners as in Duty bound will ever pray —

Chap. 48. This act was apparently intended to supplement, rather than to supersede, the provisions of chapter 45. Up to the date of the passage of this act, the only tribunal for the purposes contemplated in this chapter, was the Court of Inquiry, the jurisdiction of which, as has been seen, was confined to Suffolk County: — see note to chapter 45, ante. As early as the 20th of March, a joint committee had been appointed by the House, to procure from the selectmen of the several towns, lists of all suspected persons therein; and various measures, of temporary and special application, had been adopted, from time to time, to effect the purposes which were more completely accomplished by this act. Upon the expiration of this act, on the first of January, 1778, the persons who had been confined on board the guard-ships in pursuance of its provisions, were liberated; there being no law for their further detention. An unsuccessful effort was thereupon made, in the third session of the Legislature of 1778–79, to enact a bill for reviving this act, with sundry additions. This was passed to be engrossed, in the House, by a vote of 55 members out of 74, and was sent up for concurrence. Another bill was proposed during the same session (which also failed to pass) for the appointment of a court of oyer and terminer, to proceed against suspected persons, to outlawry and confiscation.

Supplementary notes to chapters 37 and 44. Of the resolves passed by the Continental Congress, Jan. 14, 1777, and referred to in the notes to these chapters, ante, the following is the part relating to the depreciation of the bills of public credit: —

"Whereas the continental money ought to be supported at the full value expressed in the respective bills by the inhabitants of these states, for whose benefit they were issued and who stand bound to redeem the same according to the like value; and the pernicious artifices of the enemies of american liberty to impair the credit of the said bills by raising the nominal value of gold and silver, or any other species of money whatsoever, ought to be guarded against and prevented:

Resolved, That all bills of credit emitted by authority of Congress ought to pass current in all payments, trade and dealings in these states, and be deemed in value equal to the same nominal sums in spanish milled dollars; and that whosoever shall offer, ask or receive more in the said bills for any gold or silver coins, bullion, or any other species of money whatsoever than the nominal sum or amount thereof in spanish milled dollars, or more in the said bills for any lands, houses, goods or commodities whatsoever than the same could be purchased at of the same person or persons in gold, silver, or any other species of money whatsoever; or shall offer to sell any goods or commodities for gold or silver coins, or any other species of money whatsoever, and refuse to sell the same for the said continental bills; every such person ought to be deemed an enemy to the liberties of these United States, and to forfeit the value of the money so exchanged, or house, land or commodity so sold or offered to sale. And it is recommended to the legislatures of the respective states to enact laws inflicting such forfeitures and other penalties on offenders as aforesaid as will prevent such pernicious practices:

That it be recommended to the legislatures of the United States to pass laws to make the bills of credit issued by the Congress a lawful tender in payments of public and private debts; and a refusal thereof an extinguishment of such debts: that debts payable in sterling money be discharged with continental dollars at the rate of 4/6 sterling per dollar; and that in discharge of all other debts and contracts, continental dollars pass at the rate fixed by the respective states for the value of spanish milled dollars." — Journals of Congress.

Supplementary note to chapter 38. The discovery, in the House files, since the preparation of the note to this chapter, of a package of papers relating to this act in its earlier stages, throws further light upon its history. The bill, as first drawn, was read a first time, in the Council, October 24, 1776, when a day was assigned for the second reading. This bill appears to have been dropped, at this stage, and a new draught was read a first time on the eighteenth of November, and passed to be engrossed and sent to the House, for concurrence, on the day following. This new draught embraced, in substance, all the provisions of the act, except sections 3, 4, 9, 10 and 11. It also contained a section, omitted in the act, providing that, before judgement should be rendered in any action against an absentee the agent of his estate should be duly served with the writ and declaration, and be allowed to appear and defend the suit; or if there were no agent, that the court in which the suit was pending should appoint a disinterested attorney for that purpose.

The title of the bills in both these draughts ended with the word "protection;" and in section two of the latter, the provision for the sale of the personal estate, and for the payment of the creditors, of absentees, were more loose and general than in the act; and the bill contained a clause directing the state treasurer to hold the balance remaining in his hands, of money received by him from agents of absentees' estates, "for the use and benefit of such person as may be entitled thereto." An amendment, also, which had been offered in the Council, extending the provisions of this bill to the case of any person who had aided and assisted the enemy against the state, had been rejected, and now the clause of section two above referred to, and another provision in the seventh section (section 8, of the act) for the support of the family and domestic servants of absentees, out of their estates, appear to have defeated the bill. It was read a first time, in the House, Nov. 20, in the forenoon, and a second time, in the afternoon, when it was committed to Messrs. Palmer, Stone, Lithgow, Cushing and Turner. No record of further proceedings upon the bill has been discovered until Jan. 28, 1777, when the House ordered "That Judge Sullivan, Brigadier Palmer, and Mr. Hill be a committee to revise the bill, and report what is necessary to be done thereon." Here the matter rested until the next session, when (March 11), it was voted that the committee last mentioned be called upon to report; and an order was passed directing the speaker to inform Judge Sullivan of this vote.

A letter from Judge Sullivan is on file, with the second draught and its amendments, accompanied with a new draught of a bill, written by Sullivan, and a letter, dated Biddeford, March 24, 1777, directed to Mr. Speaker Warren, and containing the following passages: —

"I Inclose you an Act relating to Torys Estates which was Committed to me. I have many objections to the plan of it I see no provision that the Rents and profits of such Estates shall be to the use of the public and the whole seems rather a provision to take care of the Estates for other persons and not for the Government

I also Enclose you a paper containing a Rough plan that I apprehend to be in some sort better if the House upon Considering it should adopt a plan of that kind it may do some service

I have made no provision for Families left and am at a loss to know why the personal Estate should be more Exempt from paying the Debts now than if the Absconders were at home. however a provision of that Kind may be drawn in" —

In brief, Sullivan's draught, besides omitting the provision for the support of families, &c., extended to the case of the absentees the operation of chapter 10 of the acts of 1758–59, for enabling creditors to receive their just debts out of the effects of their absent or absconding debtors, and of chapter 8 of the acts of 1696, for the equal distribution of insolvent estates. This draught appears to have arrived too late; for, on the 24th, the day of its date, the original bill, read first in Council five months before, was brought forward in the House, read a first time, and, on the 26th, passed to be engrossed, and sent up for concurrence. It had its first and second readings in the Council on the 26th and 29th, respectively, and was passed to be engrossed, with the amendments mentioned in the note on p. 711, ante. In three of the proposed amendments; viz., one inserting "since the 19th of April A.D. 1775," after "has," in the fifth line of section 1; the others substituting the words "such absentee," for "in this or any other of the United States aforesaid," in the sixth line, and "twelve or eighteen," for "three," and "or nine," in the tenth line of section 4; the House refused to concur, and voted to adhere to their own vote, whereupon a committee of conference was appointed, April 1, consisting of William Sever and Francis Dana, of the Council, and Mr. Cooper and Judge Cushing of the House. The result of this conference was a vote, by the House, receding from their vote of nonconcurrence in the last two amendments, and adhering to their vote on the first, and proposing the substitution of "tenth," for "twentieth," in the sixth line of section 8. These changes were agreed to by the Council, April 5, and the bill was passed to be enacted on the day stated in the note, ante.

Further proceedings relative to the sequestration of the estates of absentees, will appear in the later resolves, to be printed in the Appendix.

[SECT. 3.] And the treasurer for the time being, on receipt of such certificate, is hereby impowered and ordered to issue forth his warrants to the collector or collectors, constable or constables, of such town or place, requiring him or them, respectively, to collect the whole of each respective sums assessed on each particular person, and to pay in their collections, and to issue their accounts of the whole, at or

[Sect. 4.] That the following persons; viz[t]., the president, fellows, professors, tutors, librarian and students of Harvard Colle[d]ge, who have their usual residence there, and settled ministers of the gospel, and gramm[a][e]r-school masters, are not to be assessed for their polls or their estates, unless their real estate be not under their actual management and improvement, or not in the parishes where they are settled; and also all persons who have the management and improvement of the estate belonging to Harvard Colle[d]ge, are not to be assessed for the same; and other persons, if such there be, who, through age, infirmity or extre[e]me poverty, in the judgment of the assessors, are not able to pay towards the public charges, they may exempt their polls or estates, or abate part of what they are set at, as they on their oath shall think just and equitable.

[Sect. 5.] And the justices in their sessions, in their respective counties assembled, in granting a county tax or assessment, are hereby ordered and directed to apportion the same on the several towns and other places in such county, in proportion to this tax; and the assessors in each town in this state, are also directed, in making a town or county tax or assessment, to govern themselves by the same rule. Provided, nevertheless, —

And be it further enacted,

[Sect. 6.] That the several officers and soldiers now in the army, shall be consider[e]'d as resident in the several towns and other places to which they belonged at the time of their engaging in the army, their absence notwithstanding; and the assessors of the several towns and other places in this state, shall consider such officers and soldiers as resident in such town or place, and tax them accordingly: provided, that such as are engaged in the Continental Army for the term of three years, or during the war, be and hereby are exempted from their poll tax.

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 7.] That the assessors of each town or other place, respectively, in convenient time before the making the assessment, shall give seasonable warning to the inhabitants, in a town meeting, or by posting up notifications in some public place or places in such town or other place, or notify the inhabitants some other way, to give and bring in to the assessors true and perfect lists of their polls, and of all the real and personal estate they are possessed of on the first day of November next,— viz., houses, lands, and all real estate, whether improv[e]'d or not improv[e]'d, and the just value of the same,— to the assessors of the town or place where such houses, lands and other real estate lay; distinguishing those in the management and possession of some other persons, as also the amount of all their personal estate, including money [on] [at] interest more than they pay interest for, debts due, not on interest, more than they are indebted for, and of monies of all kinds in hand; and also the amount of the just value of all goods, wares and merchandize, stock in trade, plate, horses, oxen, cattle of all sorts and ages, sheep, swine, grain of all sorts, and all kinds of produce of the land, and of all other property whatsoever (excepting hous[e]hold furniture, wearing apparel, farming ut[i][e]n[t][s]i[a]ls, and the tools of mechanicks), more than they are indebted on the said first day of November, according to the current price of such real and personal estate on the said first day of November; and of the amount of their income from any profession, faculty, handicraft, trade or employment; and also of the amount of all incomes and profits gained by trading by sea and on shore, and by means of advantages arising from the war and the necessities of the community; which they are to render to the assessors, on oath, if required. And if any person or persons shall, upon such notice given, neglect or refuse to give in to the assessors the list of their polls and rateable estate, according to the description thereof before given, which they were possess[e]'d of on the said first day of November, or shall bring in a false list and shall be convicted thereof before the said assessors, it shall be lawful to and for the assessors, and they are hereby directed, to assess such person or persons, according to the best judgment and estimation they can form of the real and personal estate of the said person, according to the d[i][e]scription before given. And if any person or persons shall not bring in a list of their estates as aforesaid to the assessors, he or they so neglecting shall not be admitted to make application to the court of general sessions, for any abatement of the assessment laid on him or them.

[SECT. 8.] And if the person be not convicted of any fals[e]hood in the list, by him presented, of the polls, real and personal estate, such list shall be a rule for such person's proportions to the tax which the assessors may not exceed.

[SECT. 9.] That nothing in this act shall be constru[c][e]'d to extend so as to require any assessors to assess any person, for any estate real or personal, in his possession, that is the property of the United States, or any of them. [Passed October 24.

CHAPTER 14.

AN ACT FOR PROLONGING THE TIME FOR CALLING IN THE BILLS OF CREDIT OF THIS STATE, NOT ON INTEREST.

Preamble. 1777-78, chap. 7.

Whereas it appears to this court that the time limitted by a late act for calling in the bills of credit of this state, and issuing treasury notes therefor, is not sufficient for that purpose, —

Be it therefore enacted by the Council and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same,

That the time for calling in said bills, and exchanging them for treasurer's notes, be prolonged to the first day of April next, and that the treasurer be, and he is hereby, directed to exchange said bills accordingly, any law to the contrary notwithstanding. [Passed December 13.

CHAPTER 15.

AN ACT TO SET OFF SAMUEL TAYLOR OF DUNSTABLE, WITH HIS ESTATE, FROM THE FIRST PARISH IN DUNSTABLE, TO THE SECOND PARISH IN SAID TOWN.

Preamble.

Whereas it appears to this court that Samuel Taylor of Dunstable, in the county of Middlesex, labours under many difficulties and inconvenienc[i]es by being held to pay taxes and do duty in the first parish in said town, which will be remedied by annexing him and his estate to the second parish in said town, —

Be it therefore enacted by the Council and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, Person, with his estate, set off, etc.

That said Samuel Taylor, with the estate now in his possession, be and hereby is set[t] off from the first parish in the town of Dunstable, to the second parish in said town; and that he in future be held to pay taxes and do duty in the said second parish of said Dunstable, and be intitled to receive priv[e][i]l[id][e]ges therein as one of the said second parish: provided, always, that the said Samuel and his estate aforesaid, shall be liable for all such rates and taxes that are or may be assess[e]'d thereon by the assessors of the said first parish, on or before the first day of Jan[uar]y, 1778, in the same way and manner as if this act had never been made. CHAPTER 16.

AN ACT TO ENABLE TOWNS TO RAISE SUCH SUMS OF MONEY AS THEY INCLINE TO DO, FOR THE PURPOSE OF LESS[E]NING THEIR PROPORTION OF THE PUBLIC DEBT.

Preamble. 1776-77, chap. 41. 1777-78, chap. 7.

WHEREAS divers towns within this state have, by their petitions to the general court, set forth their reluctance to have the bills of credit of this state called in by loan, and manifested their desire to have the same sunk by a tax; and this court being apprehensive that a tax so large as to supply the treasury, and at the same time to sink the bills of credit issued by this state, might exceed the abilities of many towns to pay, and also desirous that those towns who are of sufficient ability, and willing, to do the same, might be impowered to raise taxes for the purposes aforesaid; therefore, —

Be it enacted by the Council and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, Towns empowered to raise money.

That the majority of voters present at any town meeting legally warned for that purpose, may and hereby are impowered to vote any sum of money they may think proper, to be raised on the polls and estates within such towns; and the assessors of such town are hereby impowered to assess the same, on the polls and estates within such

To the constable or collectors within such towns who are empowered to collect.

[Passed December 15.

[SECT. 1.] That the before-mentioned act, now expired, be revived and continued, with all and every clause, matter and thing therein respectively contained; and shall, from and after the fourteenth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-eight, be in force until[1] the fourteenth day of September next, excepting that clause which permits the sale of Continental stores, at vendues, by the commissary-general or his order, in consequence of resolutions of Congress.

Provided, nevertheless, —

[SECT. 2.] That this act shall not extend to prohibit the public sale of goods, in the hands of the committee of sequestration, already ordered by this court. [Passed March 12, 1778.

Preamble.

WHEREAS the inhabitants of the plantation called Coxhall, in the county of York, have represented to this court, that the erecting said plantation into a town will greatly contribute to its settlement, and remedy many difficulties and inconveniences they now labour under; therefore, —

Be it enacted by the Council and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, Boundary lines.

[SECT. 1.] That the said plantation, bounded as follows; viz., beginning on the west of Mousom River, a little below the great falls there, at a pitch-pine stump; from thence, crossing said river, on a north-easterly point of compass, and running, by the towns of Wells and Arundel[1], six miles (viz., until it comes within four miles of Saco River), to an Oak Island, so called; thence, from said Arundel line, on a north-westerly course, continuing at the distance of four miles from said Saco River and par[e][a]llel thereto, back into the country, six miles and an hundred and twenty rods, to a hemlock-tree marked on four sides, about forty rods to the northward of a pond called Swan Pond; from thence, across said pond, excluding about two-thirds thereof, on a south-west course, six miles to a red-oak tree mark'd on four sides; and thence, on a south-east course, to the bounds and pine stump, by said Mousom River, first mentioned; including therein about twenty-three thousand and forty acres, — be and hereby is erected into a town by the name of Coxhall; and the inhabitants are hereby invested with all the powers, privileges and immunities which the inhabitants of other towns within this state enjoy.

[SECT. 2.] That the Hon[ora]ble Benjamin Chadbourne, Esq[r]., be, and he hereby is, impowered to issue a warrant to some principal inhabitant of said plantation, requiring him to call a meeting of said inhabitants, qualified as the inhabitants of other towns ought to be to vote in town affairs, in order to choose such officers as, by law, towns are impowered to choose in the month of March, annually. [Passed March 11, 1778.

CHAPTER 24.

AN ACT IN ADDITION TO AN ACT INTITLED "AN ACT FOR FORMING AND REGULATING THE MILITIA WITHIN THE COLONY OF THE MASSACHUSETTS BAY, IN NEW ENGLAND, AND FOR REPEALING ALL THE LAWS HERETOFORE MADE FOR THAT PURPOSE."

Preamble. 1775-76, chap. 10. 1 Mass. 458.

WHEREAS the provision made in said act for drawing out the militia of this state, on an alarm, or to reinforce the Continental Army, does not fully answer the good purposes intended, no provision being therein made for detaching from the militia aforesaid proper guards for the state, Continental stores and other purposes, —

Be it enacted by the Council and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, Penalty for refusing to obey orders when detached.

[SECT. 1.] That when it shall so happen that, in consequence of an order of the general assembly of this state, or the council thereof, any number of officers or soldiers belonging to the training-band, or to the alarm list, shall be detached for any purpose, the person or persons so detach[e]d by his or their commanding officer, who shall have due notice of his or their being so detached and being ordered by his or their commanding officer to march to the place of his or their destination, shall neglect or refuse to obey such order, or shall not pay a fine of ten pounds, or procure some able-bodied man in his stead, within twenty-four hours after he shall have had notice of his being so detached, shall be considered as a soldier in such detachment, and treated accordingly; and in all cases where the aforesaid fine shall be paid, the same shall be appropriated by said officer to hire men for that or any future service his company shall be called to perform; and in case of the neglect or refusal aforementioned, the officer shall proceed to detach others, till he shall have compleated the full number so ordered to be detached: provided, nevertheless, if the officer making the detachment in any company shall himself be detached and

Appropriation of fines.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid,

Penalty in case any soldier refusing or neglecting to equip himself.

[Sect. 2.] If any soldier on the training-band or alarm list, within this state, shall neglect or refuse to equip himself, according to the seventh section of said act, for the space of sixty days after the publication of this act, shall pay a fine of [three] [six] pounds [and for every sixty days afterward, he shall neglect or refuse to equip himself as aforesaid, shall pay a fine of six pounds]; said fines to be recovered by action of debt, to be brought by the clerk of the company to which such delinquent person belongs, before the court of common pleas of the county where he resides, one third part of these and all other fines recovered at the suit of the clerk, to be to the use of the clerk of the company, the other two thirds to be laid out at the direction of the captain of the company, to furnish the same with drums, fifes and colours, where such are needed, or, by the selectmen, to purchase arms for such in the same town as are unable to supply themselves.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid,

Aid-de-camp and brigade-major to be nominated and appointed.

[Sect. 3.] That each major-general belonging to the militia of this state, shall nominate to the council of this state two aid-de-camps; and said council are hereby impowered to appoint them accordingly, with the rank of major; and each brigadier-general of said militia shall nominate one brigade-major; and the council are also impowered to commission one for each brigade in said state: and each aid-de-camp and brigade[-major] so appointed and commissioned, shall keep an exact account, with the proper vouchers, of all the services they may, respectively, perform in the execution of their duty by virtue of general orders, and exhibit the same to the general court, from time to time, for allowance and payment, with a certificate from the respective generals by whose order the same has been done, that said service has been so done by them respectively.

And whereas it is essentially necessary to every good purpose of this act that regular returns of the number of men which compose the several brigades and regiments of militia within this state, and their respective posts or stations, together with the number and condition of their arms and various equipments should, from time to time, be exhibited to the council, and their orders duly transmitted to the commanding officers of corps, and returns made of the same, —

Be it enacted by the authority aforesaid,

The council empowered to appoint an adjutant-general;

[Sect. 4.] That the council of this state be, and they hereby are, impowered to appoint a person of adequate accomplishments to the office of adjutant-general, and that he be directed to make just and true returns of the state of the militia, as aforesaid, to the council, and to the first major-general, or, in his absence, to the next commanding officer of the militia within this state, on the first Monday of July, each year, successively, and at all other times when he shall be thereunto ordered; and that he, annually, prefer his account for services done, with proper vouchers and certificates, to the general court, for allowance and payment.

— who is to make returns of the state of the militia.

And whereas the movements of the militia of this state may be such as to render barracks, tents, cooking-utensils, beds and other camp-equipage, waggons, cattle, forage, &c., necessary, —

Be it enacted by the authority aforesaid,

A quartermaster to be appointed by the council, and his duty.

[SECT. 5.] That the council of this state be and are hereby impowered to appoint a proper person to the office of quartermaster-general; who shall make seasonable and suitable provis[s]ion of such quantities of the articles before specified, with such others as they shall order, and that he make regular and true returns of the same, with their respective dispositions, to the council and to the first major-general of this state, or, in his absence, to the next commanding officer within the same, on the first Monday of April, July, October and January, each year successively: and shall procure, or cause to be procured, a sufficient number of waggons for removing stores belonging to this state, on the order of the commanding officer (where stores may be deposited), when an order of council cannot seasonably be obtained for that purpose; and that he annually prefer his account for services done, with proper vouchers and certificates, to the general assembly for allowance and payment.

And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid,

Rank of a captain of matrosses, and the first lieutenant in each company.

[SECT. 6.] That each captain commanding a company of matrosses in any brigade of militia in this state, shall have the rank of major; and the first lieutenant in each company, respectively, shall have the rank of captain; any law, usage or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

And be it further enacted,

Penalty for neglect of non-commissioned officers or privates, to appear when notified.

[SECT. 7.] That if any non-commissioned officer or private soldier, being duly notified of the time and place appointed for the company, to which he belongs, to meet on a training-, or muster-day, shall unnecessarily neglect to appear, with such arms, accoutrements and equipments, as he shall be possessed of, being ordered by his officer to bring the same, shall pay a fine of thirty shillings; and if he shall be disobedient or disorderly on a training-, or muster-day, he shall pay a fine of twenty shillings: and all fines and forfeitures of money arising by breach of this act, for disobedience or failure of appearance on a training-day, shall be recovered by action of debt, to be brought before a justice of the peace, by the clerk of the company to which the delinquent belongs; an appeal being allowed to either party, to the inferior court of common pleas, as in other actions: and if on such trial, judgment shall be given in favour of such clerk, he shall have his legal c[a][o]st allowed him. And this shall be the mode of recovering fines and forfeitures arising by breach of this act or the act to which this is in addition; any clause therein notwithstanding. And no company shall be obliged to muster to train more than four times a year, nor any regiment more than once a year. [Passed March 13, 1778.

Appropriation of fines.

Appeal allowed.

CHAPTER 25.

AN ACT IN ADDITION TO, AND EXPLANATION OF, AN ACT PASSED THIS PRESENT SESSION, INTITLED "AN ACT FOR PRESCRIBING AND ESTABLISHING AN OATH OF FIDELITY AND ALLEGIANCE."

Preamble. 1777-78, chap. 18, § 5

WHEREAS, in and by the said act it is provided "That all members of the general assembly, and all officers, civil and military, and all attornies-at-law, shall take the oath or affirmation" therein mentioned, and that "the said oath or affirmation shall be administered to the members of the general court, by any three of the council; and to all others appointed to any of the offices and places of trust aforesaid, by any two of the council, or such others as shall be, by the said council, or the major part of them, thereunto appointed," and as it will be in many respects inconvenient and attended with great and unnecessary expence for the council to appoint, by dedimus, a sufficient number of persons for that purpose, —

Be it therefore enacted by the Council and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same,

Oath to be administered to commissioned officers, etc., by any justice.

[SECT. 1.] That the oath or affirmation mentioned in the said act, may and shall be administered to all commissioned officers, both civil and military, and attorn[i]e[y]s-at-law, in this state, by any justice of the peace within this state, in the county, wherein he is a justice, whenever he shall be thereunto requested; and such justice shall make record and give certificate thereof, and return a list into the secretary's office, of all officers to whom he shall administer the said oath, as soon as may be; anything in the said act to the contrary notwithstanding.

Persons disqualified who do not take the oath.

And whereas, in and by s[ai]d act, it is enacted that no person shall have authority to act as a member of the general assembly, to execute any office, civil or military, or "be admitted to appear and act as attorn[e]y or coun[se][ci]l in any court of justice in this state, after the twentieth day of March next, unless he shall have taken said oath o[r][f] affirmation"; and whereas, no persons have been appointed before the making this act to administer the same in different parts of th[e][is] state, and said time is near expiring, —

Be it therefore further enacted by the authority aforesaid,

[SECT. 2.] That no person shall be considered as disqualified to act in either of said offices or places, for not having taken said oath or affirmation, before the twentieth day of June next; anything in said act to the contrary notwithstanding.

And whereas, in many instances, it may be impracticable to remove out of this state, within the term of forty days set and limited by the said act, such persons as shall refuse to take the said oath or affirmation, —

Be it therefore further enacted by the authority aforesaid,

Persons refusing to take the oath, to be removed by the council as soon as conveniently may be.

[SECT. 3.] That the council be and hereby are authori[z][s]ed and impowered to cause the persons refusing to take the said oath, to be transported as in the said act is directed, as soon as conveniently may be, after they shall receive information of such refusal, and imprisonment in consequence thereof, notwithstanding the said term of forty days may have expired; anything in the said act to the contrary notwithstanding.

And whereas doubts have arisen and may arise upon the construction of the said act respecting the power of a justice of the peace to admit a person to take the said oath of allegiance and fidelity, after his having been committed to goal for refusing the same; therefore, —

Be it enacted by the authority aforesaid,

Persons refusing to take the oath within two hours, to be proceeded against.

[SECT. 4.] That no person who shall refuse or neglect to take said oath or affirmation within two hours after the same shall be legally tendered to him, shall be admitted to take said oath or affirmation, but shall be proceeded against as is prescribed by said act. [Passed March 13, 1778.

WHEREAS it is necessary that the aforesaid sum of two hundred and fifty-four thousand seven hundred and eighteen pounds sixteen shillings and elevenpence,should be raised and paid into the public treasury of this state,as soon as may be, to defray such public charges as have arisen, or may arise, for the support of government,—

Be it enacted by the Council and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same,

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid,

[SECT. 2.] That the treasurer do forthwith send his warrant, directed to the selectmen or assessors of each town or other place, within this state, that are taxed, requiring them, respectively, to assess the sum hereby set upon such town or other place, in manner following; that is to say, to assess all male polls above the age of sixteen years, within their respective towns or other place[s] next adjoining to them, belonging to no other town or place, including negroes and molattoes (and such of them as are under the government of a master or mistress, to be taxed to the said master or mistress, respectively, in the same manner as minors and apprentices are taxed), at twenty shillings; and to assess the remainder of the sum set to each town (after deducting the amount of the sums assessed to the polls as aforesaid) on the inhabitants of said towns or places as aforesaid, according to the proportion of the just value of the whole real estate by each inhabitant of such town or place, respectively, possessed in his own right, or in the right of others, lying within said town or place, improved or not improved; and on the non-resident possessors of real estate, lying within said town or place, in their own right, or in the right of others, improved or not improved: saving all agreements between landlords and tenants, and where no agreement is, the landlord to reimburse one-half of the tax; and also on the inhabitants of such town or place, according to the proportion of the amount and just value of their whole personal estate, including money at interest more than they pay interest for, debts due to them, not on interest, monies of all kinds in hand more than they are indebted, and also the amount of the just value of all goods, wares and merchandize, stock in trade, vessels of all sorts, with their stores, appurt[u][e]nances and appendages, plate, horses, oxen, and cattle of all sorts and ages, sheep, swine, grain of all sorts, and all kinds of produce of the land, and of all other property whatsoever (excepting hous[e]hold furniture, wearing apparel, farming utensi[a]ls and the tools of mechanicks), of which they were possessed on the first day of November, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-seven, according to the price of such real and personal estate, on the said first day of November; and on the amount of their income from any profession, faculty, handicraft, trade or [i][e]mployment; and also on the amounts of all incomes and profits gained by trading by sea and [on] shore, and by means of advantages arising from the war, and the necessities of the community, according to the lists ordered to be taken for assessing the tax for which such lists were taken, — making such alterations therein as the present circumstances of any persons or the value of the several kinds of estate may require (or to take new lists if they shall think it necessary): likewise requiring the assessors to make a fair list of said assessments, setting forth, in distinct columns, against each person's name, how much he or she is assessed at for polls, and how much for real estate, and how much for personal estate as aforesaid; and if as guardian, or for any estate in his or her improvement, in trust, to be distinctly expressed; and the list or lists so perfected, and signed by them, or the major part of them, to commit to the collector or collectors, constable or constables, of any such town or place, and to return a certificate of the name or names of such collector or collectors, constable or constables, with the sum total to each of them committed, unto himself, some time before the thirtieth day of April next.

[SECT. 3.] And the treasurer for the time being, on receipt of such certificate, is hereby impowered and ordered to issue forth his warrants to the collector or collectors, constable or constables, of such town or place, requiring him or them, respectively, to collect the whole of each respective sum[s] assessed on each particular person, and to pay in their collections, and to issue their accounts of the whole, at or before the fifteenth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventy-eight: provided, that the owners of unimproved land shall pay the tax that may be assessed thereon, though the same may not be in their immediate possession, any agreement between landlord and tenant, previous to the knowledge of this act made, notwithstanding.

[SECT. 4.] That the following persons; viz[t]., the president, fellows, professors, tutors, librarian and students of Har[w][v]ard College, who have their usual residence there, and settled ministers of the gospel, and grammer-school masters, are not to be assessed for their polls or their estates, unless their real estate be not under their actual management and improvement, or not in the parishes where they are settled; and also all persons who have the management and improvement of the estate belonging to Har[w][v]ard College, are not to be assessed for the same; and other persons, if such there be, who, through age, infirmity or extreme poverty, in the judgment of the assessors, are not able to pay towards the public charges, they may exempt their polls or estates, or abate part of what they are set at, as they on their oath shall think just and equitable. And where no person appears to discharge the taxes on non-resident proprietors' unimproved land, to the collector, he shall publish, in all the Boston newspapers, three weeks successively, the names of all such proprietors, where they are known, with the sum of the taxes assessed on their lands, respectively, and where they are not known, the sum of the taxes on the several rights or divisions, and post the same in the town where the said land lays, for the term of one month; and if no person shall appear thereupon to discharge said taxes, in such case the constable or collector shall proceed to sell so much only of said unimproved land as will be sufficient to discharge said taxes and intervening charges; and, having given notice of the intended sale thereof, and the time and place where it will be made, in the same manner as is herein above directed for giving notice to the proprietors of their taxes, shall sell the same, at public sale, to the highest bidder, and shall give and execute a deed thereof to the purchaser, expressing therein the cause of such sale: saving to the original proprietor the right of redemption of any lands so sold, at any time within three years from the time of sale; and the same shall be reconveyed to him or them on paying, within three years, the sum such land[s] sold for, and twelve p[er] c[en]t interest on said sum.

Provided, nevertheless,—

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 5.] That the several officers and soldiers now in the army, shall be consider[e]d as resident in the several towns and other places to which they belonged at the time of their engaging in the army, their absence notwithstanding; and the assessors of the several towns and other places in this state, shall consider such officers and soldiers as resident in such town or place, and tax them accordingly: provided, that such as are engaged in the Continental Army, for the term of three years, or during the war, be, and they hereby are, exempted from their poll tax.

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 6.] That the assessors of each town or other place, respectively, where new lists are to be taken, in convenient time before the making the assessment, shall give seasonable warning to the inhabitants, in a town meeting, or by posting up notifications in some public place or places in such town or other place, or notify the inhabitants some other way, to give and bring in to the assessors true and perfect lists of their polls, and of all the real and personal estate they were possessed of on the first day of November last, — viz[t]., houses, lands, and all real estate, whether improved or not improved, and the just value of the same, — to the assessors of the town or place where such houses, lands and other real estate lay; distinguishing those in the management and possession of some other persons, as also the amount of all their personal estate, including money at interest more than they pay interest for, debts due, not on interest, [more than they are indebted for]; and of monies of all kinds, in hand, [more than they are indebted for], and also the amount of the just value of all goods, wares [and] merchandize, stock in trade, horses, plate, oxen, cows, cattle of all sorts and ages, sheep, swine, grain of all sorts, and all kinds of produce of the land, and of all other property w[ha]tsoever (excepting houshold furniture, wearing apparel, farming utensils and the tools of mechanicks), more than they [are] [were] indebted on the said first day of November, according to the current price of such real and personal estate on the said first day of November; and of the amount of their income from any p[r]o[ss][f]ession, faculty, handicraft, trade or employment: and also of the amount of all incomes and profits gained by trading by sea and on shore, and by means of advantages arising from the war, and the necessities of the community; which they are to render to the assessors, on oath, if required; which oath either of said assessors are hereby impowered to administer. And if any person or persons shall, upon such notice given, neglect or refuse to give in to the assessors the list of the[ir] polls and rat[e]able estate, according to the d[i][e]scription thereof before given, which they were possessed of on the said first day of November, or shall bring in a false list and shall be convicted thereof before the said assessors, it shall [be allowed] [be lawful] to and for the assessors, and they are hereby directed, to assess such person or persons, according to the best judgment and estimation they can form of the real and personal estate of [the] said person, according to the d[i][e]scription before given. And if any person or persons shall not bring in a list of their estate[s] as aforesaid to the assessors, he or they so neglecting shall not be admitted to make application to the court of general sessions, for any abatement of the assessment laid on him or them.

[SECT. 7.] And if the person be not convicted of any falsehood in the list, by him presented, of the polls, real and personal estate, such list shall be a rule for such person's proportions to the tax which the assessors may not exceed.

Provided, nevertheless,—

[SECT. 8.] That nothing in this act shall be construed to extend so as to require any assessors to assess any person, for an[y] estate real or personal, in his possession, that is the property of the United States, or any of them.

Provided, also, —

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 9.] That the particular sum assessed to each town or place, shall not be considered as the exact proportion of such town or place, but, being paid into the treasury, shall be placed to their respective credit until[l] the quotas shall be finally ascertained and adjusted agreeable to the settlement upon the next valuation; and if it shall then appear that any town or place has been assessed more than its just proportion of this tax, the surplus shall be deducted out of the sum at which such town or place shall be assessed in the tax next after such surplus shall be made to appear; and if it shall appear that any town or place has been assessed at less than its just proportion, such deficiency shall be added to the tax at which such town or place shall be assessed in the next assessment after such deficiency shall appear: said surplus[s] or deficiency to be adjusted by the general court. ACTS

PASSED AT THE SESSION BEGUN AND HELD AT ROXBURY,* ON THE FIRST DAY OF APRIL, A. D. 1778.

CHAPTER 27.

AN ACT FOR THE FURTHER PROLONGING THE TIME FOR CALLING IN THE BILLS OF CREDIT OF THIS STATE, NOT ON INTEREST.

Preamble. 1777-78, chapters 7 and 14.

WHEREAS it appears to this court that the time limit[t]ed by a late act for calling in the bills of credit of this state, and issuing treasury notes therefor, for several reasons, has not been sufficient for that purpose, —

Be it therefore enacted by the Council and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, Prolonging the time for calling in the bills of credit, of this state.

[SECT. 1.] That the time for calling in said bills, and exchanging them for treasurer's notes, be prolonged to the first day of June next, and that the treasurer be, and he is hereby, directed to exchange said bills accordingly, any law to the contrary notwithstanding.

Notes to bear date after last day of April, instant, at the time the treasurer shall receive the same.

[SECT. 2.] That all notes which shall be issued by the treasur[er][y], for any sums of this state's money which he may receive by virtue of this act after the last day of April, instant, shall bear date at the time such sum shall be received by the treasurer. [Passed April 3, 1778.

NOTES. — One or more acts were passed at each of the six "sittings" of the General Court this year; and at the close of each "sitting," the act or acts passed therein were signed as was usual at the end of a regular session. Although in the contemporaneous impression, the acts of the first and second sittings are included in one and the same session, in the journals of the House the heading of the record of each sitting contains the words "being the second," "third," etc., "sitting"; no difference being recognized, in this respect, between the earlier sittings and the sixth sitting, which was after a prorogation, and, therefore, undoubtedly, a new session. Indeed, these different "sittings" are frequently mentioned as separate sessions, in reports of committees, and in votes of the Assembly; and at the close of the fourth sitting it appears by the House Journals that General Hancock went up to the Council "to inform them that the House had passed upon all the business of the present session,"— as if it were understood that the next meeting of the Assembly, though after an adjournment, would be the opening of a new session. Therefore the rule of grouping the acts which has been observed heretofore in this edition, has been adhered to, notwithstanding the numerous divisions and the fact that in each of two successive sessions but one act was passed.

The General Court was adjourned from July 8th, to September 3d, but assembled again on the fifth of August, in accordance with a special summons from the major part of the Council. All the sittings were in the old State House in Boston, except the last, which was held, by prorogation, in the meeting-house in the middle precinct in Roxbury, on account of the small-pox in Boston.

The engrossments of all the acts of this year are preserved, but none of them are upon parchment. All the bills were signed by fifteen of the Council, except of chapter 4, which was signed by seventeen; chapter 8, by sixteen; chapter 30, by thirteen; chapters 15 and 33, by twelve; chapter 28, by eleven; chapters 16 and 29, by ten; chapter 31, by nine, and chapter 32, by seven.

The following preamble and resolve* explain the irregularity in the numbers of signers of bills during this and the previous year, when the same cause existed: —

Chap. 1. "Resolved, That all post-masters, post-riders, and persons immediately concerned in conducting the business of the post-office, ought to be exempted from all military duties; and that it be recommended to the legislatures of the different states to exempt such persons accordingly." — Journals of Congress: May 12, 1777.

The bill of this chapter was read a first time in the Council, July 2d, and was brought down to the House, on the 3d, where, on the same day, it was passed to be engrossed, with amendments inserting "and" between "postmasters" and "post-riders," and striking out the words "and persons immediately concerned in conducting the business" in the bill as originally drafted. The Council concurred in these amendments, on the 3d, and on the 5th, they concurred in the vote of the House passing the bill to be enacted.

Chap. 2. On the 6th of August, a joint committee, consisting of Messrs. Niles, Boardman and Nichols, of the House, and Spooner and Fuller, of the Council, was appointed "to consider the expediency or inexpediency of permitting public vendues in this state" The report of this committee was brought down from the Council the next day, "That it is not expedient to continue vendues any longer, unless for the payment of debts as is already established by law." This report was accepted, and the committee was thereupon ordered to "bring in a bill for the purpose aforesaid."

On the day this report was accepted, the following petition was received and referred to the same committee: —

"State of Massachusetts-Bay } To the Hon^ble the Council & the Hon^ble the House of Representatives of said State in General Court assembled —

The Petition of the Committee of Correspondence &c &c of the Town of Boston Humbly sheweth —

That your Petitioners have with the greatest concern beheld the Prices of every Article of Merchandize encreasing with a Rapidity which threatens the Poor with intolerable Distress, and the Currency of the united States of America with almost a total Discredit — And conceiving these calamities in a great Measure to be promoted, by the Sale of Goods at publick Vendue (as the Prices of almost every Article of Trade has been more than doubled by these Sales in the course of a few Weeks past) Your Petitioners humbly pray your Honors to take the Premises into your wise consideration and repeal that Part of a late Act, which directs Prizes & Prize Goods to be sold at Publick Vendue, directing in Lieu thereof the Agents of all Prizes, under certain Penalties, to sell the same at private Sale, and make up their accounts under Oath within a limited Time, and prohibit all Sales by publick Vendue in future, or take such other Measures, to prevent the encrease of the evils aforesd. as to your Honors may seem fit — And your Petitioners as in Duty bound shall ever pray EBENEZER DORR Charman pr Order." — Mass. Archives, vol. 183, p. 93.

After two messages from the House, requesting the Council to join with them in an order to the committee to sit immediately, if they had not already reported, and another, requesting that the bill be sent down, the bill was sent down, accordingly, on the 12th, and the Council having refused it a second reading, a committee of conference, consisting of Messrs. Paine, Pitts and Gray, of the House, and Thomas Cushing, Palmer and Sewall, of the Council, was appointed, who, on the 15th, reported that the bill "should be taken up and revived." On the same day the Council reconsidered its vote rejecting the bill, passed it to be engrossed, and sent it down for concurrence. In the House, it was immediately read twice, and was specially assigned to the next day, for further consideration. On the 16th, the House passed it to be engrossed, in concurrence, with seven amendments striking out the words "sundry sorts of," before "goods," in the title, and the final clause, in the original draught, of the first section, "and such Continental stores as may be sold at public vendue by the commissary-general or his order, in consequence of resolutions of Congress," and inserting those words in the parenthetical clause in the second section; also inserting the last clause in the preamble; and substituting, in the first line of the second section, "if any person or persons" for "no person or persons licensed by the selectmen of any town, or not licensed," and in the last line of the third section, "November" for "January."

The Council concurred in these amendments, on the same day, whereupon the bill was passed to be enacted, and signed by fifteen of the Council.

Chap. 3. "Providence August 25th. 1777

Sir, This State having usually imported a great Part of the Grain consumed in it by Water; and that Channel being now entirely shut up, we must be under the Necessity of procuring large Supplies from Massachusetts Bay and Connecticut. The General Assembly being informed that some Persons in this State are preparing to distil Spirits from Grain; and that large Quantities are purchased in some of the other States for the same Purpose have passed an Act to prevent so injurious a Practice in this State, and requested me to transmit to you a Copy of that Act, and to request that a similar Act may be passed in your State; which I now do, and am with great Esteem.

Sir Your most Obed^t Humble Servant

Hon^ble President of the Council of Massachusetts-Bay. NICH^S COOKE." — Mass. Archives, vol. 198, p. 102.

"Letters from Governor Cooke of the 25th of August acquaint us that the State of Rhode Island have passed an Act against distilling Spirits from Wheat and other Grain and Cyder, and has inclosed a Copy thereof. Whether an Act of a similar Nature may not be expedient, you will consider." — Extract from the Council's message to the House, Sept. 10, 1777: House Journal, p. 70.

The record of the appointment of Messrs. Pitts, Greenleaf and Davis, as a committee to bring in a bill to prevent the distilling of grain and cider, is entered before the record of the message of the Council; but the committee was probably appointed in consequence of the above letter from Governor Cooke.

On the 11th of September, a bill to prevent distillation of spirits and other strong liquors, was read a first time in the House, and, on the next day, was read again, "considered and committed, for amendment," to Mr. Sumner, Major Orne and Col. Orne. On the 15th, the bill was again considered by the House, "on a second reading," and assigned to the next day for a third reading; when it was read, passed to be engrossed, and sent up for concurrence. On the same day, in the Council, it was read twice, and passed, in concurrence, to be engrossed, with four amendments substituting the words "into any kind of spirit whatever" for "spirits and other strong liquors," in the title, and adding thereto the words, "or either of them"; and making similar changes in the preamble and the first section.

The House concurred in these amendments, on the 17th, and the bill was passed to be enacted.

Chap. 5. "Sept. 17, 1777. It being represented to the House that some Persons, apprehended in the neighbouring States for the Crimes of counterfeiting and altering the Bills and Notes of Public Credit of several of the United States, have escaped the Punishment due to their Crimes, by means that material Witnesses reside within this State and refuse to give their Attendance at any Court within such States, not being compellable thereto by Law: Ordered, That Mr. Wetmore bring in a Resolve for Remedy thereof. Who reported a Resolve accordingly. Read and pass'd, Sent up for Concurrence." — House Journal, p. 77.

The resolve reported by this committee has not been discovered.

On the 19th, a bill with the title of this act was brought down from the Council, and, on the 22d, it was passed by the House, in concurrence, to be engrossed. On the 2d of October, a new draught of the bill was brought down from the Council, as a substitute for the bill, which, in the mean time, had passed the House, to be enacted. This substitute was substantially the bill as finally passed to be enacted, and contained more explicit provisions as to the service of the process for summoning witnesses, and as to the manner of recovering the forfeiture for disobeying the summons, and for punishing defaulting witnesses.

The House agreed to the new draught, with two amendments; one, altering the phraseology of the first line of the preamble, and the other, proposing a change in the sixth line. On the 4th, the former of the amendments was adopted by the Council, and the bill was thereupon passed to be enacted by both branches.

Chap. 6. The House of Representatives assigned the afternoon of June 6th, 1777, for the consideration of "the expediency or inexpediency of repealing the acts of this state, for preventing monopoly and oppression." After a debate, continued the next day, a motion to refer the subject to a committee, was negatived, and the subject was postponed, for further consideration, to the 10th, when a motion for the appointment of "a committee to confer with committees from the other New-England states relative to this matter," and a motion that the said acts be repealed, having been successively defeated, a committee, consisting of Messrs. Gray, Wood, Sewall, Goodman, Mitchell, Greenough, Peck, Simpson, Stone, Preble and Bacon, was appointed "to revise the acts of this state, for preventing monopoly and oppression, and report what is proper to be done."

This committee, on the 14th, made the following report: —

"The Committee for revising the Bills against Monopoly & Oppression beg Leave to report

That in their Opinion the following Explanations are necessary that it is understood that the Price of Beef fixed in the first Act is intended by the Quarter — & that it is to be sold in smaller Quantities in the usual Proportion according to the Quality of the Pieces & that best Salt pork clear of Bone by Retail be sold at nine pence ℔ lb.

The Committee also beg Leave further to report that Salt being as essential to the public Service as Warlike Stores should be subject to no Regulation that the Prices of Jamaica Spirits be fixed @ 10s & French Brandy 12s both full proof — that Flax be 1/4 ℔ lb — & that the Price of Teaming continue @ 2s ℔ mile ℔ Tun as fixed in the additional Act till the farther Ordr of this Court

And that for the further Support of these Acts it will be necessary — that heavy Penalties be laid upon all Adulterators of spirituous Liquors — that the Sum of be laid on such Towns as shall refuse or neglect to chuse Persons to prosecute the Breaches of these Acts agreeable to the Direction in the additional Act — & that all Civil Officers convicted of violating these Acts be disqualified —

And that a Committee be appointed to consider what Bounties are necessary for the Encouragemt of Commerce & Agriculture." — Mass. Archives, vol. 137, p. 133.

On the 19th, the House assigned the afternoon for the consideration of the above report, and, after debate, a committee of seven members, consisting of Messrs. Gray, Paine, Goodman, Singletary, Stone, Bliss and Porter, was chosen "to consider the whole matter (respecting the regulating act) at large, and report what is proper to be done."

On the 24th, this committee reported that it was expedient that a committee of the honorable Board be joined to them, to consider the same. Accordingly, the House ordered "that said committee, with such as the honorable Board shall join," be charged with the duty which had been exclusively assigned to the committee of the House, above named. The Council immediately joined Jeremiah Powell, Artemas Ward, Walter Spooner, Thomas Cushing, John Taylor and Oliver Prescott.

The report of this committee was brought down to the House, June 25th, and accepted by both branches, on the 27th, as follows: —

"The Committee of Both Houses Appointed to Consider the Whole Matter respecting the Acts for preventing Monopoly & Oppression at large & to report what is proper to be done; have attended that Service & beg leave to report by way of Resolve as follows —

The above resolve constitutes chapter CVIII. of the printed resolves of the May session, 1777, and while it was pending; namely, on the 26th, another motion was made for the repeal of "the two acts against monopoly and oppression," and also for the repeal of the resolve "commonly called the land-embargo," * but was defeated.

Committees from the states enumerated in the above resolve, assembled at Springfield at the time fixed. They consisted of Josiah Bartlett and Nathaniel Peabody, of New Hampshire; Thomas Cushing and Robert Treat Paine, of Massachusetts; Roger Sherman, Samuel Huntington and Titus Hosmer, of Connecticut; William Bradford, Stephen Hopkins and Paul Mumford, of Rhode Island; and John Sloss Hobart of New York. After appointing Stephen Hopkins of Rhode Island, president, and William Pynchon, clerk, and causing their several commissions to be entered on their journal, they adjourned, and met again and proceeded to business on the first of August, continuing in session five days thereafter. The result of this conference was the passage of eight resolves: on the adoption of measures for preventing the depreciation of the currency; on raising money by taxation for carrying on the war; on the repeal of acts relating to monopoly and oppression — so far as they related to fixing prices and prescribing penalties — on making provision for supplying the troops with necessary articles; on measures for preventing engrossing or withholding necessaries; on measures for removing certain legal obstructions to free commercial intercourse between the states; on the transmission to Congress, of copies of their proceedings; closing with a recommendation to the states of Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Connecticut and New Hampshire speedily to fill up their quotas, and to raise and equip more men "to guard the shores round Rhode Island." A letter was also sent to Congress, in behalf of the committees, to accompany the copy of their proceedings.

The resolves of this body, which relate to the repeal of acts to prevent monopoly, &c., are as follows: —

"The Committe took into Consideration the acts against Monopoly and oppression and upon mature deliberation, are of opinion that they are attended with inconveniencies, and that the good ends proposed thereby may be better attained by the measures herein recommended — whereupon Resolved, That it be recommended to the several Legislatures to repeal all clauses in the aforesaid acts for preventing Monopoly and Oppression, so far as they relate to affixing the prices at which the articles therein enumerated shall be sold, and enacting penalties for not observing the same.—

And whereas it may be apprehended that the repeal of the monopoly Bill may operate to the prejudice of the non-commissoned officers & soldiers who may be employed in the Continental Army upon the expectation of being supplied with the necessaries of life at the prices affixed by said Bill, therefore more effectually to prevent such Evil RESOLVED that it be recommended to the several Legislatures aforesaid that provision be immediately made for supplying the troops belonging to the Continental Army, and raised in their respective States, who are in the feild, with such necessary articles as are not supplied by the Commissary General, upon the same terms as the several States have stipulated, always taking care that the prices affixed in the said Bill be considered as the prime cost— and also that provision be made at the expence of the respective st[ates†] that the families of the non commissioned officers and [sol†]diers of the Continental Army residing with them be supplied with provisions and cloathing at the prices sett in said bill to the amount of their wages, and that committees b[e†] appointed in all the towns and districts in said States, wh[ose†] business it shall be to see that the families of such officers and soldiers are duly supplied with such necessaries of li[fe†] as their circumstances may require to the amount of su[ch†] sum as shall be lodged by such officers and soldiers with said committees not exceeding their pay respectively — and also to provide suitable laws to procure the necessary articles stipulated to supply said Troops and their families by impressing those articles where necessity shall require, paying the owner a reasonable price therefor at the appraisement of indifferent judicious men.—

And whereas the Engrossing & withholding from sale the conveniences & necessaries of life, accumulating profits upon the same by repeated sales in large quantities from one engrosser to another, are highly prejudicial to the interest of any state, and, under the present circumstances of these States, are of the most fatal and dangerous tendency, RESOLVED that it be recommened to the Legislatures aforesaid to prohibit and prevent such practices from time to time under severe penalties as the nature & circumstances of the case may require, and to make provisions for enforcing the sale of the commodities so engrossed or with-held in small quantities and at reasonable prices for the use of the inhabitants."—Ibid., vol. 144, p. 43.

On the 11th of August, Thomas Cushing submitted to the Council the entire journal of the conference at Springfield, as the report of the legislative committee of which he was chairman. This report was read, and sent down to the House, where, on the 13th, it was, first, decided not to postpone the consideration of the whole report to the next session, and then the clause relating to acts for preventing monopoly and oppression was so postponed.

In the September session, the subject came up again, in a new form. A joint committee, consisting of Mr. Wendell, Mr. Davis of Oxford and Mr. Nichols, of the House, and Thomas Cushing and John Taylor, of the Council, was appointed, September 15th, "to consider what is proper to be done to restrain monopolizers and forestallers. On the same day, a committee of the House previously appointed to prepare a new draught of an act relative to providing for the families of the soldiers, and consisting of Messrs. Partridge, Orne, Goodman, Hosmer and Greenleaf, was directed "to bring in a bill for repealing the act to prevent monopoly and oppression." To this committee, also, was recommitted, after debate, the report of a committee relative to providing for the families of soldiers — said report having been specially assigned for a hearing, in the orders of the day. The report of the committee last named, has not been discovered; but it appears to have embraced a resolve for supplying the families of the non-commissioned officers and soldiers of the army; since such a resolve appears to have been considered by the House, and in a committee of the whole House, who referred it back, on the 20th, for further consideration.

A petition of a number of women in the town of Gorham, whose husbands and sons were in the Continental Army, complaining of their suffering circumstances, notwithstanding the money remitted to them by their husbands, etc., was also referred to this committee

On the 20th, the House, by message, urged the Council to enjoin the members, belonging to that Board, of the joint committee appointed to bring in a bill against monopoly, &c., to sit, immediately. But before any report was made by this committee, the following resolves were passed, removing the principal objection to the repeal of the monopoly acts. These resolves passed in the House, in the original draught, on the 20th of September, and they constitute chapter CXVI. of the printed resolves of that session: —

"State of Massachusetts Bay. — In the House of Representatives Sept. 20th 1777.

Whereas the very exorbitant prices at which most of the necessaries of Life are sold at the present Day renders it fit and reasonable that effectual provision should be made for Supplying, at reasonable rates, the Families of such Noncommissioned Officers & private Soldiers as have ingaged in the Continental Army.— Therefore Resolved That the Selectmen of the several Towns in this State who have not already made sufficient provision for this purpose be, and they are hereby directed, immediately upon the Receipt of this resolve, to call meetings of the Freeholders and other qualifyed voters within their Towns, respectively, which Towns thus assembled are hereby empowered & directed to make effectual provision that the Families of such noncommissioned Officers & privates in their respective Towns as have ingaged in the Continental Service shall be Supply'd from and after y^e^ first day of Septer. last, with such Necessaries of Life as their Circumstances may require to the amount of such Sum as shall be lodg'd by such noncommission'd Officers and Private Soldier with such Committee as has been or shall be appointed by the several Towns for this purpose not exceeding the one half part of their Wages respectively (the other half doubtless the Soldier will be supply'd with in Camp by the State Commissary) they paying for the same at the rates set and limitted in an Act intitled 'an Act to prevent monopoly and Oppression or at the rates they have been sett at in each Town in pursuance of said act [A] Provided nevertheless the said Committee shall refrain from supplying the Families of such Men as have received Bounties, (either from the Town for which they Enlisted, or from Individuals in consideration of their entering into the Continental Army) for so long a time as the said Committee shall judge the Bounties, they have respectively received, would have answered to defrey the extra Expence of Supplying their respective Families with necessaries[B] And also resolved that in Case any Town shall refuse or neglect to make such provision, that in such Case the Selectmen in such Town or Towns & their successors in Office shall make such provision and exhibit to this Court an account of the Surplus of the Costs of the necessaries of Life by them so supply'd for payment, with a reasonable sum for their trouble and expences, and the monies paid on such accounts shall be annexed to the then next Taxes of those Towns for which such Soldiers are inlisted and returned as part of their Quota of the Continental Army; And those Towns which shall in pursuance of this Resolve make provision for the Families of any Soldiers within their Respective Towns who are returned as having inlisted for some other Town as part of their Quota of the Continental Army, that then the Selectmen of such Towns shall have a right to charge the extra expence of the necessaries with which such Families were by them supply'd [C] to this State and lay their Accounts before the General Court for examination and payment thereof and the several Towns for whom such Soldiers were Hired (after being notified) shall be Charged with the sums thus paid in the then next Tax Bill

Two days before the above resolves were finally passed, the bill of this act was read a first time, in the House. On the next day, it was read a second time, and, on the 10th, read a third time, passed to be engrossed, and sent up to the Council, for concurrence. On the 13th, it was passed to be enacted, by both branches.

Chap. 7. This is the first act passed for drawing in, and sinking, bills of credit emitted during the Revolution. The conference of committees of the New-England states, held at Providence, Dec. 25, 1776, an account of which is given in the note to 1776–77, chapter 14, ante, agreed to the following recommendation, among others, to the several legislatures represented by them: —

"This Committee taking into Consideration the Currency of Paper Bills emitted by the States of New-England in Lieu of Money for the Prosecution of the present War, and being fully convinced, That it is absolutely necessary to prevent their Depreciation, as it will be impossible for the States to establish and support an Army, upon which the safety of the Country under God depends without preserving the Credit of such Emissions do Resolve as follows.

As the Paper-Bills now circulating far exceed the Quantity necessary for a Medium of Exchange and of Course the Surpluss must greatly tend to depreciate the whole.

It is recommended to the above mentioned States that no further Emissions be made, but that the Several Treasuries be supplied by Taxes & by borrowing the necessary Sums to be repaid in Three Years or sooner from their Date with an Interest not exceeding Five ℔r Centum ℔r Annum; unless upon a Critical Contingency there may be an absolute Necessity of an immediate supply, and the Money cannot be procured upon Loan: in which Case it is recommended that Bills be emitted redeemable in Three Years or sooner with an Interest of Four ℔r Cent. per Annum: and that that the State emitting the same Notify the other States of such Emission.

The Committee are governed in fixing the Rates of Interest for Money borrowed at Five ℔r Cent. by this Consideration that the Notes given by the Continental Treasurer are a better Security than those issued by any particular State and will have a more general Credit, which will make a Difference of One per Cent. in the Premium for Money borrowed—

That it be recommended to the several States forthwith to levy such Taxes upon the Inhabitants as their Abilities will bear.

That it be recommended to the several States to call in the Bills of Credit at the expiration of the Periods for which they were severally emitted in the Best Manner they can devise, to give reasonable and just satisfaction to the Possessors of the Bills —

The Committee have great hopes that a strict adherence to these Measures will effectually establish the Credit of the Paper Bills." — Mass. Archives, vol. 144, p. 13.

These recommendations were reënforced by a resolve of the Continental Congress communicated in the following letter: —

"Baltimore Feby 20th 1777.

Gentlemen, In Consequence of the Proceedings of the several Committees from the States of Massachusetts Bay, Connecticut, New Hampshire, and Rhode Island being laid before Congress, they have come to the enclosed Resolves, which I am commanded to transmit to you.

Altho Congress approve the Measures adopted by that Body to prevent the Depreciation of their Currency (except striking Bills to bear Interest) yet they have referred to the Consideration of the other States, the Propriety of regulating the Prices of Goods, and at the same Time recommend to them to devise such Expedients as they may think will be most likely to remedy the Evils occasioned by the exorbitant Prices of Manufactures, and all other Articles of Trade.

As the emitting Bills with Interest thereon, will have a Tendency to depreciate the Continental and other Currencies, it is the Opinion of Congress such a Measure ought by no Means to be adopted.

I beg Leave to request your Attention to the whole of the enclosed Resolves, and have the Honour to be, Gentlemen, your most obed. & very hble Serv.

The enclosed resolve referred to in the above letter, is as follows: —

"Resolved, That considering the situation of the new-england states, Congress approve of the measures adopted and recommended by the committees from the four new-england states, for the defence of the state of Rhode-Island; and also of the measures to be taken for preventing the depreciation of their currency, except that part which recommends the striking bills bearing interest, which being a measure tending to depreciate the continental and other currencies, ought not to be adopted, and it is so recommended by Congress to the said new-england states." — Journals of Congress: Feb. 15, 1777.

The next step preparatory to the sinking of the bills was the following provision for procuring paper to be used in striking off the treasurer's notes: —

"State of the } In the House of Representatives

The conference of committees from the legislatures of the New-England states, and New York, which was held at Springfield in August, 1777 (see note to chapter 6, ante), next adopted resolves recommending measures nearly coinciding with the provisions enacted in this chapter. The record of the result of this conference, respecting the currency, is as follows: —

"The committees confered upon the state of the paper currency of the said governments; of the expediency of calling in the same by taxes or otherwise; of the most effectual, expeditious and equal method of doing it; and best means for preventing the depreciation and counterfeiting of the same and, upon full consideration are unanimously of opinion, that the quantity of paper currency emitted and circulating in said states greatly exceeds what is necessary for a medium of trade, and for support of the war, whence necessarily follows the depreciation of the currency, a stagnation of their circulation, fluctuation irregularity, and extravagance in prices & if not timely remedied the total destruction of their credit to the greatest injury of the states: they are also unanimously of opinion, that the great number of Bills circulating upon the credit of the united states, and the several particular states tend mutually to depreciate each other, not only by the too great quantity but also by multiplied frauds in counterfeiting, and the increased difficulty of detecting the same, which evils as far as is possible to remedy at present & prevent in future, Resolved that it be earnestly recommended to the Legislatures of the several states to make provision for drawing in and sinking the bills of credit which are not upon interest by them respectively emitted (small change less than a dollar only excepted) by the first day of November next, either by taxes or by exhanging them for Treasurers notes, for sums not less than ten pounds on interest at six ℔' Cent ℔' Annum, or for Continental Bills of Credit: and to prohibit the currency of their respective bills of Credit from and after the said first day of November, and not to emit any more bills of credit hereafter except for change not exceeding half a dollar

Resolved that it be recommended to the several Legislatures aforesaid, for the future to provide for the exigencies of their respective States, and the support of the war, as far as possible, by taxation. And in order to lighten the burden, and accommodate the taxes to the convenience of the people, and the more effectually to establish the credit of the Continental currency, that those taxes be levied and assessed, at the least, once in every quarter of the year; and to take effectual measures that the several assessments be duly collected and punctually paid into the respective Treasuries." — Ibid., vol. 144, p. 41.

The report of the committee sent from Massachusetts to the Springfield conference having been placed in the orders of the day, the House, on the 13th of August, proceeded to consider the former of the above recommendations, and referred the same to a committee, consising of Messrs. Wetmore, Sumner, Davis, Durfee and Nichols, to consider the same, and report thereon "at the next session."

The General Court was adjourned to September 10th, on which day the Council sent down a message, from which the following is an extract: —

"You have before you, for consideration, the proceedings, agreed upon, by the Committees from the N. England States & N. York at their late convention in the Town of Springfield, They have recommended certain measures to be immediately taken for the Support of the paper currency. We earnestly recommend this important matter to your immediate attention, as every day's experience furnishes fresh proofs of the absolute necessity of it — The calling in & sinking our Bills of credit and levying as large Taxes as the People can possibly bear to defray the charges of the War, will we are perswadd as effectually support the credit of our money as any other measure we can at present suggest." — Ibid., vol. 158, p. 94.

This message with the accompanying papers, was read and committed to Messrs. Pitts, Greenleaf, Perry, Davis and Sewall "to consider the same and report."

* Chapter CCXXIV. of the printed resolves, March session, 1776–77.

On the 12th, the committee appointed August 13th, made their report as follows: —

"In the House of Representatives September 1777 —

The Committee appointed to take into consideration, the first paragraph of the Report of the Committees from this & the neighbouring States, lately sitting at Springfield, and to provide for calling in and sinking the Bills of Credit, not upon Interest (small change less than a dollar excepted) emitted by this State; have attended that service & beg leave to report—

That they find the amount of the Bills of Credit emitted by this state and not upon interest is—£470,042—

That the Bills of Credit emitted for small change, in sums less than a Dollar, amounts to £30962,, 12,, 8—

That the amount of the bills of Credit above & including a dollar is £439,079,, 7,, 4—

And that it is the opinion of the Committee, that the bills of Credit, last mentioned, to the amount of £250,000—be drawn into the Treasury and sunk, by a tax, to be levied for that purpose in the following manner; to wit. £125,000 thereof by the last day of December next—and £125,000, by the last day of May next—

That for the remainder of said Bills, being the sum of £189,079,, 7,, 4 The Treasurer be impowered and directed to give his notes to the possessors thereof, on interest at six ℔' Cent. ℔' Annum—payable on the first day of July, A.D. 1779.—that no note be given by him for a less sum than £10—& that the notes so given by him be not, in any way, negotiable or transferrable.

That from & after the first Day of November next, all the Bills of Credit of this state, not upon interest, small Change less than a Dollar excepted, shall cease to be a tender for any Debt whatever—Except that the same be received in payment of the taxes heretofore laid, or which shall be laid the present year— W. WETMORE ℔' Order".—Ibid., vol. 142, p. 89.

The consideration of this report was assigned to Tuesday, the 16th, but the subject seems not to have been reached until the seventeenth, when the House resolved itself into a committee of the whole for that purpose. The Council was notified of this resolution, by message. Mr. Pitts was appointed chairman of the committee, and the speaker left the chair. After debate, the committee rose and reported that no conclusion had been arrived at, and asked leave to sit again; which was granted for the afternoon of the same day, with the same result. This proceeding was repeated, through both sessions of the two following days, and, on the 20th, the committee, after one session, rose and reported as follows: —

"House of Representatives September 20 1777

The Committee of the whole House on the report of the Committee relative to calling in & sinking the money emitted by this State, report as their opinion viz^t.

That the Bills of Credit emitted by this State not on Interest (small change less than a Dollar only excepted) be call'd in & sunk by the first day of November next by exchang them for Treasurers Notes for Sums not less than ten pounds on Interest at Six ℔' Cent ℔' Ann^m and to prohibit the currency of the bills of Credit from & after the first day of November & not to emit any more hereafter except for change not exceeding half a dollar, unless the pressing Exigencies of the State make it absolutely necessary for its Welfare

That a Tax of £300,000 be levied & assessed on the Inhabitants of this State for the year 1777 and paid into the Treasury by the first of January next.

The House debated this report through the 23d, 24th and 25th; and on the 26th, Messrs. Sumner, Pynchon and Pitts were appointed a committee to bring in a bill for calling in and sinking the bills of credit, in accordance with the report.

A bill was brought in, accordingly, which was read a first time, October 2d, and read again, October 3d. On the 7th, it was read again, and debated, and on the 8th, it was passed to be engrossed, and sent up for concurrence. On the 10th, it was passed to be engrossed by the Council, with sections 3, 4 and 5, and the preamble to section 3, inserted as amendments. After engrossment, three minor amendments were proposed by the House, the most important of which were the striking out the words "of a new form" after the word "stamp," in the first section, and the addition of the clause at the end of section 9, requiring an oath and certificate thereof. These amendments were agreed to by the Council, and the bill was passed to be enacted, and signed by fifteen of the Council.

While this bill was pending, the following resolve was passed, prohibiting the emission from the treasury of any of the bills of credit of the larger denominations: —

"State of Massachusetts Bay In the House of Representatives Sept^r 26^d 1777

After the bill of this chapter had been passed to be engrossed, in the House, and before the Council had concurred in the engrossment, the following resolve against the further emission of bills, and providing for defraying the future expenses of the war, by taxation only, was passed: —

"State of Massachusetts Bay In the House of Representatives Oct 9 1777

It is therefore Resolved That the future Expences of the State in carrying on the present War &c be supported by Taxation only, and that the Taxes be levy'd & assess'd on the Inhabitants & punctually paid into the Treasury in such Sums & at such short Periods as the Generall Court shall hereafter direct.

Letter Simular to the above with the Several resolutions mentioned sent to the four New England States & N. York" — Ibid., vol. 198, p. 258.

Petitions and remonstrances against the act, now poured in from different parts of the state. Those from the towns of Mansfield, Leicester, Taunton, Rutland, Oakham, Norton, Fitchburg, Harwich, Holden, Middleborough, Westborough, Westminster, Easton, Mendon, Leominster, Monson, Plympton and Harvard, and from the committees of Sutton, Worcester, Uxbridge, Grafton, Douglas and Northbridge were read, before Dec. 5, and committed to Messrs. Phillips, Ellis, Greenough, Coffin, Hosmer, Brooks and Turner, with directions to sit forthwith. Although neither the originals, nor any transcript, of these petitions have been found, the manner in which some of the objections of the remonstrants were stated appears in the following remonstrances from the towns of Pepperrell and Belchertown. The address which follows, sums up all the objections: —

"To Henry Woods Esq. Representative for the Town of Pepperrell in the General Assembly, of the State of the Massachusetts Bay —

We the Freeholders and other Inhabitants of the Town of Pepperrell in Town meeting Assembled Nov^r 29: 1777. Having maturely consider^d the late Act of the Great and General Assembly of this State for calling in and giving publick Notes on Intrest for all the Bills of publick credet of this State excepting those that are on intrest and that are in value less than one dollar. — Think it will be attended with many and great evils to this State. As this nesesary but unhapy war has unavoidably occasioned a heavy dept to be contracted by this State and likely to increase We think that paying intrest for such a large sum must much increase the Dept without equivolent advantage many other evils attend the calling in so large a sum at once. Many persons that have this States money by them and little else must carry it in and take notes for the same or loose it which money they will need to pay their Taxes, with for the want of which their Goods and Chattles must be taken to their great damage or prehaps to their utter Ruen.

We are senceable that the high and uncertain price of the nesasaries of life is a great grievance and must prove very hurtfull if not checked for which good purpose we suppose the Honourable general Assembly passed the late Act — But with all humble submission think that calling it in a little more moderately by a Tax might answer the same purposes without being attended with so many bad consequences — For the above reasons and many more which might be mentioned — we desire and expect you will use your best endeavours in the General Assembly to procure a repeal of the Above s^d Act —

"To the Honᵇˡᵉ Councel & House of Representatives in Genˡˡ Court assembled, in Boston, State of Massachusetts Bay we the Inhabitants of Belcherstown Beg leave to Represent to your Honours, that the End of Legislation & Goverment is the Publick Good so when the subjects of Legislation and Goverment Enact any Rules or Laws that are not Calculated & adapted for the Publick Good or to advance the Common Intrest — It is both their Duty & Right to Remonstrate against such acts and Petition for Redress

Upon these Principals we Would beg leave to remonstrate to your Honours against a Late act of sᵈ Assembley for Calling in the bills of this State and Giveing Notes on Intrest for the same in the manner Prescribed in sᵈ act — The Reasons we would offer are these

In the First place we apprehend sᵈ act Directly Contrary to the Declaration and Promis and Law of the Honᵇˡᵉ Assembly aforsᵈ, Expresed in the Face of sᵈ Bills, wherin they wear ordered to Pass for a Certain time in all Payments which time is not yet Expired, Which act we apprehend is intirely Novel and foreign from the Legislators Design in Emiting sᵈ Bills, and to the Expectation of People in takeing them, and has a tendancy to Excite People to Charge Legislators with Inconstancy, and be Defident of Court Promises, and to Destroy the Credit of all Paper Currancy,

We also apprehended that, that the Design of the Assembly when they Emitted sᵈ Bills, was that they should be Called in by Taxes at the times appointed in sᵈ Bills and this was the Genˡˡ Expectation of People which by sᵈ Late act is frusterated, If it be sᵈ that the Design of sᵈ Act was to prevent the Depreciation of paper Currancy, we Reply that sᵈ Bills would not be so Depreciated, but that they would be fully sufficiant for their own Dedemption —

Further we apprehend it Intirely unreasonable to put sᵈ money upon Intrest as prescribed in sᵈ act, because people must be obliged to pay the Same at the Expiration of sᵈ Termes, and the principal & Intrest will amount to an Enormous Sum when the money being Called in, in this manner will Deprive them of the means of Paying — it will be Brick without Straw

We are verry Sencible of the Great pains that has bin taken by your Honours to stop those people Called Monopolizers, but Notwithstanding all the pains that has bin taken they have Gon against all Rule and order, and have sunk the Bills about Seventy five ℔ᶜᵉ Centˢ and by that means have gathered Great Quantityes of them into their hands, and see them sinqueing to Nothing Whether these People are in Boston or in the Country we are not able to say, but we apprehend they have perswaded your Honours to Call in their Bills — which they have unrighteously Gained, and put them upon Intrest & that is to make Money scearce, and if it answers the Design of the Court, it will Greatly answer the End of the monopolizer, and what Little of our Estates will be Left at the End of the war must Go to pay the principal & Intrest of sᵈ Contract —

We have bin at Great Expence in the war, and some of us have hired men into the three years Continental Service, at the Expence of a 100 — 130 — and 150 Dollers Each others of us have Left all the Intrest we had in the world, Left our farmes at Rack & Ruin and pushed of Personally into the war for the sake of the Liberty of the Country and if we must be thus Devoured while we are absent we shall think it verry heard

Further more as a General uneasiness at sᵈ act prevails in the state we are fearfully apprehensive that the Consequence will be bad some will be Discouraged others Mutinous we fear that peoples minds will be Disafected to Govermont, (Which we are Earnestly Desireous to maintain) and the salvation of our Country which we would Ever promote will hereby be neglected and indangered —

Our Request and petition therefore is that your Honours would Make an order that no more of sᵈ Notes Shall be Given, and those that are Given shall be recalled, and redemed, with the same money and sᵈ money ordered to pass as before and your Petitioners as in Duty bound shall Ever Pray NATHᴸᴸ DWIGHT, DANIEL SMITH, CALEB CLARK } Comᵗᵉ "—

The committee upon these remonstrances made the following report, on the fourth of December: —

"The Committee to whom was committed the Remonstrances of several towns on the subject of an Act lately passed for the Purpose of calling in and sinking by Loan the Bills of Credit of this State — take leave to report that a Bill be brought in to give Liberty for the payment of the Bills of Credit emitted by this State, in discharge of Taxes untill the 15ᵗʰ of Jany next — and that further Provision be made to defrey the Charges of Government, by granting a Tax of one hundred and fifty thousand Pounds to be paid by the first of June next. — SAMᵘᴸ PHILLIPS prʳ Ordʳ ." — Ibid., vol. 137, p. 192.

After debate upon this report, a committee, consisting of Messrs. Paine, Phillips, Sumner, Hosmer and Pickering, was appointed "to collect the several objections set forth in said remonstrances, and prepare answers to the same, shewing the reasons on which the act aforesaid was founded."

On the 12th of December, the last committee reported an address to the inhabitants of the state, answering the objections made in the remonstrances of the towns already named, and of the towns of Stoughtonham, Spencer, Bridgewater, Chelmsford, Stow and Littleton, which were presented later. On the 15th, Messrs. Paine, Greenough and Phillips were appointed a committee to correct the address, which had been reported, "and that Mr. Scott cause the same, when prepared by said committee, to be printed in handbills, one of which to be sent to the selectmen of each town in this state, to be communicated." This address was as follows: —

"To the INHABITANTS of the STATE of MASSACHUSETTS BAY.

Friends and Fellow Countrymen!

IT is with concern and attention that the House of Representatives find that an act, intituled an act for drawing in the bills of credit of the several denominations, &c passed the last Session, has given uneasiness to any of the good people of this State: A number of towns have presented their petitions stating such grievances, as they apprehend will arise from the execution of that act, and pray relief;

THE knowledge which the good people have of the disposition of their Representatives, must induce them to believe (what most of the petitions express) that the legislative body in passing that law, and in all their conduct, have it sincerely in view to promote the welfare of this State, by those measures which upon full advisement and consideration of all circumstances and exigencies, appear best adapted for that essential purpose; and in pursuance of that disposition, the House of Representatives have proceeded to a consideration of the substantial part of the petitions, and to explain to their constituents, the reasons upon which the said act was enacted.

IT is well known, that the present necessary and expensive war in which we are involved, for the preservation of every thing valuable, was first enkindled in this State, and in so sudden a manner, that without magazines or finances, we were obliged instantly to raise, pay and support a large army by our own efforts, before the American Congress could take measures to relieve us; this occasioned the emission of large and repeated quantities of bills of credit; the unsettled state of Government, and the disinclination of many of the inhabitants to call in any of the bills of credit, or prevent the emission of more by taxation, reduced the legislative body to this alternative, either to suffer our liberties to be destroyed for want of defence, or else to continue the emission of paper bills, to the depreciation of what was then current: the same situation of Government, and disinclination for taxation taking place also in the other States, occasioned large and repeated emissions of bills of credit from them, which obtained a general circulation among us; from all this it is obvious, that the American Congress being the collected power and will of the United States, could do no otherwise, than repeat their emissions of Continental currency, as the general good of the whole required, expecting when the Governments of the several States should be so established, as that taxation should relieve us from the great evil of repeated emissions of paper currency: It is also notorious, that numbers of our enemies have counterfeited large quantities of the paper currency of this and the neighbouring States, and that by means of all this, the quantity of circulating paper medium, has long since encreased vastly beyond all pretensions of usefulness, and manifestly to the enhancing the demand of all commodities to an extravagant price: This alarming situation of our currency and commerce, induced the General Assembly of last year, to meet by their Delegates in Convention, the neighbouring States at Providence, and on their report, the monopoly bill (so called) was enacted, but being unaccompanied with taxation, loaning, or any other method of reducing the overgrown quantities of paper currency, it failed of answering the valuable purposes for which it was designed; the suppressing the prices of commodities, at a time when the quantity of currency was vastly too great and still encreasing, inevitably threw the bulk of the money out of circulation and use, and of course inclined the holders of such useless quantities of money, to give a much larger price for commodities than the monopoly bill allowed; and when the buyer is willing, what can restrain the seller? This growing evil not being redressed by the monopoly bill, the present General Court in their last Session, appointed a committee to meet in Convention at Springfield, the committees of the five northern States, to confer upon, the best method of redressing these evils; the amount of whose report was, that the only method from which we could reasonably expect relief was, reducing the quantity of currency, by loaning, taxation and non-emission of bills of credit: Your Representatives therefore, taking into consideration the amount of the paper currency of this State, the quantity of it that is counterfeited, the difficulties that arise from the numerous sorts of it, of knowing the good from the bad; the great advantages of having but one species of currency, viz. the Continental; the exceeding quantities of that sort which will remain when all the States money is destroyed; found themselves under a necessity of stopping the currency of the bills of any single State, and calling in those of our own in the speediest manner. Your Representatives being desirous to give full satisfaction to their constituents, upon the subject of their Petition, think it the readiest way to state the objections contained in the whole of them, and to obviate the seeming grievances.

ONE prevailing objection against the act is, 'that the loaning the State's money will distress us, by the encreasing debt arising from the interest of the same.' That the interest of a sum added to the principle, makes a larger sum than the principle is certain, but that the debt will be encreased thereby in certain cases, will not appear upon explanation; for by loaning those bills, the circulating quantity is lessened; this has a natural tendency to prevent the high prices, which arise from a surplusage of money, and this in a short time will amount to a saving of more than the whole principle, the reducing the quantity of currency, is certainly the regular method of curing the evils, which arise from such undue quantity; when therefore, such evils appear, the regular remedy should be applied in the speediest manner, i. e. the states money being particularly instrumental of producing these evils, must be sunk as speedily as possible; that it should be sunk by loan, rather than by taxation will further appear, by considering that the expences of the war are still pressing us, that they are unavoidably encreasing by the encreased price of all necessaries, and therefore that the treasury must be supplied with larger sums; this can only be done, either by emission of more bills of credit, by taxation or borrowing on loan; of the first, too much has been done already; for a calculation between the advanced prices of goods, and the interest of money, must satisfy every unprejudiced person, that had we been able to have hired the money necessary for our expenditures, instead of making new emissions, above half the expences would have been saved, i. e. eight times the interest the emission of more bills will render of less value, what is already current, i. e. will raise the price of all necessary articles, and by that means encrease our expences to a much greater amount than the interest of such a sum of money as, if borrowed, would have prevented the necessity of such emissions.

Taxation and borrowing on loan, only remain as methods to supply the treasury; the exigencies of of affairs, forbid the risquing the slow, the uncertain method of supplying the treasury wholly by borrowing, and made it necessary that all the money that could be raised by taxation, should be paid into the treasury in Continental money for the support of the war, and of course no other method was left of sinking the States money than that prescribed in the act, of drawing it in by loan: Had the states money been called in by taxation, it would have cost all the tax that could conveniently be raised for the year 1777, and then there would have been no method left of supplying the treasury, but borrowing Continental bills on interest; and with regard to the encrease of debt, as is objected, there is no odds upon the loan of what money the interest is paid whether States bills or Continental: Whence it appears, that your Representatives were reduced to the choice of the following cases; either to call in the States money by taxation, and then pay it out again for current charges, after it was known to be so counterfeited as to deceive the good people; or to call it in by tax and destroy it, and then endeavour to supply the treasury, by borrowing on loan, or by making more emissions of money, or else to sink the State bills by loan, as prescribed in the act, and appropriate the tax to the supply of the treasury, the latter was adopted, as being the most beneficial of either.

But it is said, 'That this method will throw the interest money into the hands of evily disposed monopolizers, who have occasioned the depreciation of our currency.' Whether those persons called monopolizers have not undervalued the money, and whether the great surplusage of money has not occasioned the monopolizing of commodities, are questions easily determined, and whether the receiving interest for States money, will benefit such persons more than receiving interest for Continental money in the Continental loan office, where draughts for silver money in France is paid for interest, and whether it is possible to carry on this necessary war, without borrowing large sums over and above all our taxation, and whether the taking the money of particular persons into into our funds, will not engage the abilities of such persons to the American interest, and whether we can possibly punish those unworthy persons by suffering the currency to grow useless in their hands, without distressing the worthy part of the community; and whether the taxing such persons in proportion to their interest, will not reduce their newly-acquired property to public benefit, are questions worthy of consideration.

It is said, 'That the time for executing the act is too short, and that distress will be occasioned thereby.' But it will be considered, that the circumstances of our affairs required a speedy remedy, and the depreciation of our money was in some measure owing to an apprehension that it would not be called in by taxation, loaning or otherwise, and much greater evils must have arisen to the credit of our State bills, by protracting the currency of them, than can arise by the suddenness of the change, for in addition to what has been said, vast quantities of counterfeited bills have been prevented getting into circulation thereby: It is also objected, 'that the method of loaning, prescribed in the act, will not answer the purpose of putting the money out of circulation, tho' we pay interest for it,' but doth not the experience of those notes now on interest prove the contrary, the continual encreasing value, prevents their passing as a currency, unless in cases of great occasion, and then Bonds, Mortgages and Ships, yea Houses and Lands may be transferred.

We think ourselves obliged to take notice of an objection, which though variously expressed, in substance is this, 'that the said act is cruel and oppressive, a violation of public faith, and contrary to the promise made upon the face of the bills.' The objectors are desired to consider whether, if the act had been, that every man who was possessed of States money should bring it to the treasurer, and for it receive the amount in silver or gold, would it is be a violation of public faith, and contrary to the promise made on the face of the bill? Can it be said, that the money so received at the treasury would be received in payment? If instead of paying in silver and gold, it should be paid for in Continental money, or a new emission of money, would that be a violation of public faith, &c.? why then is redeeming them by large notes on interest esteemed a violation, &c.? To this it may be answered, 'because they will not pass in common payment, nor at the treasury, and a man is forced to loan his money, whether he will or not;' is not this shifting the objection from the letter to the spirit? Suppose the General Assembly had taken no measures to reduce the quantity of paper currency, and secure its value, would this be a violation of public faith and public trust? Suppose they had undertaken to reduce the quantity, by drawing in the States money by taxes, and then had not been able to supply the treasury for necessary defence, would this be a violation of public faith, cruel, oppressive, &c. Is here not a real destructive violation of public faith, and public trust, put in opposition to a supposed violation of a promise in the face of the bill?—Doth not the whole force of this objection arise from the objectors not being willing to lend their money for public use? If the good intention and effect of the act was duly supported by a spirit of Patriotism, would there be any complaining of being forced to loan a little surplusage money for common good? Hath it not been the universal sentiment since the war broke out, that this generation must fight, and the next pay what we are not able to? How can that be done without loaning the debt? Do any think we must continue making paper money, and leave the next generation to redeem it? It is not certainly known, that paper money can't be made beyond a certain quantity, equal to the articles that are usually bought and sold, and beyond that, only the nominal sum is encreased, and not the value, compared with things to be bought, and that this is the case with gold and silver, as well as paper currency. But it is said, 'that the great plenty of paper money, renders it more easy to redeem the States money by tax now, than it will be hereafter when money is scarce' This is an undoubted reason why we should collect as much money by tax as we can bear, and if the current expences will admit, that any of the notes on interest, should be redeemed it should be done; but whoever considers the unavoidable expence of the present war, including our share of the continental expence, will hardly suppose our taxes will be equal to it. It is not much to be wondered, that the good people of this State should differ in their sentiments respecting the best methods of remedying the evils we all complain of, as the system of money matters and commerce in their nature, are intricate and abstruce, and perhaps not generally understood.

IT is with pleasure we observe, that jealousy for liberty which has occasioned these objections, yet we should cautiously guard against the subtil designs of our internal enemies, who omit no opportunity of fomenting divisions and jealousies, by which only they can hope to subdue us; and we should well consider, whether there are more evils and inconveniencies arising from the act complained of, than always attend those great operations which are necessary for public safety.

YOUR Representatives are equally concerned in the matter with yourselves, and cannot possibly lay a burthen on the community, in which they do not partake in proportion to their property, as settled by the present tax bill: The only objection that remains to be obviated is, 'that there unavoidably will be small sums remaining in the hands of poor people, who may not be able to change it with their rich neighbours and that without some provision they will be in danger of loosing it.' At the making the law it was thought, that the more substantial part of the inhabitants would have been so apprehensive of the necessity and usefulness of the act, as to have exerted themselves to carry it into execution, and have relieved others, by exchanging such small sums for them: And in order to give opportunity for this, the Court have by an act lengthened the time for collecting in the money. [Chapter 14, ante.]

UPON the whole, the good effects of this regulation so much complained of, are already obvious in many respects, and nothing seems wanting but perseverance to reap the real benefit of it.

IT would have been more desireable to your Representatives, to have called in the States money by taxation, if the circumstances of the State would admit, but the necessity we shall be under of raising a sum of money to supply the Continental treasury, in compliance with a requisition of Congress, received since your petitions were under consideration (as will appear by the Resolve of Congress transmitted you) render it quite impracticable, and would give as much uneasiness to some towns, as satisfaction to others: but that no town may think that due attention has not been given to their petitions, the Court have passed an act,* enabling such towns as think they can afford to raise a still larger tax, to raise money and put it on loan, for the purposes in the act mentioned: Whilst your Representatives are labouring to conduct your common concerns by the safest rules, and most beneficial methods; they trust their constituents will not embarrass their measures, by misapprehensions and distrust, but afford them that confidence and support, without which the best administration must fail of success." — "Independent Chronicle and the Universal Advertiser" of Jan. 1, 1778. Published also in the "Continental Journal and Weekly Advertiser" of the same date.

On the second of December, 1772, the eighth of November, 1773, and again, on the sixth of February, 1777, committees were appointed to apply to the General Court for a charter for the society. The last of these committees consisted of Capt. Michael Hodge, Capt. James Hudson and Capt. William Coombs; but no petition, either by this committee or one of the former committees, has been discovered in the archives of the state or in the files and records of the society.

By the journal of the House, it appears that the petition of James Hudson and others was read, in the House, and committed to "Capt. Batchelder, Mr. Greenleaf and Major Orne," Oct. 7, 1777; and that the bill of this chapter was read a first time, the day following, a second time, on the 9th, passed to be engrossed and sent up for concurrence, on the 10th, and, on the 13th, passed to be enacted.

Chap. 10. The following petition from the commissary of prisoners of war, was received on the day of its date, and immediately referred to a committee of the House, consisting of Messrs. Batchelder, Wetmore and Hutchinson: —

"State of Massachusetts Bay Boston Aug^t^ 13th 1777

To The Honourable General Court of this State—

The Pitition of Robert Pierpont Humbly Sheweth

That Your pititioner begs leave to lay before this Hon^ble^ Court the difficulty of Procuring prisoners to Exchange for those taken by our Enemys, as the Captains of our Privateers bring few or no Prisoners of late, your Pititioner is of opinion that they let them go the first opportunity after they have taken them, weather this is done to Save the paying them there Wages and Supporting them or fear of their Rising your Pititioner is not Able to Say, but thuss Much he is well assur'd of that unless Some other Method is hit upon this State will Suffer Much in the loss of Men, therefore your Pititioner Humbly prays that your Honours would take this Matter into your Consideration and as in Duty Bound Shall ever pray

ROB^T^ PIERPONT { Commissary of Prisoners of Warr."—Mass. Archives, vol. 215, p. 35.

The next day a bill was brought in, entitled "An Act in addition to an act for securing and making provision for the support of prisoners who may be taken by any American armed vessels, and brought or sent into any port in this state." This bill required the owners and commanders of all private vessels of war to give bond to the state treasurer that no seamen or prisoners of war taken by them should be discharged or sent to any foreign port, or suffered to escape, but that such captives should be brought into some port of the United States, to be delivered to the commissary of prisoners; and, further, to comply with the requirement of this act, and of chapter 35 of the acts of the previous year. The bill, also, in terms, repealed the clause in the former act, which required the payment of £4 to the commissary, for each prisoner delivered to him. This bill, which had its first reading August 14th, was read a second time the next day, "and ordered to lie."

On the 7th of October, Mr. John Pickering, jun., of Salem, was ordered "to bring in a bill repealing that clause" of the act of 1776–77, chap. 35, "which directed the agents or commanders of such vessels, or prize-masters, to pay the commissary of prisoners the sum of £4 for each prisoner, &c."

In accordance with this order, Mr. Pickering, the next day, reported a bill for repealing "part of a clause" in the act aforesaid. This bill was read a second time on the 9th, and, on the 10th, a third time, and passed to be engrossed, and sent, for concurrence, to the Council, where, on the 13th, it was passed, in concurrence, to be engrossed. It was passed to be enacted, on the fourteenth. Before the engrossment, the bill was amended, by substituting "two clauses," for "a clause," in the title, and by adding the second section and the preamble thereto.

Chap. 11. The inhabitants of contiguous territory, embracing the south-westerly part of Washington, formerly called Hartwood, the north-easterly part of Great Barrington, or "Hoplands," the Glassworks Grant, and part of Williams's Grant, had, as early as 1774, applied to the Legislature to be incorporated into a town. The incorporation into the town of Washington, of the proprietors of Hartwood (1776–77, chap. 40), upon an application adverse to the petition of the proprietors of the Hoplands, was the only result reached at the beginning of the present political year. The details of the contest between these rival petitioners are shown in the note to the chapter referred to. The first effort, before the Legislature of 1776–77, of the petitioners who were subsequently incorporated under this chapter, appears to have been the presentation of the following petition: —

"To the Honble Council and Honble House of Representatives of the Colony of the Massachusetts-Bay, now convened at Watertown in Great and Genl Court or Assembly —

The Petition of us the subscribers, living on lands (commonly called) Great Barrington Hoplands, the Glassworks Grant and Williams's Grant — humbly sheweth —

That they are informed, That a number of persons living in the South West part of the Plantation of Hartwood and lands adjoining, have petitioned your Honours That the inhabitants living on the first mentioned lands may be incorporated with them, and allowed the privileges of a town &c — Therefore your petitioners humbly pray, That previous to such an act of incorporation, they may be heard, on a future day assigned, by their agent or otherwise — Thus your petitioners as in duty bound shall ever pray —

This petition was read June 17, 1776, "and ordered to lie." No further measures appear to have been proposed by the petitioners, or by the Assembly, until early in the sixth session of the same year, when the following petitions and certificate were presented to the House; upon which the resolve hereunder given was passed: —

"To the Honble Council and House of Representatives for the Colony of the Massachusetts Bay.

The Petition of the Inhabitants of the Southwesterly part of Hartwood, the North Easterly part of Great Barrington or what is commonly called the Hoplands, the Glassworks Grant, and part of a Grant Called Williams' Grant in the County of Berkshire Humbly Sheweth —

That your Petitioners haveing heretofore applied to the Great and General Court of this Colony to be Set off from the Several Towns to which we now belong, and to be Incorporated into a Twown Precinct or Parish by our Selves, but by Reason of the Present Contention between Great Britain and the Colonies, we have heather too been prevented obtaining our End — Therefore your Petitioners beg leave to Renew their Request. And as the proceeding of the General Court togeather with our papers Relative to our Case; are fallen into the hands of our Enimies, we must once more give our Reasons for this our Request, which are as follows —

Those of us who live on the Southwesterly part of Hartwood are obliged to Travil Ten or Twelve Miles and that Through the worst of Roads to Git to the meeting House or to the Main Body of the People. And those of us who live in the North Easterly part of Great Barrington are obliged to Travil the same Distance to Git to our Town and Great part Of that Through the Town of Stockbridge, and those of us on the afore Said Grants can better Join with the afore Said parts of Hartwood, and Great Barrington than with any other Town. Therefore your Petitioners pray your Honours to Take our Case into Consideration, and if you find it Reasionable Set us off from the Several Towns to which we belong, and Incorporate us into a Town District or Parish as you shall Think most proper, with Such Limits and Bounds as Discribed in a plan which we herewith Transmit to your Honnours—and your Petitioners as in Duty Bound Shall ever pray —

On the 17th, the bill of this act was passed, in the Council, to be engrossed, and sent down for concurrence. On the 18th, the House concurred, with an amendment, in the third section, striking out after "till," the words "a new valuation shall be made throughout this state by," and inserting, instead thereof, the words, "the further," before "order." In the engrossment, "the" was omitted before "further." On the 21st, the bill was passed to be enacted.

The following proceedings, growing out of conflicting views as to the meaning of the third section of this act, are all that have been discovered relating to the subject, down to the adoption of the Constitution: —

"To the Honourable the Council and house of representatives of the State of Massechusetts bay in General Court assembled—

The Petition of the subscribers selectmen of the Town of Stoc[k*]bridge humbly sheweth.

That we are informed that at the time y^e General Court of this state incorporated a number of inhabitants in y^e vicinity of This town into a town by the name of Lee some of which inhabitants used to pay publick taxes jointly with the inhabitants of This town were by s^d act of incorporation expressly injoined to pay taxes as usal with this town 'til further order should be given in this matter by the General Court. That in complyance herewith the assessors of the town of Stockbridge have assessed them in the State tax from time to time; but the s^d inhabitants of Lee as afforsd tho Reqired to pay their respective taxes have as often refused to comply therewith the last years state tax was assessd as afforsd including s^d inhabitants and the tax bill committed to M^r Sam^l Hatch Constable of this town who pursuant to his warrant from the Treasurer of this state proceeded to collect y^e same: and that he has been to & required s^d inhabitants of Lee as afforsd to pay their taxes which they refusing to do (under pretence of their being incorporated) he proceeded to distrain according to law but was resisted as is set forth in his Certificate anexed hereto whereupon he brought the matter before the town for their advice & direction. the Town advised him to suspend further attempts 'til the matter be laid before the general Court, and directed the Selectmen to do the same in a petition signed by them

That in consequence of s^d refusal & resistance the collectors have not been able to make the remittances required by law and the town, the assessors & collectors are laid under peculiar imbarrassments in this matter. We therefore pray your honours to take this matter into your Consideration: and give such directions for relief & redress as you shall think meet & best— And as in duty bound shall Ever pray were in like manner as other Towns in the State, distinctly Called upon by the General Court for a Valuation of our Estates, which was accordingly made Out and Returned, That in June 1778 we were in Like Manner Call,[d] upon by a Resolve of the General Court for our Proportion of Eighteen Hundred Men to Serve in the Continental Army, untill the first of January then Next Unless Sooner discharged, and to pay Each noncommissioned Officer and Soldier a bounty of fourteen Pounds, which by Said Resolve the Selectmen were Impowered to pay out of the treasury, and to Assess a Tax on the Poles and Estates of the Inhabitants to Replace the Money so taken, which order was Punctually Complied with by your Petitioners, this Requisition together with their having been Called upon for their Valuation as Aforesaid, your Petitioners did then and do Still take to be the further orders of the General Court, Expressed in Said Act of Incorporation, Otherwise we Cannot conceive of Any provision being made in Our Case for Replacing the Money which we were Required to Raise for paying Said Bounties, Without which we Can't but view, the Requisition as Similar to that of being Required to make Brick without Straw; that we Were Likemanner Called Upon for our Proportion of Cloathing for the Army, Which was Also Complied with that notwithstanding the facts now mentioned the Town of Stockbridge have Continued to tax y^r Petitioners in the Same manner, as, before we were Incorporated into a Distinct Town, that amongst Other taxes we Were taxed by the Said Town of Stockbridge, for paying their Representative, without Allowing us the priviledge of avoice in the Election, altho Particularly Requested, Your petitioners beg leave further, to Shew that we have been taxed by the Said town of Stockbridge in the Illegal & unjust manner aforesaid (as we Conceive— That a number of us have been taxed by Said Town for that part of our Real Estates which lies in that which used to be Annexed to Other Towns, and never was Annexed to the Town of Stockbridge, That the State of this County is Such there being no Court of Sessions nor any Civil Authority Exercised in the County We can have no Relief from the Grievances Last Mentioned in the Usual Course of Law, and for that Reason that Some Individuals made personal resistance when the Constable Attempted to Distrain this being the true State of facts we pray your Honours to take Our Case into your wise Consideration, and Grant us Such Relief as you Shall think Just and fit and as in duty bound Shall Ever pray &c.

The foregoing petition, or answer, was referred to a committee, which, on the 20th of March, was changed, to consist of Messrs. Turner, Miller and Longley. On the 10th of April, 1780, this committee reported that the petition "lie on the files of the House, for the present," and this report was accepted.

Chap. 12. The bill of this act was read a first and second time, in the House, in the morning session of Oct. 21, 1777, and in the afternoon it was read a third time, passed to be engrossed, and sent up for concurrence. On the next day, it was passed to be enacted, and signed, evidently, that day, though not until the 25th, according to the record.

"June 3, 1777. Read and committed to Col. Robinson, Mr. Gray, Mr. Davis, Mr. Jackson and Col. Coffin."—House Journal, p. 11.

The House, by successive assignments, discussed, on the 6th, 9th and 10th of June, the question of the amount of tax to be levied this year. On the 10th, a motion for a new valuation previous to the laying of another tax, was rejected; and on the 11th, the debate was resumed, and the further consideration of the subject was postponed to the "next session." Nothing further relating to the tax appears of record, except a petition from the town of Pittsfield for an abatement of the tax on that town (which was "read and ordered to lie") until the thirteenth of August, when the second paragraph of the recommendation of the conference of states, at Springfield, was taken up, and postponed, as shown in the note to chapter 7, ante.

* Chapter LXXIV. of the printed resolves of the November session 1777–78.

On the 25th of September, the House, after debate upon the report of the committee of the whole House, relative to calling in the bills of credit, voted "That, previous to determining upon the sum proper to be levied upon the inhabitants, as a tax for the present year, the House fix upon an equal method of assessing such tax," and assigned the next day for discussing the subject. This discussion was followed by the appointment of a committee, consisting of Messrs. Wendell, Gardner, Hosmer, Bliss, Partridge, Greenough, Paine, Simpson, Washburn, Noyes, Lovejoy and Bacon "to consider an equal method of assessing a tax, as aforesaid."

The report of this committee, which has not been discovered, was, after debate, ordered to be recommitted, October 1st, and, on the next day, was accepted, with amendments, and it was thereupon voted, "That a tax of £300,000 be levied and assessed on the inhabitants of this state, for the year 1777, and paid into the treasury by the first of January next," and Messrs. Pickering, Dix and Paine were appointed a committee to prepare a tax bill, accordingly. On the 6th, Mr. Greenough was appointed upon this committee, "in the room of Mr. Pickering, excused."

On the 3d of October, a committee, consisting of Messrs. Crane, Webster, Brooks, Bliss, Mitchell, Jenkins, Paine, Simpson, Baker, Noyes, Lovejoy and Ashley, was appointed "to consider what towns should be abated of their proportion of the tax that might be laid the present year agreeable to the last valuation, and whether an addition ought to be made to any town."

On the next day, this committee made a report, which, though neither the original nor a professed copy of it has been found, is probably embodied, in its exact tenor, in the following vote of the House, which was passed October 6th; and, at the same time, the report was ordered to be "committed to the committee for bringing in a tax bill": —

"The House, according to the Order of the Day, proceeded to the Consideration of the Report of the Committee relative to Abatements, &c. and after Debate thereon, Voted, That the Town of Boston be abated 1-6th. Charlestown 6-7th. Marblehead 1-4th. Gloucester 1-4th. Manchester 1-8th. Falmouth 1-half. Plymouth 1-8th. Roxbury 1-12th. Dorchester 1-12th." — House Journal, p. 99.

The House also ordered that Messrs. Paine, Gray, and Davis of Oxford, "be a committee to bring in a resolve for abating from the tax that may be laid, the present year, on any town that shall appear, when a new valuation of estates is taken, to be overrated, and for adding the tax to such town as shall appear to be underrated."

On the 7th of October, the committee appointed, on the 2d, to bring in a tax bill, was enlarged by the addition thereto of Messrs. Goodwin and Choate; and Messrs. Snow and Noyes were substituted for Messrs. Dix and Greenough, excused. On the 10th, the committee, appointed on the 6th, to bring in a resolve for abating taxes, &c., reported, and their report was accepted, and sent up to the Council, for concurrence, whence, as late as December 2d, it was returned nonconcurred.

On the 11th, the bill of a tax act was read a first time. On the 13th, this bill was read a second time, and recommitted. On the 14th, the committee having it in charge made a report, which was accepted, and, the next day, the bill was passed to be engrossed. The amount to be apportioned and assessed, in this bill, was £305,907, 2*s.* 9*d.*, and £8,843, 17*s.* 6*d.*, paid the representatives. On the 18th, the Council concurred in the engrossment; the amounts to be assessed having been changed to the sums fixed in the act. On the 22d, the bill thus amended was passed to be enacted, in the House, and, on the 24th, it was enacted by the Council, and signed.

On the 19th day of June, 1777, the House passed a resolve directing the receiver-general, to receive of the collectors of taxes the bills of credit of the neighboring states, in discharge of the public taxes by them collected. This resolution does not appear to have been concurred in by the Council.

Remonstrances against this tax, and petitions for abatement, received from several towns, are given below, together with the record of proceedings thereupon by the General Court.

"To the Honourable the Council & House of Representative of the State of the Massachusetts Bay in General Court Assembled at Boston the Sixth Day of December: AD: 1777:

The petition of the Inhabitants of the Town of Billerica Humbly Sheweth: — That your Petitioners are much Dissatasfied with the Tax act made the Last Session of the General Assembley—For the following Reasons —

First That Such an Extencive valuation Should be Called for in so Short Time which was never taken before in this State

Second the uncertainty of Every mans valeing his own Intrest in these fluctuating & Extravagant Times —

Thirdly That the tru value of Grain unthras[d] and flax undrest Cannot be Assertained —

Fourthly that it is Highly unreasonable that wild & uncultivated Lands Should be Taxt according to its present value Equal to Trading Stock which we Apprehend will produce more in one year of Real profit to the owners than the Land will in Ten — your Petitioners are also Surprised at the Act made the Same Session for putting Large Sums of the bills of Credit Emmitted by this State on Intrest thereby giving an Advantage to those that have made great Gains by oppression by putting their money on Intrest and thereby Increasing our Public Debt —

That the Said Act appears to us a violation of Public faith Plainly Ledgable on the face of the Bills thereby Depriving the Subject in Some measure of the Free use of their property by obliging them to take notes in Stead of bills of Cred[t] whether able or not to Lend their money and for all Sums under Ten pounds (Excepting Change less than a Dollar) no Provition is made in the said act: neither is the Subject allowed to pay the Large Tax above Recited or any part thereof in the said Bills: for these & many other Reasons which might be given —

Your petitioners most Humbly pray your Honours would so far superseed said act: as that we may Assess what is set upon us in said Tax by the Last valuation and that we may be Excused forom Taking such a valuation as in the said act is Required, and that the Act for putting Large Sums of money on Intrest may be Repealed or otherwise Releave your petitioners as to your wisom may seem best: & as your petitioners in Duty bound Shall Ever pray By order of s[d] Town

The following petition from Royalsborough (now Durham, Maine) was read in the House, Feb. 2, 1778, and committed to Messrs. Little, Noyes and Woodbury: —

"State Massachusetts Bay — To the honorable the Council and honl house of Representatives in General Court assembled

The petition of the Inhabitants of a new plantation or settlement called Royalsbourg in the County of Cumberland humbly sheweth.—

That the inhabitants of Brunswick did in the year 1776 assess the polls of the inhabitants of said Royalsbourg towards the public tax laid on said Brunswick that year, and have required the inhabitants of said Royalsbourg to give in a list of their polls & estates in ord r to assess them again towards said Brunswicks part of the public tax for the year 1777. which the said Inhabitants of Brunswick suppose they have a right to do, by virtue of the tax acts for those years respectively.

Your Petitioners beg leave to represent to your honors that by far the greater part of of the families in said Royalsbourg (not being now more than 49 in all) have been settled there no more than four or five years, that they enterd on wild uncultivated lands, had a wilderness to subdue, and buildings to erect for shelter with great difficulty labour & expense, & are yet strugling for life — That an early frost the last year 1777 in a great measure cut off their indian Corn Crops so that not half enough was raised there for the necessary use & support of the Inhabitants that they have nothing else to dispose of nor any business or trade by which to procure a supply of so necessary and at present dear as well as scarce an article, much less to obtain money to pay in taxes — that they have but 46 men on the training band list, of whom seventeen are inlisted for three years in the continental army—many of whom have left families whom they must supply agreeable to a late Resolve of the general Court, which is, in the present scarcity & dearness of provisions, a heavy burthen upon them, notwithstanding the provision made in said resolve for their reimbursement of that expense —

That their being taxed in Brunswick towards their proportion of the public tax (& which is no more than their proportion if Royalsbourg was not in being) is a benefit & relief to Brunswick only, and is not of the least advantage to the state, and there appears to your petitioners no good reason why they should help Brunswick pay its public tax rather than any other town in the state

Wherefore your Petitioners humbly pray your honors to take the premises in to your wise & merciful consideration, and order that the Collector of Brunswick for the year 1776 be directed not to demand of any of any of the Inhabitants of said Royalsbourg the poll tax laid on them by said Brunswick that year but that the same be remitted them — and that said Brunswick should not assess them for the year 1777 or in case they have done it or may do it before your honors pass upon this Petition that such assesment may be vacated & the sums assessed remitted to them — or that your Honors would otherwise releive your Petitioners in such way & manner as to your Honors shall seem meet & your Petitioners as in duty bound shall ever pray &c —

"State of Massachusetts Bay } To the honble Council & honble House of Representative of sd State in general Court assembled

At the second session, the following answer to the foregoing petition was read, and both were referred to a joint committee, consisting of Messrs. Sever, of the Council, and Coffin and Sexton, of the House, to hear the parties, and report. No report of this committee has been discovered: —

"State of Massaths Bay — } To the Honourable the Council & Honourable House of Representatives of said State in general Court Assembled —

We the Subscribers Assessors of the Town of Fryeburg in the County of York, having lately been served with a Copy of a Petition to your Honours of ten of the Inhabitants of Bridgeton, wherein They complain of Their being Assessed by the Town of Fryeburg, and Pray an abatement of the Same. — Also a Copy of a Resolve of the general Court thereon, whereby we have liberty to Shew Cause (if any we have) why the Prayer of their Petition should not be granted &c. We the said Assessors, beg leave to recite the Several Paragraphs of said Petition, in order to make Such Replies thereto, as we think ought to be done, and which we apprehend will Shew Cause why the Prayer thereof should not be granted. —

In the first place (after their Address to your Honours) They Say; 'That your Petitioners have lately been Assessed by the Town of Fryeburg, without any previous Notice, at random, without any valuation or destinction between Rich & Poor, which your Petitioners look upon as a grievance.' —

This Paragraph Forces us to Reply; That we are Sorry they have said they had no previous Notice, as thereby, They have obliged us to charge Them with a Falsehood. For before we laid any Tax upon them viz on the 26th Day of January 1778. we went to Bridgeton to inform them of our design to do it, when we carried with us, the Tax-Act & Treasurer's Warrant, and Shewed the same to as many of them as we could See (some of those we have Taxed being gon out of their Plantation, we could not shew those Papers to them) in order to convince them of our Right to Tax them with the Inhabitants of Fryeburg, and tarried with them to the 28th of said month, making the Strictest Inquirey with respect to Their Estates and circumstances in life that was in our power, both with regard to those we found at home, & those that were absent; And when we had got the best information from the mouths of those we could see, both with respect to their own & absent Neighbour's Estates and circumstances that we could; and having observed, that in the Tax-Act, sundry orders of men were excused from all Taxation, and after they were particularly pointed out, the Tax-Act Says, 'And other Persons, if such there be, who, through Age, infirmity, or extreme povery in the Judgement of the Assessors, are not able to pay towards the Publick Charges, They may exempt their Polls or Estates, or abate part of what they are set at, as they on their oath shall think Just and Equitable.'

We then took the whole matter under Consideration, and as there were fifteen Families in that part of Bridgeton whichis undoubtedly in the County of York; we duly considered their respective Interests & circumstances in life, according to the account we had obtain'd as aforesaid; and finding thereby, ten of them whose Interest & circumstances were near equal, we Taxed them eighteen Shillings and six Pence half penny each. — Two others of them whose Interests &c were not equal to any two of the ten above mentioned, (but not in extreme poverty) we Taxed them six Shillings each. — And the remaining three of said fifteen Families, being Poor, we laid no Tax at all upon them. In doing of all which, we exercised that lenity to every one of those we Taxed, which, from the above recited passage in the Tax-Act, we could think upon our oath, was Just and Equitable. — As we proceeded in the affair in the manner abovementioned, laying no Tax at all upon their Estates, and Taxed not one of their Polls so high as a Poll is set at in the Tax-Act, we cannot think we deserve the reflection the Petitioners have cast upon us by saying, we Assessed them at random, without any valuation or destinction between Rich & Poor. —

* Chapter XXXVII. of the printed resolves, May session.

The Petitioners nextly, go on in their Petition to Assign (what we Suppose they call) three Reasons why their being Taxed as aforesd is a grievance — And firstly they Say, 'Because this Assessment is only to ease Them (meaning Fryeburg) 'of part of the burthen justly laid upon them, without any advantage to the State.' —

To this permit us to Reply; That as it's well known in Court, that Fryeburg is in it's Infancy as well as Bridgeton, and being as far advanced in the wilderness, is under like disadvantages Bridgeton is; Therefore we could not think the meaning of the Tax-Act was or is, that Fryeburg should pay the whole Sum set against the Name of the Town alone. No, the Contrary appears by the Treasurer's Warrant, founded upon the Tax-Act, whereby we were directed to lay 'one hundred and two Pounds upon this Town, or other Places next adjoining.' From whence we trust we may be allow'd to Say, we no more deserve this Ill-natured Reflection than that before mentioned.

Their Second Reason is Because (Say they) 'They have Taxed your Petitioners, while others more able to pay, are neglected.' —

To this we Reply That those neglected ones the Petitioners must mean, undoubtly live in the County of Cumberland: And as the Tax-Act Assigns each County it's quota of the Sum laid upon the State, we Judged we could not with Propriety, extend our Tax out of the County of York —

Their third Reason is, Because (Say they) 'It will distress this Infant Settlement, who are few in Number, but Seventeen Families and a few Single men, Some of us have Suffered much in our Property thro' fear of the Indians, and not more than six able to raise their Bread.' —

To this we Reply, That as the Tax laid upon the whole of them is but nine Pounds Seventeen Shillings & five Pence, it cannot distress their Infant Settlement so much, as the greater part of the Tax the Inhabitants of this Infant Town must pay will distress it, It being newly Incorporated, and having a Minister Settled therein upon a Salary of Seventy Pounds a year, a meeting House now to build, a School Master to pay, and besides has a great expence arising upon it to open, Bridge and Causeway Roads within the Same; while They of Bridgeton have no Such expences laying upon them; Except they see cause to be at some for Roads among them, in doing of which, They undoubtedly will have the Assistance of the non-resident Proprietors, many of whom are wealthy men, and have large Interest in their Plantation. — As to their Suffering in their Property thro' fear of the Indians, It's to be hoped their Polls remain good. If not; as we laid no Tax upon their Property, and have abated such a part of their Poll-Tax as we trust will Ballance that misfortune, we cannot see what room they have to complain — with regard to there being no more than Six able (as they Say) to raise their Bread; — we presume the three we laid no Tax at all upon, are part of those they Say are unable — and as to the rest of them; according to the account we had of their Estates and Circumstances as already mentioned, there can be no doubt, but they are able to pay the Small Tax we laid upon them — If their bare word should be thought Sufficient to excuse them from Taxes on that account, more than twenty Families in this Town will & can with much truth, plead the Same. —

Having Shewn the true State of the Case between Bridgeton & Fryeburg with regard to the Tax in Question, we cannot but encourage our Selves it Sufficiently shews the unreasonableness of their Petition —

Wherefore, we the said Assessors Pray your Honours, That Their Petition may be dismissed, and that the Collector of Taxes in Fryeburg may be allow'd to collect the Small Tax laid upon the Petitioners, their Reflecting Complaint Notwithstanding —

Fryeburg Augt. 27th 1778 — ISAAC ABBOT, NATHL MERRILL, SIMON FRYE } Assessors of Fryeburg." — Ibid., p. 133.

On the 19th of February, 1778, the committee, consisting of Messrs. Hutchinson, Gray and Batcheldor, appointed the day before to inquire into the state of the treasury, made a verbal report, whereupon Messrs. Gray, Pickering and Sewall were appointed "a committee to prepare and report a letter to be sent to the several towns, urging that the taxes laid on them be sent into the treasury without delay."

The committee, accordingly, reported the draught of a letter, forthwith, which was read, and accepted. It was ordered to be "signed by the speaker" and Capt. Dix was directed to "cause it to be printed, in handbills, and sent to the selectmen of the several towns in this state."

On the 20th, the House appointed Messrs. Moore, Eels, Thatcher, Weilds, Clap, Noyes and King to distribute this letter, of which the following is a copy, "to the selec men of the several counties to which the said gentlemen belong": —

"GENTLEMEN,

THE Exertions lately made by this Court, to put the Currency of the United States on such a Footing as to answer the great Purpose for which it was emitted (the Salvation of our Country) by calling in the Money of this State and determining to emit no more, must, we trust, finally answer the important End for which they were designed. — Taxes must be the principal Resource for Money — A speedy Payment of the Tax emitted for the Year 1777 into the Treasury is the only Means to prevent the Resolutions not to emit more Money being receeded from. Those Resolutions were founded on the soundest Policy; and a Departure from them would most certainly be attended with dangerous Consequences. — You are therefore most earnestly called upon to use your best Endeavours to prevent it, by exciting the Constables or Collectors within your Town to collect and pay into the public Treasury immediately all the Money they are appointed and directed to collect as Part of any State Tax.— If you think the Business will be more expedited by laying this Letter before the Inhabitants of your Town, you will do it without Delay.

To the Selectmen of ."— House Journal, p. 189.

Chap. 14. "Brigadier Lovell, Brigadier Frost and Mr. Hobbs" were ordered, December 12th, "to bring in a bill for lengthening out the time fixed for drawing into the treasury the bills of credit emitted by this state." On the next day, the bill of this chapter was read three times, in the House, passed to be engrossed, sent up for concurrence, returned with a vote of concurrence by the Council, and passed to be enacted.

The foregoing petition was referred, June 21st, to a committee, consisting of Messrs. Spaulding, Hosmer and Hunter. On the 25th, a joint resolve was passed, directing the petitioner to serve each of the parishes of Dunstable with a copy of the petition, and of the order of the Court thereon, for a hearing upon the petition, on the third Tuesday of the next sitting of the General Court. No further proceeding upon this petition has been found, in the record, until December 3d, when it was read, and the petitioner "had leave to bring in a bill for the purpose mentioned in his petition." This bill was read twice, on the 10th, and a third time, and passed to be engrossed, on the 11th, and, on the 15th, it was passed to be enacted.

Chap. 16. The preamble of this chapter sets forth the reasons for its enactment. The objections of the towns, referred to, are shown in the note to chapter 7, ante. For some account of the origin of the measures for sinking and redeeming the currency, see the note to 1778–79, chapter 39, post.
On the 13th of December, Messrs. Ely, Goodman and Whitney were appointed, by the House, a committee "to bring in a bill impowering the several towns in this state to levy a tax upon their inhabitants, for such sums as they shall think proper, and to put the same into the treasury, and receive treasurer's notes on interest therefor." On the 15th, a bill with the title of this chapter passed through the several stages to be enacted, and was signed by ten of the Council.
The following petition was referred to Messrs. Rawson, Freeman of Eastham, and Page, of the House, Oct. 3, 1778, "to consider the matter at large." From an endorsement on the original petition, it appears that this committee reported that it "lie on the table to the next session"; but no action thereon, by the House, has been discovered: —

Chap. 17. The first draught of the bill of this chapter, was read a first time, October 10th, 1777, and bore the following title: —

"A Bill intituled 'An Act for repealing one Law of this State, intituled an Act for the repealing one Law of this Colony made and passed in the fourth Year of the Reign of William and Mary, King and Queen, intituled 'An Act for regulating Fees, and for regulating Fees and Allowances of the several Officers and Persons within this State, mentioned in said Act,' and for reviving an Act made and passed in the Year of our LORD one Thousand seven Hundred and Seventy three, intituled An Act for establishing and regulating the Fees of the several Officers within this Province.'" — House Journal, p. 104.

This bill seems, to have been dropped here; and a new one was substituted therefor, December 6th, which was debated on the 9th, and recommitted on the 10th. On the 8th of January, the bill was assigned for consideration on the 10th, and then passed to be engrossed, and was sent up to the Council, for concurrence. In the Council, it was read a first time, on the 12th, and passed to be engrossed, on the 13th, but was not finally passed to be enacted until January 21st, by the House, and January 24th, by the Council.

Chap. 18. Owing to the inaccessibility of the House Journals for the latter part of the political year 1776-77, the present chapter has not been traced through all its earlier stages, but it appears, by the files in the secretary's office, that a draught of a bill (which is believed to have been the first) prescribing an oath of allegiance, was assigned for consideration as early as March 31, 1777; that it was referred, by the Council, to Thomas Cushing and Francis Dana, and, again, to Artemas Ward, John Winthrop and Thomas Cushing; that, in the House, it passed to be engrossed, April 1st; and, in the Council, April 14th, "as taken into a new draught;" that the House, on the 22d, refused to concur in this vote of the Council, and voted to "adhere to their own vote," with three amendments; that the Council again concurred with the House, on the bill "as taken into a new draught." Until the 9th of May, when the last entry relating to it occurs, this bill seems to have been the subject of frequent debates and messages between the two branches; but it failed to pass.

The title of the bill in the first two draughts is "An Act for prescribing and establishing an oath of abjuration and allegiance." In the next draught, the word "abjuration" was cancelled, and the word "fidelity" interlined; and the subsequent bills bore the amended title.

In the second session of the next assembly, a new bill was brought in to the House by a committee, appointed June 9th, consisting of Messrs. Sumner, Gray and Goodman. This was read a first time, August 13th, and a second time, August 14th, and then "assigned to the first Tuesday of the next session of the General Court, to consider the same by paragraphs." On the 4th of October, the consideration of the bill was again assigned to the 8th, when it "was considered, throughout, on a second reading." On the 10th, it was read a third time, and passed to be engrossed. On the 24th, the Council concurred in the bill, with nine amendments; whereupon the House concurred in all but one of them, and proposed one additional amendment, and returned it to the Council for concurrence. On the 22d, the Council nonconcurred, and adhered to their own vote, and, on the 23d, the bill was sent for by message from the House, to which the Council replied, by message, that "it was not before the Board;" and on the 25th, the Assembly adjourned.

In the fourth session, the matter was started again, in an order of the House, passed December 4th, appointing General Hancock, Col. Porter and Mr. Gray, members of a joint committee "to report the form of an oath of fidelity to this state, and renunciation of allegiance to the King of Great Britain, to be taken by the inhabitants of this state."

The following proceedings thereupon ensued: —

"Dec. 8, 1777. Honble John Hancock Esqr came up with a Message from the Honble House to enquire of the Board, whether they had passed upon an Order of the House appointing a Committee to report the Form of an Oath of Fidelity to this State and renunciation of Allegiance to the King of Great Britain.

Walter Spooner Esqr went down with a Message to the Honble House to inform them, that the Board had Nonconcurred the Order of the House referred to in the foregoing Message.

Mr Pickering came up with a Message from the Honble House to inform the Board, that they proposed a Conference next Wednesday beforenoon, upon the Subject matter of the form of an Oath of Fidelity to this State and renunciation of Allegiance to the King of Great Britain, if agreeable to the Honble Board.

Thomas Cushing Esqr went down with a Message to the Honble House to inform them, that the Board agreed to the foregoing Message; but would propose, if agreeable to the Honble House, in order that the Business of Both Houses may be expedited, that the Conference proposed may be by a Committee of both Houses.

Colonel Porter Came up with a Message from the Honble House to inform the Board, that they agreed to the foregoing Proposal of appointing a Committee of both Houses upon the Subject matter of an Oath of Fidelity to this State and renunciation of Allegiance to the King of Great Britain. * * * * * * * * * * *

Order of the House — That Mr Paine, Mr Ward,* Mr Nichols, Mr Dawes† and Mr Greenleaf be a Committee to Confer with a Committee that may be appointed by the Honble Board on the Subject of Establishing an Oath of Allegiance and Fidelity to be taken by the Inhabitants of this State. Read and Concurred, and Jeremiah Powell, William Seaver, Artemas Ward, Jedediah Prebble and Thomas Cushing Esqrs are Joined." — Council Records, vol. XXXVIII., pp. 189 and 190.

The fourth session closed, December 15th, without further action upon the subject of this chapter; but, on the 13th of January, the House appointed a committee, consisting of the Speaker, and Messrs. Hancock, Washburn, Wood and Pitts, "to bring in a bill for establishing an oath of allegiance." A bill bearing the title of this act, but which has not been found in the archives, was, accordingly, read a first time, on the 20th, and a second time, on the 21st; and, on the 22d, it was passed to be engrossed, and sent up for concurrence. On the 30th, it came down from the Council, with a memorandum thereon that it was read in Council, a first time, January 24th, and passed, in concurrence, to be engrossed, on the 30th, as taken into a new draught. On the 3d of February, it was passed to be enacted.

The first draught above referred to, began with the same preamble as in the act, and provided for a declaration of abjuration of the authority of the king of England, a declaration of the independence of the state, and an oath of adherence and allegiance thereto, as against George III., "and his heirs and successers and his or their abettors, assistants and adherents." This was amended to the form of oath retained in this chapter, and was required to be taken by "all the members of the General Assembly, all officers, civil and military, the president, professors, tutors and other officers of Harvard College, masters of grammar, reading, and writing, schools, innholders, and retailers of spirituous liquors," and by persons then in office, as well as by those who should thereafter be chosen to office; and no persons were to have authority to execute any of the offices or trusts aforesaid, or any town office, or to be admitted to appear and act as counsel or attorney in any court of justice in this state, after May 1st, 1777, unless they should have taken said oath. It also provided that no person should be allowed to vote in the election of any of the above officers, or in anything relative to the constituting a new form of government, although otherwise legally qualified, unless he had taken the aforesaid oath, before a justice of the peace, or town clerk; and the names of the persons sworn, were required to be enrolled by the town clerk; but this last clause was stricken out, by amendment, before it was sent up to the Council, for concurrence. The president of the Council, with the advice and consent of the Board, was authorized to appoint persons to tender the oath to all the late officers of the king of Great Britain now in this state, together with such persons as have been judged inimical to the United States, by the General Court, or any committee of correspondence, or other persons in authority (provided such persons should not, voluntarily, have taken the oath before a justice of the peace, or town clerk); and all such other persons, that are or hereafter may come into this state, as the President and Council or the major part of the selectmen and committees of correspondence of any town, "shall suspect of holding principles injurious to the rights of this state."

The persons excepted from the privilege of this oath were such of the mandamus councillors as accepted the appointment, and those persons who left with the troops at the evacuation of Boston, and "have since joined the enemy"; such as stood charged with taking up arms against the United States; such as "have enlisted men for the enemy, or accepted a warrant or commission for that purpose"; and such as had supplied the enemy with provisions, or conveyed intelligence to them since the Declaration of Independence by this state.

The provision of the act (section 2) for committing persons refusing to take the oath, was omitted, and instead thereof such persons were to be sent off from this state by order of the Council (being permitted to take their families with them), to Europe or the West Indies. The provisions as to the expense of the transportation of such persons, and the disposal of their personal estates, were substantially the same in this draught as in the act. The provisions of the third section of the act are found in the draught, also, except the clause taking away the benefit of clergy.

In the second draught, the persons to whom the oath was to be tendered were declared to be "all who held commissions, civil or military, within this state, under the administration of Governors Bernard, Hutchinson or Gage, together with such persons who belonged to, and now are, within, or hereafter may come into, this state, as have or shall be suspected of holding principles injurious to the rights of this state, by this court, or any committee of correspondence, or other persons in authority," unless such persons should have voluntarily taken the oath, before a justice of the peace, or town clerk.

* Sic: Wood. † Sic: Davis.

The persons excepted from the privilege of this oath were, substantially, the same as those enumerated in section one of the act, — the difference being that the persons who left the state since Apr. 19, 1776, were excepted instead of those who left the state since Apr. 19, 1775; and those who stood "charged" with taking up arms, instead of those who had actually taken up arms, against the United States; and such as had supplied the enemy with provisions. No distinction was made in favor of such as were compelled by the enemy to take up arms; and the Declaration of Independence, "by this state," is referred to, instead of "the Declaration of Independency" as in the act.

The oath, in this draught, differed from the oath in the act, chiefly in the words, "so long as I shall receive protection therefrom," inserted, by amendment, after "Bay," and the words "as a free and independent state," inserted between the words "same," and "against," in the third line. The provisions, in this draught, respecting the transportation, and the disposal of the personal estate, of persons refusing to take the oath, were the same as in the former draught. The provisions of the third section of the act are expressed in this as in the former draught.

The same provision was made in this draught for sending off such persons as were excepted from the privilege of taking the oath, as was made for sending off persons refusing to take the oath, and with the like penalty for returning without leave. Section 5 of the act, was, substantially, incorporated in this draught, with the addition, by an amendment, of the following persons, after "attorneys-at-law," and before "shall": "the president, professors, tutors and other officers of Harvard College, masters of grammar, reading, and writing, schools, innholders, and retailers of spirituous liquors."

In the third draught, the declaration in the preamble concerning the king's abdication of his government of the United States, &c., was omitted. The oath prescribed was, substantially, identical with the oath required by the act, and was to be taken by "all the members of the General Assembly, and all and every commissioned officer or officers, civil and military, who are now in commission, or may hereafter be commissionated, by the Council of the state," or deriving any authority from such commission; also all town officers chosen or appointed after January, 1778.

The provisions of section 5 were, also, in the bill; but were confined, in their application, to the persons, above enumerated, who should be in office on or after Jan. 1, 1778. The oath to town officers was to be administered by a justice of the peace, or a town clerk.

The fourth draught authorized the justices of the Superior Court, and justices of the peace, to administer the oath, which was, precisely as in the act, to "all persons who belong to, and now are within, or hereafter may come into, this state, as have or shall be judged" (changed, by amendment, to "suspected of being") "inimical to the United States, or, as they shall suspect of holding principles injurious to the rights of this state." The excepted persons were the same as in the act; the clause in parentheses being inserted as an amendment. The provisions of the act (section two), for committing persons refusing to take the oath, were omitted, and the persons so refusing were, within forty days after refusal, to be sent, by order of the Council, to Europe, or the West Indies. The remaining provisions of section two were incorporated in the bill. The provisions of section three were also incorporated — save that the prohibition therein, operated only during the continuance of the war. The provisions of section four were also incorporated in the bill, with the omission of the clause against those who have supplied the enemy with provisions, and the clause excluding the offenders under this section from the enjoyment of the proceeds of their personal estates, and from the benefit of clergy. Section five was incorporated with very slight changes. In this draught, also, for the first time, the provisions of the sixth section of the act are inserted. Another section was added, to repeal chapter 48, of the acts of 1776-77.

It will thus be seen that the purpose, at first entertained, of disfranchising all voters who should refuse to take the oath, was abandoned; and from the list of persons required to take the oath, as at first proposed, were finally excluded the officers of Harvard College, schoolmasters, innholders and retailers; while attorneys-at-law were added to the list. The selection of persons to whom the test oath was to be tendered, instead of being left to the discretion of a public officer, as at first designed, was, by the bill finally enacted, to be based, in every instance, upon the written representation of responsible parties. The act was also more lenient, than the rejected bills, to those who might have been involuntarily drawn, or forced, into the service of the enemy, and it gave some hope for such of the mandamus councillors, and refugees, as had taken no active part against the revolutionary governments, and even to those who had furnished the enemy with provisions, and to such as were actually accused, though not convicted, of taking up arms against the United States.

Chap. 20. This chapter originated in the Council, Jan. 15, 1778, by the passage of the following order: —

"On Motion Ordered That W^m Sever and Sam^l Holten Esq^rs be a Committee to consider that Part of an Act for enabling Towns to raise Money for carrying on the present War requiring the Collectors of the several Towns, Plantations &c to execute all such Warrants in the same Manner they are by Law obliged to execute Warrants for collecting other Town Rates & report what is best to be done thereon."— General Court minute book.

On the 27th, Benjamin Austin brought down to the House a bill, with an endorsement thereon, of the same date, that it had been passed to be engrossed, in the Council, and was sent down for concurrence.

The bill was immediately read in the House, and ordered to be read again on the 29th; but was not reached until the 30th, when the second reading was put off to February 2d, and then, after a reading, it was committed to Messrs. Frazier, Cross and Singletary. This committee reported on the 5th, and the bill was thereupon assigned to the 6th, for a third reading. On the 6th, it was read, accordingly, and, on the 7th, was passed to be enacted, by the House, and, on the 8th, by the Council.

Chap. 24. "We would recommend a revision of the Militia Act as upon Examination it will be found there are divers defects in said Act that require an immediate remedy." — Extract from the Council's message to the House, Nov. 26, 1777: Mass. Archives, vol. 158, p. 99.

"Dec. 9, 1777. Order of the House, that Colonel Sartell and Colonel Little with such as the Honb[le] Board shall join, be a Committee to revise the Militia Act and report what Additions or Amendments are proper to be made. Read and Concurred and Timothy Danielson Esq[r] is joined." — Council Records, vol. XXXVIII., p. 192.

On the 26th of January, 1778, Timothy Danielson, in behalf of the committee above named, reported to the Council a bill with the title and preamble of this chapter, substantially. It contained the first three sections of the act, with another section, between the second and third, providing that each brigadier-general whose brigade consists of six regiments, should provide one field-piece and the necessary accoutrements, according to section 25 of the former militia act (1775-76, chap. 10, § 25), in addition to the two pieces already required by that act. And, to work this field-piece, the brigadier-general was also required to cause an additional company of matrosses, organized, officered and regulated in the same manner as those provided for by the former act, to be enlisted "from such town or towns as he may judge most conducive to the public good."

This bill was read, in Council, January 31st, and sent down to the House, where, on the same day, it was read a first time, and ordered to be read again on the 3d of February. After the second reading, according to appointment, the bill was committed to "Mr. Sumner, Gen. Hancock, Mr. Crane, Brigadier Warner and Captain King," "to revise the act to which this is in addition, and report a new draught of both, in one."

While the bill was pending, the following petition, which had been committed to Brigadier Frost, Major Hyde and Mr. Sexton on the 2d of February, and reported upon, was referred to the committee on the militia bill, who were "directed to insert a clause making provision that all upon the alarm list may form themselves into independent companies:" —

Archives, vol. 183, p. 230.

On the 9th of March, the House reconsidered their vote directing the committee to incorporate this bill and the former act, in one bill. The committee thereupon reported a bill containing all the sections of the present chapter, except the last, and the final clause of section 4, — which were added by amendment. The fourth section was also further amended by changing the requirement of quarterly returns by, and quarterly payments to, the adjutant-general, to the form in which that section stands in the act. A final section, providing that no choice of any captain or subaltern officer should be valid, nor any commission issue to him upon his election, unless he should be approved and recommended to the Council by two of the field officers of his regiment, was stricken out.

The bill, which had been read a second time, on the 10th, and again committed, was read a third time, and passed to be engrossed, as amended, in the House, on the 11th; and, on the same day, it was read a first time in the Council, and on the next day was there passed, in concurrence, to be engrossed, and, on the 13th, was passed to be enacted.

The following orders were passed for the distribution of the printed copies of this act: —

"Apr. 17, 1778. Ordered, That Col. Mitchell, Col. Brooks and Mr. Hastings be a Committee to consider how many of the additional Militia Acts are necessary to be printed, and how they shall be distributed, and to whom." — House Journal, p. 230.

Chap. 25. The bill of an act with the title of this chapter, omitting only the words "and explanation of," was passed, in the Council, to be engrossed, February 10, 1778, and was read a first time, in the House, and committed to Messrs. Porter, Clap and Dix, on the same day. No further traces of this bill have been discovered, except that, on the 11th, it was referred to a joint committee, consisting of Col. Porter and Capt. Stone, of the House, and Caleb Cushing, of the Council, appointed to consider the following memorial, which was presented to the House on the same day: —

"State of Massachusetts Bay — } To the Honble Council & the Honble House of Representatives, in General Court assembled at Boston, February 1778

The Committee of Correspondence Inspection & Safety for the Town of Boston, beg leave to represent —

That immediately on the promulgation of the late Law, prescribing the form of an Oath or Affirmation of Allegiance to this State, this Committee proceeded to make representation to a Magistrate of such Persons, as have for a long time been suspected by their fellow Citizens, of being inimical to the United States, in order that their sentiments and dispositions might be put to the test, and the public Safety secured; purposes which in the Opinion of this Committee that Law was most happily calculated to effect. Several Persons, to whom the Oath was tendered by Joseph Greenleaf Esq. one of the Justices of the Peace for the County of Suffolk, deliberately refused to take it, and were by mittimus from said Justice committed to the common Goal of the County, in consequence of such refusal: After remaining in confinement a few Hours, part of them viz. Samuel Danforth, James Lloyd, Isaac Rand & George Lush, made application, either by themselves or their Friends, to the said Justice for liberty to take the Oath, and be enlarged; The said Justice accordingly released them from confinement and afterward, administred to them the Oath: —Since their enlargement, one or more of them have declared that they will never take up Arms —

On the foregoing Facts this Committee beg leave to observe to your Honors; that they humbly apprehend the administring the Oath and liberating the foregoing Persons after their Commitment was an extrajudicial Act of the Magistrate, and altogether unwarranted by the Statute aforesaid; Because they know of no Sentence in the whole Statute that literally gives the Magistrate such a power, or by any equitable construction of which, he may be warranted to exercise it

For if the Law was made for the furtherance of the public Good, it ought by a known maxim of the Law 'to be construed in such a manner, that it may as far as possible attain the end proposed'— But in this construction of it, what purposes are answered?—the Person to whom the Oath is tendered has only to suffer himself to be committed to Prison, after which he can safely take the Oath, be his Disposition ever so inimical, because on the Principle of Duress he can absolve himself in Law & Conscience from every obligation it imposes—

And this they are perswaded will be the case with many of the Persons to whom the Oath shall be hereafter tendered—and thus instead of being the Instrument of ridding us of our internal and worst of Enemies, it will rather be the means of securing them as such among us; and this best of Laws instead of being a Barrier to the public Safety, will be perverted into a trick upon the Community, and terminate in the same farcical Issue with the late Tory Law,—

Besides if the power given the Justice in this case is altogether Judicial, they apprehend that immediately upon the Commitment of the Person refusing the Oath, the Judgement of the Justice is complete, and the Party remediless by him; because no Judicial Authority whatever has a right to reverse its own Judgement.

If his power is merely that of Enquiry, and the Commitment of the Offender, only meant to secure his Person, till a higher Authority should determine upon his Offence, in what instance was it ever known that a Magistrate who had committed any Person on suspicion of a Crime, which he was not competent to determine, undertook to set the Offender at unconditional liberty; and to acquit him from the Charge—

For these Reasons this Committee supposed that no Remedy was left to the Persons committed for refusing the Oath, but by application to your Honors, who are the Supreme Power of the State, and who alone have a right to reinstate those in the Privileges of Citizens, who have by their solemn Act withdrawn themselves from the protection of the State, and implicitly made themselves its public Enemies—

The Committee have accordingly suspended any further proceedings upon the Law, till they can be informed by your Honors of the true intent & meaning of the Statute—they therefore request the Honourable Court to take the matter under consideration, and explain the Law touching the matter contained in the foregoing Representation; and if your Honers are of Opinion, that the Act of the Justice in liberating the said Lloyd Danforth, Rand & Lush after their Commitment, was a matter to which his Jurisdiction did not extend, that you will take such Orders for carrying the Law into execution against them, as to your Wisdom shall seem best— By Order of the Committee

A counter memorial, presented to the House on the 11th, and referred to the same committee (the Council concurring on the 12th), is as follows: —

"State of Massachusetts-Bay } To the Hon^ble the Council & the Hon^ble the House of Representatives for said State in General Court assembled;—The Memorial of James Lloyed and Samuel Danforth humbly shew—that your Memorialists, being called upon by a Warrant, issued by the Worshipful Josep Greenleaf Esq^r., upon the Complaint of the Committee of Correspondence &c &c &c for the Town of Boston, to take the Oath of Allegiance and fidelity, to this State; they did, after a few hours deliberation, comply with the same.

And Whereas said Committee have preferred a Petition to your Honors, setting forth their sense of the Act, containg the form prescribed for said Oath, suggesting Male-conduct in the Justice, who administered said oath, and praying, among other things, an Explanation of said Act, which may, in its Consequences, materially affect your Memorialists. they therefore humbly pray your Honors, that the Prayer of Said Committee's Petition, so far as respects them, may not be granted.—

first—Because the facts set forth in said Petition, so far as they are pointed at your Memorialists, are not true.

Secondly Because, the Conduct of said Justice was legal, he having done nothing, but what is incident to every Court of Record, in the most solemn adjudications upon the Law.—

thirdly Because, if the true intent of the Law is not followed, it must be owing to a Deficiency in the Judge, whose part it was to decide upon it. — and your Memorialists cannot now be recommitted to Goal, but upon the Presumption of their refusing to do, what they have already done. — fourthly Because, having complied with the Law, (whether it was effected by legal, or illegal Means.) they are entitled to the reciprocal benefit of Security and Protection, arising from it.—

fifthly Because, the Supreme Legislative Authority must be exerted, in a judicial Capacity, (to give any force to the Construction, as prayed for, against your Memorialists.) which never can take place, without affecting the Dignity of Government, the Sanctity of judicial Decisions, & the Stability of Law — and therefore in giving a new Construction to a Statute, or rendering a doubtfull one, certain, ought always to respect it's future Operations, in Nature of a new Law, & never to carry a retrospective Influence—

SAMUEL DANFORTH." — Ibid., p. 409.

The first draught of the bill of this chapter was assigned to the 18th, for a second reading in the Council, and, on the 19th, was passed to be engrossed, and sent down for concurrence. It contained a clause denying the oath unless by special permission of the Council, to any who should have once refused to take it, and another clause exempting from molestation or imprisonment any person suspected of unfriendliness to this state, or to the United States (who had taken the oath or affirmation of allegiance), unless for some overt act or breach of law; but it did not contain sections two and four, and the preambles thereto.

The bill was read in the House, February 21, and, again, on the 23d, and on the 26th, it was committed to Messrs. Niles, Jeffries and Wood. On the 7th of March, it was read twice in the House, passed, in concurrence, to be engrossed, with amendments inserting the second section and the preamble thereto, with this difference,— that the time for taking the oath was limited to the twentieth of April, instead of the twentieth of June; also striking out the clause for taking the oath by permission of the Council, after a refusal; and making some minor changes in the bill. On the 9th, the Council concurred in the amended bill "as taken into a new draught." This new draught was, substantially, the bill as finally passed, with the omission of section four, and the preamble thereto, which were offered, on the same day, by the House, as an amendment, with the words "except by permission of the General Court first had and obtained," added as a final clause to the section. In this, the Council nonconcurred, and voted to adhere to their own vote; but, on the 11th, the House, after the bill had been referred to a committee of conference, consisting of Messrs. Stone, Davis and Dunsmore, of the House, and Messrs. Palmer, Taylor and Danielson, of the Council — who agreed to an amendment — receded from a part of their proposed amendment, and voted to adhere to their own vote, with an amendment, striking out the final clause aforesaid, agreeably to the report of the committee of conference.

The bill was read and passed to be enacted on the 13th, by both branches.

The following petition was read in the Council, February 16th, and dismissed: —

"Boston 16th Feby 1778

May it please your Honours

And as in duty bound your petitioner shall ever pray

JOHN HODGSON." — Ibid., p. 416.

The date of the following letter seems to be wrong. If it were a year later, as the writer probably intended, it would correspond with the state of affairs therein described, but if written in 1777, it is unintelligible: —

"Handcock June 3 the 1777

Chap. 26. This chapter was enacted in compliance with the following resolve of the Continental Congress: —

"Resolved, That it be most earnestly recommended to the respective states to raise in the course of the year 1778, commencing on the first day of January next, by quarterly payments, the sum of five millions of dollars, by taxes, to be levied on the inhabitants of the respective states in the proportions following, viz.

New-Hampshire, . .	200,000 dollars.	Pennsylvania, . .	620,000
Massachusetts-Bay, .	820,000	Delaware, . . .	60,000
Rhode-Island and Providence plantations,	100,000	Maryland, . . .	520,000
		Virginia, ...	800,000
Connecticut, . . .	600,000	North-Carolina, . .	250,000
New-York, . . .	200,000	South-Carolina, . .	500,000
New-Jersey, . . .	270,000	Georgia, ...	60,000	5,000,000

That the sums to be assessed and to be raised shall not be considered as the proportion of any state, but being paid into the treasury shall be placed to their respective credit, bearing an interest of six per centum per annum from the time of payment, until the quotas shall be finally ascertained and adjusted by the Congress of the United States, agreeably to the confederation hereafter to be adopted and ratified by the several states. And if it shall then appear that any state is assessed more than its just quota of the said tax, it shall continue to receive interest on the surplus, and if less it shall be charged with the interest on the deficiency until by a future tax such surplus or deficiency shall be properly adjusted." — Journals of Congress: Nov. 22, 1777.

* Manuscript mutilated.

On the 16th of January, 1778, the House assigned the next Wednesday, "to take into consideration" the foregoing resolve of Congress. At the time appointed, the subject was postponed to the 23d, and then, again, to the 28th, when it was voted, that the sum of $820,000 "shall be levied on the polls and estates within this state, in such manner as shall be hereafter determined by this court," and, after debate, Messrs. Bacon, Noyes and Clap were appointed a committee, to bring in a bill for raising $410,000 — that sum being one-half of the whole amount required by Congress to be raised this year by the state of Massachusetts. It was also voted, "that a clause be brought in for relieving such towns as shall appear, on a new valuation, to be over-taxed."

On the 19th of February, a bill for apportioning and assessing a tax of £127,359. 8*s.* 7*d.*, was read, a first time, in the House. It was read again, on the 20th, and, on the 21st, it was read a third time, passed to be engrossed, and sent up for concurrence. In the Council, the bill was read and considered on the 23d and 24th, and, on the 25th, it was sent for by the House, and brought down, accordingly, when a motion was carried, "that the sum to be raised thereby be doubled," and the bill was ordered to be "recommitted for that purpose." On the 28th, the amended bill was passed to be engrossed, in the House, and sent up for concurrence, and, on the 2d of March, the Council concurred. On the 9th, the bill was passed to be enacted in both branches.

This tax was so heavy that inequalities of apportionment which would not have been complained of under ordinary circumstances, became of such importance that numerous petitions were sent in to the General Court, for relief. Many of these have disappeared from the files, including the petition of the inhabitants of Leicester, presented Sept. 23, 1778, and committed to Messrs. Rawson, Ammidown and Whitney of Sherborn; the memorial of William Ellery (who had removed from Newport, to Dighton) referred, September 26, to a joint committee, consisting of Henry Gardner, of the Council, and Messrs. Dunsmore and Goodman, of the House; the petition of Jonathan Stafford, of Leverett, which was referred, October 6th, to Messrs. Bacon, Boies and Fessenden; and the petition of the town or district of Southwick, on which leave to withdraw was granted, Feb. 24, 1779. Some light is thrown on the grievance complained of in this last petition, by the following letter, evidently addressed to the speaker of the House: —

"Boston 27 April 1778

Sir the Assessors of the Town of Southwick in the County of Hampshire have in All their late Returns of Assessments Certified that they had levied two thirds of the Sum set on s^d^ Town in the Several Tax Bills only —

Assigning as a Reason therefor that one third Part of the Inhabitants of said Town had revolted to and was received & protected by the State of Connecticutt

I have not thot myself Authorized To send Warrants to the Constables In Virtue of such Returns would Request the Directions of the Hon^bl^ House in the Matter which you will Please to propose to them I am Sir with great Respt Sir yours &^c^

Henry Gardner." —

Mass. Archives, vol. 199, p. 129.

The following petition was read, in the House, June 15, 1778, "and ordered to lie." No further action upon it has been discovered: —

"Lanesborough, Berkshire County. May 18th AD 1778

To the Hon^ll^ the Great & General Court of the State of Massechusetts bay, to be holden at Boston in & for Said State on Wednesday the 27 day of May Instant—

Humbly Shews the Inhabitance of the Town of Lanesborough af^d^ that Whereas Said Town of Lanesborough is Scituate in the remote part of this State and a new Country, and Consequently the Inhabitance poor, And Whereas the General Court of this State Did Some time back order a Tax to be levied on the Inhabitance of this State, of Twenty Shillings upon the pole, Whereby the Inhabitance of Said Lanesborough think themselves agreaved, by reason of there being Such a number of poor persons in said Town, many of whome have to pay for two & three poles, and at the Same time possess but a very Small Estate, which Croudes very hard upon poor people, for the Remeady whereof for the futer—

We Humbly pray that the Hon^ll^ the General Court would for the futer, in Ordering a Tax upon this Town, Omit Saying what the pole Tax Shall be, that we may have the oppertunity of levying the Tax agreable to the Circumstances of the people which Cannot be looked upon as an Infringment upon the Rights and liberties of the people, as the pole Tax Might possably have been, and as in Duty bound will Ever pray

At a Meeting of the Inhabitance of the Town of Lanesborough on the 18 day of May 1778—

It was voted & Resolved that the foregoing Petition be prefared to the General Court of this State, by the Representative of this Town, at their next Sessions—

Witness — James Harris Town Clerk." — Ibid, vol. 184, p. 129.

The petition referred to in the following resolve (chapter LXXXIV. of the May session), together with long lists of removals from the town, and captures of persons and vessels of Wellfleet, is preserved in Mass. Archives, vol. 184, p. 125.

"June 18, 1778. In the House of Representatives. On the Petition of the Freeholders and other Inhabitants of Welfleet in the County of Barnstable, Setting forth that great numbers of said Inhabitants have removed out of said Town — and the distressed Circumstances of such as remain.

Resolved, that one half of the State-Tax laid on the Town of Wellfleet for the years Seventeen hundred and Seventy Seven & Seventeen hundred Seventy Eight, be, and hereby is remitted, on account of its present distressed Circumstances; and the Inhabitants of said Town are excused from paying the said one half part of their Taxes accordingly. And the Treasurer of this State is hereby directed to release and discharge the Collectors or Constables of said Town of Wellfleet upon their paying into the Treasury the one half part of the Sum levied on said Town for the years aforesaid, any Law, Usage or Custom to the contrary notwithstanding. In Council Read and Concurred. Consented to by Fifteen of the Council." — Council Records, vol. XXXVIII., p. 591.

The resolve which was passed on the following petition of the inhabitants of the town of Salem, and which is given from the original, in the state archives, constitutes chapter CXI. of the printed resolves of the same session: —

"To the honble the Council & the honble the house of Repr^{s}, in Great & General Court Assembled at Boston the 27th day of May, 1778 —

We the inhabitants of the town of Salem, in town meeting assembled, beg leave to lay before your honours, the Guardians of our civil Rights, the great Grievances under w^{ch} we labour by means of the present unequal proportion of the public tax laid on this town, and to petition for such redress, As shall be founded in the nature of a free Government, and the principles of Reason and Justice.

We trust it is not necessary for us to inform your honours, that ever since the exertion of those unconstitutional & arbitrary powers claimed by the King & parliament of G. Britain to subjugate the free people of America, we have uniformly Manifested the strongest Attachment to y^{e} common liberties of our Country, and signalised ourselves, by an early opposition to all arbitrary invasions of our Rights, as Americans; We hold our liberties so dear that neither the Armies of Great Britain, nor any body of men whatever shall deprive us of them, while we have Arms in our hands, & Heaven shall give us strength to use them; with these sentiments, nothing could have induced us to complain to your honours, but a strong sense of our unequal sufferings.

We beg leave to say that we have ever understood it to be essential to a free Government & to ours in particular, that all taxes and Assessments, for the Support & honour of the state ought to be borne equally, by all its Citizens; and that a part of y^{e} duty of the supreme legislative power is to correct the unequal pressure of the public burdens which arises from time to time in different places and to remove all Notorious Grievances, this being the case we assure ourselves that your honrs will pay a just Regard to all well grounded complaints on this head, & afford some Adequate Relief.

When y^{e} last Valuation of Estates &c was taken, & a list was given in by the Assessors of this town, according to the direction of the Act for inquiry into this subject, all judicious & sensible men were of opinion, that it contained a more exact and faithful Account of the polls and value of all Rateable estates than is usual in these Cases in any part of the State, & that it truly represented y^{e} polls & rateable property of the town, whether this was the case with the other towns is not with us to determine but from some we suppose undesigned but gross mistakes, or miscalculations Apparent in many lists We apprehend it was Not, many instances might be collected, to put this point beyond the possibility of a doubt, Tho' simply considered, We could not be taxed upon the list thus given in at that time for more than we were Actually worth; yet compar'd with other towns we might be & Actually have been invariably Assessed for very considerably more than a just proportion of the public tax; w^{ch} in this point of view, deserves serious consideration & is a great Grievance. —

But this is not all, we were then in a flourishing condition our trade was free & considerably extensive: by industry & toil the Ocean yielded us a staple to export, our Vessels were Numerous, & there was some colour for a heavy tax on our hard earnings, but it will be easy to demonstrate that our proportion of the public taxes calculated upon a list thus taken, is, at this day surprizingly unequal, and an unparalled Grievance. —

When we see the produce of land increased not less than sixfold by means of the war, and the land itself more than doubled in value, while the proprietors suffer no losses, and daily exhaust our interest, for the Necessaries of life, w^{ch} are purchased by us at a most exorbitant price; when we recollect that their proportion of the public tax is no more than it was, when produce was five times less, and land itself not half so Valuable, we are naturally led to view our own situation, & we feel ourselves grievously oppressed. Our trade comparatively speaking is at an end. We have not a tenth part of the stock in trade we had, when the Valuation, &c was taken our Vessels have been taken, & our fishery on w^{ch} was our dependance destroyed by the Enemy; the number of our rateable polls has decreased nearly one half; our stores, Warehouses, distilhouses, & wharves, are generally unimployed, and useless. Yet it is for these things, upon the present valuation We pay a large tax, a tax in our Apprehension, to be paid by us for our very losses.

We know it is said that tho' we have been deprived of our Ancient & customary trade, by the war, the Prizes we take from the Enemy, are more than sufficient to ballance the loss of it, but this is such a mistake as we conceive few men, on reflection will fall into.

Tho' some individuals may Acquire large fortunes, by fitting out private Vessells of war, it is a notorious truth that the people in general are not inriched by it, and the half of those who are do not belong to this but to the Neighbouring towns; besides that some inhabitants of this town who have Acquired great Riches in this way, and who pay one sixth part of our taxes, have already removed, while others are daily removing to the Country, for the sole purpose of avoiding the enormous taxes to which we are liable by residing here. And unless your honours, see proper to grant us redress in this particular every Gentleman of Property will remove from the town for the purpose of avoiding such disproportionate taxes, by these means the burden w^{ch} is at present almost unsupportable will be rendered wholly so. Upon reflection we think these unnatural mischiefs, have their foundation in the present proportion of taxation; than which nothing, we conceive can be more ruinous & oppressive to that equal liberty w^{ch} is the basis of a free Government, they Are mischiefs which we see in an alarming point of View, & we feel their destructive Operations, but while we thus from a sense of duty to ourselves, our Children & Families —remonstrate against them & their cause, We beg leave to assure your honrs that we have chearfully complied with every burden that has been laid upon us for supporting the Independance & the safety of our Country, and we shall continue to perform the duty wch God & the Laws require of us, a part of which we conceive this our petition & Remonstrance against the present proportion of the public tax to be; for this if it continues must bring inevitable ruin & destruction on the town by depriving us of the little property we have. & do great injury to ye cause we all profess to be attached to, by giving a Watchful Enemy an opp.y to foment disaffection & discord within the state— We therefore humbly pray Your honours to grant us such relief in the premises, as in your Wisdom shall appear just & equitable — And your Petitioners As in duty bound shall ever pray &c. The following resolve, which is copied from the original, and was deemed necessary to cure a defect in the act, constitutes chapter XIX. of the printed resolves of the second session:—

"State of Massachusetts Bay — In the House of Representatives, September 19th 1778—

Chap. 28. The first annexation, that has been noticed, of territory, to the town of Worcester, from "The Gore," so called, is the following:—

"April 5, 1743. A Petition of Ephraim Curtis, Jabez Tatman, Matthias Rice, Thomas Green, John Barber, Thomas Richardson, Daniel Boyden and Jonas Woodward, praying that their lands lying between the Towns of Worcester and Sutton at a place commonly called The Gore, may be annexed to the Town of Worcester.

In the House of Representyes; Read and Ordered that the Prayer of the Petition be granted, and that the Petitioners be and they hereby are together with their Lands and Estate herein mentioned lying between Worcester and Sutton commonly called The Gore, be annexed to the said Town of Worcester there to do duty and receive privilege accordingly In Council; Read and Concur'd Consented to W: SHIRLEY."—Council Records, vol. XVII., book 3, p. 634.

Next, in order, is the petition referred to in the answer, or remonstrance, of May, 1772, of the inhabitants of Worcester, as follows:—

"May 27, 1757. A Petition of Jonathan Stone of Worcester, James Hart, Thos Beard and James Wallis, all of Leicester — Setting forth That the Line between Leicester & Worcester divides the Petitioner Stones Farm leaving only his House & about ten acres of Land in Worcester; that the other Petitioners Farms lye wholly in Leicester, that they live six miles from the place of Public Worship in Leicester and are Obliged to ride three miles & an half through Worcester to go to it, that by reason of their Situation they have no benefit of the School in Leicester, although they pay towards its Support; & that they live but about four miles & an half from the Meeting House at Worcester, with a good Country Road leading to it — Therefore praying that they with their Estates may be set off to the Town of Worcester.

In the House of Representatives—Read & Ordered That the Petitioners notify the Town of Leicester of this Petition by leaving an attested copy thereof with the Clerk of said Town that they shew cause (if any they have) on the first Friday of the next Sitting of this Court, why the Prayer thereof should not be granted.

In Council — Read and Concurred. Consented to by a Major Part of the Council."—Ibid., vol. XXII., p. 7.

On the 19th of August, 1757, this petition was ordered to be dismissed; and, on the 15th of December, following, another application for relief was made by the petitioners. This has not been discovered, but the record of the proceedings thereon is as follows:—

"Dec. 15, 1757. A Petition of Jonathan Stone of Worcester, James Hart, Thomas Beard, and James Wallis of Leicester — Setting forth That in last May Sessions they preferred a Petition to this Court praying that they with their Estates might be set off from Leicester to Worcester. That thereupon the Town of Leicester was notified of said Petition, and put in their Answer thereto — whereupon the Council ordered their said Petition to be dismissed; which dismission was grounded as the Petitioners apprehend upon their not having supported one Fact relating to the distance between their Dwellings and Leicester meeting House; which distance they had procured to be measured by persons under Oath, and disinterested, and had sent the same down, but it was not delivered in till after the Petition was dismissed, And as their Case is really difficult Praying That a Committee may be sent thither at the Petitioners Cost to veiw their Circumstances and report.

In Council. Read and Ordered That James Minot Esq with Such as the honourable House of Representatives shall join be a Committee at the Sole cost of the Petitioners to repair to the Town of Leicester, first giving notice of the time of their meeting there, by notifying the Clerk of the said Town, or one of the Selectmen, that they hear all Parties, carefully veiw and consider the Situation and Circumstances of the Petitioners, and report to this Court as soon as may be with conveniency, what they may apprehend proper to be done relative to this Petition.

In the House of Representatives Read and Concurred; and Mr Witt and Major Ward are joined in the Affair. Consented to by the Governor." — Ibid., p. 155.

"June 2, 1758. The Committee appointed on the Petition of Jonathan Stone and Others as entered the 15th December last—Reported—That having after due notice given to all concerned, repaired to the place where the Petitioners dwell, and being attended by the Committee of the Town of Leicester and the Petitioners, and having taken a full and careful Survey of the Situation and circumstances of the Petitioners and fully heard the Parties — find their Petition just and reasonable, and are therefore of Opinion, that the Petitioners James Hart, Thomas Beard, and James Wallis with their Lands and the Lands of the Petitioner Stone lying in Leicester, be laid to the Town of Worcester there to do duty and enjoy Privileges for the Future, as other the Inhabitants there do, Provided that they pay their proportion of all past Taxes already granted or Assessed by the Town of Leicester. Signed — JAMES MINOT Per Order

In Council Read and Ordered That this Report be accepted and that the said James Hart, Thomas Beard and James Wallis with their Estates and Lands lying in Leicester and the Lands of the said Jonathan Stone also lying in Leicester for the future be laid to and Accounted part of the Town of Worcester there to do duty and enjoy priviledge as other the Inhabitants of Worcester do, the Petitioners to be always Subject to the payment of such Taxes as are already granted or assessed. And that for the future their proportion of the Province & County Taxes be taken off from the Town of Leicester, and added to the Town of Worcester. In the House of Representatives. Read and Concurred. Consented to by the Governor." — Ibid., p. 368.

In 1772, another application was made, as follows: —

"April 17, 1772. A Petition of William Bancroft and others Inhabitants of the Towns of Worcester, Leicester, Oxford and Sutton in the County of Worcester—Setting forth—That by their remoteness from the place of public Worship of God in the several Towns aforesaid they are put to great difficulties and inconveniences in their attendance thereon, but that they would be better accommodated if they were set off and made a District—That the several Towns aforesaid are large and can well spare the Petitioners. And praying that they and their Estates, together with a small piece of Land called the Gore, lying without the bounds of any Town, may be erected into a District, agreable to the bounds mentioned in their Petition." — Ibid., vol. XXIX., p. 164.

The above was presented April 15th, and referred to a committee, consisting of Messrs. Dix, Farley and Howard, "to consider the same, and report." On the 17th, this committee reported a resolve for an order of notice on this petition, to the towns interested, returnable on the second Wednesday of the next session of the General Court. The following are the answers of the inhabitants of Worcester, Leicester, Sutton and Oxford, returned after service of this notice: —

"To his Excellency Thomas Hutchinson Esqr Captain general and Comander in Cheife in and over the Province of the Massachusetts Bay the Honorable his majestys Council The House of Representatives in general Court assembled at Boston May 1772

Humbly Shews the Subscribers Inhabitants of Worcester That they by being over perswaded Signed a Petition with others to the general Court praying that the Southerly part of Worcester with part of Oxford Sutton might be made a Seperate District; but upon mature consideration find that it will be a great Disadvantage to them, and they not be so well accomodated by sd proposed new District, as they now are & therefore pray their Names may be withdrawn from said Petition: and they not considered as the Number of sd Petitioners. and if the prayer of sd Petition finally obtains that they with their Estates may remain to Worcester. & as in Duty bound shall pray —

"To His Excellency Thomas Hutchinson Esqr Captain Generall and Comander In Cheife in and over the Province of the Massachusetts Bay the Honble his majestys Council and House of Representatives In General Court assembled at Cambridge May 1772—

The answer of the Inhabitants of Worcester In the County of Worcester to a Petition of Some of ye Inhabitants of Said Town and of Leicester Oxford and Sutton In the County of Worcester Praying to be Erected Into a seperate District according to ye Lines & bounds therein mentioned— Humbly Shews—

That the said Town of Worcester is about ye Contents of Six miles Square That they have Lately Erected a new Large & Comodious meeting House in said Town as nigh the Center as Could be Conveniently set so as to acomodate ye said Town—and when Built the Place was to the satisfaction of the Inhabitants of said Town— That more than one third part of said new Proposed District is a part of said Town of Worcester & by taking

y^e same of Will Leave the Town in a very Irregular form. the Meeting House upon one side of y^e Town which will have a natural Tendancy to make uneasiness in those Liveing In the Northerly part of y^e Town unless the Present meeting House is Removed which if it should be will Cause Great Disorder & Confusion in the Town—

The Petitioners by their own shewing say that within the Proposed Limitts for s^d District there are Contained about 9332 acres of Land on which are setled upwards of seventy familys upon which Your Respondents beg Leave to observe that there are forty six Signers to Said Petition thirty eight of which are only heads of familys within the Limits & two of them of y^e Profession of Baptist and off Course will not Joyn with them in setling y^e Gospell among them and two of y^e said number viz^t John Elder and James Elder by being over Perswaded Signed said Petition Desire their names may be with Drawn therefrom as appears by their Request herewith Exhibited the Rest of the Petitioners are all single Persons some of them Transient one Picked up in order to augment the number of Petitioners and Therefore Cannot be accounted as part of the N^o of familys the Petitioners Say are within the Limits of the Proposed District by which it plainly appears that a majority of y^e Familys in Said Proposed District do not Desire to be made into a District—

That the N^o of familys on that part proposed to be taken from Worcester amount to about the Number of twenty eight of which N^o twelve of them Including the said Elders have not Signed Said Petition and many of them are Sensible that Instead of Receiving any benefit from Said Proposed District it will be Greatly to their Damage to be Included therein and pray they may not be as appears by the Paper by them Signed herewith Exhibited That many of y^e familys Contained in said proposed District are unable to Carry on their Proportion of y^e Expence that must of Course Ensue upon their being sett off and as it is against the minds of a majority they will be ever a Poor Contentious Disunited Society—

Your Respondents beg Leave further to Observe that In y^e Year 1758 Jonathan Stone whose farm Lay Cheifly in Leicester a Principal Petitioner and one of the most active with James Hart Thomas Beard & one Wallis then all of Leicester petitioned the General Court setting forth their Remoteness from & y^e Deficultys of attending the Publick Worship in Leicester and Prayed that they might be set off to Worcester as they then said they had a Good Road to Worcester meeting House and Could Conveniently attend there they were accordingly upon a Report of a Comittee of y^e General Court Sent to view their Circumstances set off & Can as Well attend the Publick Worship in Worcester now as they then said they Could—

Your Respondents are Sencible in Country towns where People Git their Livings by Husbandry they Cannot Live Compact but must be Scattered over a Considerable tract of Land and that every one Cannot be accomodated with a meeting House at his Door which not only makes it Deficult for some of y^e Petitioners but is as Deficult for many others in our Town but in all taxations People Liveing Remote from the Center of y^e Town have been Considered & their Farmes Estimated at a Lower Rate and of Course their Taxes have been Less towards all Publick Charges The Cutting up Splitting and Dividing old Towns In order to make Little Small poor Contintious Parrishes and Districts is attended with Ill Consequences has a Tendency to Discourage Learning as they Cannot support Schools & y^e Gospell among them as they ought to be Supported—and making the Proposed District your Respondent Humbly apprehends Will not only be very Injurious to the several Towns aforesaid but even to the Petitioners themselves, and many of the most Respectable Familys in said Proposed District are so sencible of it have Signed against it Knowing that if the said Petition should be Granted it would be Rather a Deservice to y^e Petitioners than any advantage and many of the Petitioners and others Living in said Proposed District Can if they should be sett off Better & more Conveniently Come to y^e meeting House in Worcester then go to y^e Place where it is Proposed to Build a House for Worship in said District on account of y^e Roads being so much Better—

Your Respondants would further observe that by y^e Plan of said District Exhibited the Lines Run through many Farms Leaving them part in one Place & Part in another so that the owners will not be voters in Either Place Your Respondents acknowledge they have no Right to say any thing about the Damage & Utter Distruction that Will Happen to the North Parish in Sutton as they Can & Will Speak for themselves but beg Leave to Observe that off all y^e familys Proposed to be Taken off from Sutton there are only the familys of Richardson's & Carter that have signed said Petition upon y^e whole Your Respondents pray that for the Reasons aforesaid the said Petition be Dismissed—But if Your Excellency and Honours in Your Great Wisdom shall se Cause to set them off in their Disunited state and make them a seperate District We Pray they may not be a District to us for y^e Greater Part of them are Strangers to us and their being Joyned with Us will always have a Tendency to make Parties in our Town too Prevalent already—

"Province of the Massechusets Bay } To His Execllency Thomas Hutchorson Esq^r the Honarabel his Majestys Counsel and House of Represenitives in General Cort assembled May 27^th 1772

That we y^e Subcribers Inhabitants of Oxford in Said Province, (being all of us lawful Voters, in Town-affairs,) living and having our Estates, within y^e limits of those lands which are now Petition'd to be Sett off, by y^e Said Gen^ll Court into a Seperate District, from y^e Towns of Worcester, Oxford, Leicester and Sutton — do Concieve that we in Case y^e Honb^le Court Should Sett us off, into Such a distinct District, Should be greatly Incommoded thereby and our Estates damaged, as well as our Town of Oxford much hurt, in way and manner, as is Set forth by y^e humble memorial which is laid before y^e General Court, from and by Said Oxford at this Time: — and therefore, we would Pray to y^e Court that y^e Said Petition, for a district, may not be granted — as in Duty bound &c —

May 28^th 1772. JOSEPH PHILLIPS, SAMUEL LEARNED, JACOB WORK, JONATHAN CUTTER, JOHN HARWOOD, ISRAEL PHILLIPS." —Ibid, p. 620.

On the 3d of June, 1772, the foregoing petition and answers were read, in the Council, and referred to a joint committee, consisting of Messrs. Dexter and Sever, of the Council, and Messrs. Hobson, Doolittle and Brown of Abington, of the House, who reported, on the 25th, that the petition be dismissed; which was done, on the same day.

Next, John Tatman's estate was set off to Worcester as follows: —

"Jan. 16, 1773. A Petition of John Tatman of Worcester — Setting forth, That on the 5 day of April 1743 the General Court was pleased, on the Petition of Ephraim Curtis, Jabez Tatman, Mathias Rice, Tim^o Green, John Barber, Daniel Boyden and Jonas Woodward, then dwelling on and interested in a Gore of Land lying between the Towns of Worcester and Sutton, to annex them and their Lands to the said Town of Worcester — That at that time William Jennison Esq^r now deceased, owned Sixteen acres and an half of Land lying in said Gore, now owned by the Petitioner, and is encompassed by the Lands aforementioned, which was not annexed to said Worcester. And praying that the said Sixteen acres & an half of Land may be annexed to Worcester.

In the House of Representatives — Resolved that the prayer of the Petition be granted, and that the sixteen acres and an half of Land mentioned in said Petition be annexed to the Town of Worcester and subjected to be Taxed there and in every respect under the jurisdiction of said Town as other Lands in said Town are.

In Council, Read and Concurred, Consented to by the Governor." — Council Records, vol. XXIX, p. 385.

The next proceedings that appear of record, relative to the incorporation of the persons and estates embraced in the town afterwards erected by this act, are the following: —

"To his Excellency Thomas Hutchinson Esq^r. Governor, to the Honb^le his Majesty's

Council and House of Representatives of His Majesty's Province of the Massachusetts Bay in New England in General Court assembled Janʸ 1773 —

The Subscribers, in our own behalf and as agents for sundry Inhabitants of the Towns of Worcester, Oxford and Sutton & Leicester most humbly shew — That our situation is such that we cannot be accommodated with and enjoy the common privileges of Society in the respective Towns where we belong. We have heretofore humbly solicited this honbˡᵉ Court that a District might be formed out of those Towns, but by reason of the representation of those Towns (who must be supposed to be greatly interested) this Court have been made to believe that such a measure would not be salutary for the whole and your Petitioners have failed in their suit, but our necessity is such that we cannot help petitioning your Excellency and Honors once more humbly praying that a Committee of this honbˡᵉ Court might be appointed to repair to the Lands where we dwell, at our own charge and view the same and report the true situation and circumstances of your aggrieved Petitioners and those only who shall then be disposed to join with us, and we will contentedly set down with such a Society as this Court shall hereafter see fit to Incorporate, and if we shall finally be denied in this our humble suit, after this honbˡᵉ Court shall have received and heard a report of their own Members, which we presume will be disinterested, we shall be more contented and more disposed to believe that our suit is not founded in that reason we at present apprehend it is. The committee then proceeded with their duty, and found "a sufficient number of families" belonging to the four towns named, "to make a district," but "situate at a great distance from their respective places of public worship," and that "the towns and precincts to which those families belong, might spare them without being straitened but," the committee add, they "do not think it is advisable to erect them into a district, at present, unless they were more generally united." The committee therefore recommended that the persons described in the resolve, with their estates, "be erected into a separate precinct, and vested with all precinct privileges."

There are some minor differences between the report, and the following record of the resolve establishing the precinct in accordance therewith: —

"June 23, 1773. The Committee appointed the 23ᵈ day of January last on the Petition of Daniel Boyden and others in behalf of themselves and as Agents for sundry Inhabitants of the Towns of Worcester, Oxford, Sutton and Leicester — made report; in consequence of which, the following Order passed viz: —

"We the Subscribers Inhabitants of the Towns of Worcester, Leicester, Oxford and Sutton living within the limits prescribed in the aforegoing Order of the Great and General Court for joyning with a Precinct made out of said Towns hereby signify to your Honor our desire to belong to said Precinct and made a part thereof agreable to the Order aforesaid. The original report of the committee last named was accepted by the Council, June 18, 1773; but the House nonconcurred, and voted to recommit the report, "to fix the spot where the meeting-house shall be erected." The Council concurred in this vote, on the following day, and the clause fixing the location of the meeting-house was added in a separate paragraph, which is cancelled in the original report.

The petition for the incorporation of the town was read in the House, Oct. 24, 1777, and an order of notice issued thereon to the towns of Worcester, Leicester, Oxford and Sutton. On the 11th of December, the report of a committee to which this petition had been referred, was accepted by the Council, and sent down for concurrence, when it was "read, and committed, to be drawn into a resolve," to Messrs. Dix and Batcheldor, of the House, and Whetcomb, of the Council. This committee reported on the 13th, and the subject was referred to the next session of the General Court.

On the 14th of January, a remonstrance from a number of the inhabitants of the town of Sutton, against the act of incorporation prayed for, was read, and referred to the committee, appointed at the previous session, to consider the report of a former committee on the original application for incorporation into a town, and it was now "ordered that said application, and all papers relative thereto, be recommitted." On the 19th, the report of this committee was brought down from the Council, to the House, read, and concurred, with amendments, and returned to the Council, for concurrence

The nature of this report, and the subsequent proceedings thereon, are shown in the following extracts from the House Journal: —

"Feb. 25, 1778. Joseph Palmer, Esq; brought down a Report of the Committee appointed by the General Court to view the late Parish set off from Worcester, Sutton, Oxford and Leicester, viz. 'That they have heard the Committees from the several Towns aforesaid, and others concerned, and are of Opinion, that it would conduce to the public Good as well as to the Good of the Inhabitants of the new Parish, to incorporate them into a Town, according to the Plan exhibited,' with the following Vote of Council thereon, viz.

In Council, Feb. 25, 1778. Read and Ordered, That Artemas Ward and Joseph Palmer, Esq'rs. with such as the Honorable House shall appoint, be a Committee to take the same into Consideration, with the Papers accompanying the same, to hear the Parties, and report what is best to be done thereon. Sent down for Concurrence. Read and concurred, and Mr. Nicholls, Doct. Dunsmore and Col. Reed are joined." — House Journal, p. 193.

"Mar. 11, 1778. Abraham Fuller, Esq; brought down a Report of the Committee of both Houses appointed the 25th of February 1778, to take into Consideration the Report of a former Committee appointed by the General Court to view the late Parish set off from Worcester, Sutton, Oxford and Leicester, and the Papers accompanying the same, and to hear the Parties, viz. 'That they have attended that Service, and beg Leave to bring in a Bill for incorporating said Parish into a Town.'

Pass'd in Council, viz. — In Council, March 11, 1778.
Read and accepted. — Sent down for Concurrence.

Read, and thereupon Ordered, That the Consideration thereof be referred to the second Wednesday of the next Sesssion." — Ibid., p. 207.

With the foregoing report, the Council sent down the bill of this chapter — the name therein proposed for the town being "Wardborough" — with a memorandum thereon that it had been passed to be engrossed, and was sent down for concurrence.

The sixth session was begun April 1, and on the 8th, the bill was read, a first time, in the House, with a formal amendment in the enacting clause, and the change of "Wardborough" to "Ward," in the title and wherever the name of the town occurred in the bill. In the bill thus amended, the Council concurred, the same day; and, on the 10th, the House proposed two further amendments, inserting the words "the general assembly of this state, the county of Worcester, or the," before "said towns," in the fourth section, and inserting "the late Johnson," before "Watson," in two places. These amendments were agreed to by the Council, on the same day.

The petition for incorporation into a town, and the subsequent papers referred to, except the bill, have not been discovered in the files, or among the bound papers in the secretary's office. The following list of land-owners who desired not to be included in the new town, is on file with the bill: —

The following petition was referred to Messrs. Blaney, Dana and Codding, of the House, April 23, 1779, and, from a memorandum endorsed on the petition, it appears that the petitioners had leave to withdraw: —

"To the Honourable the General Assembly of the state of the Massachusetts Bay the memorial and petition of us the Subscribers Inhabitants of the Town of sutton humbly sheweth that At the Time of the setting off the Town of ward we under the Apprehension of its Cutting off and affecting our Estates did then in Every movement of the said setting off said Town and at every Oppertunity allowed us earnestly remonstrate against having any parte of our Estats set off from the Town we belong to to the said new Town about to be erected as may apeair by the files of the Papers respecting said affair in the secretaries office but notwithstanding all the Remonstrances and Petitions we could make the late General Court Did' establish a Line bissecting our Lands to our grate hurt and Damage for our Estates thus set off are subject to grate Charge and Taxation And we are thus subjected to pay taxes and do Duty whair we cannot have any voice nor enjoy any Benifit which we esteem a very grate Greavance and which has now for years past been esteemed an intolirable Greavance by the united voice of the Continant. House, no. 441.

Chap. 29. On the 25th of June, the House assigned the next day, for considering "the expediency of ordering a new valuation of estates, to be taken." The subject thus introduced was discussed on the 26th, and again on the 27th, when the House refused to order a bill for the purpose, to be reported. No further progress was made with the bill until the fourth session, when, another assignment having been made, for December 4th, Messrs. Davis, Wendell, Sewall, Wood and Goodman were, on that day, appointed a committee to bring in a bill. On the 6th, the House assigned the 8th, to consider what instructions should be given the committee; but, at the time appointed, this business was postponed to the next day, when it was voted "that the committee be directed to proceed according to the method pointed out in the last tax act."

On the 21st of January, 1778, the bill of this chapter was read a first time, but the second reading was put off to the 27th. The further consideration of the bill was postponed on the 27th, 28th and 30th of January, and on the 10th, 18th and 23d of February, upon which it seems to have been dropped for the session. In the sixth session, the subject was again considered, on the seventh of April. On the 16th, a bill was read twice, and discussed on the 17th and 18th, and read a third time, and passed to be engrossed, on the 20th, and passed, by the House, to be enacted, on the 27th, and, on the 28th, by the Council. The bill as finally passed, differs in no essential particular from the bill as first proposed.

On the 28th of September, Messrs. Nicholson, Bliss and Singletary were appointed a committee to examine the returns made under this act, "and report what number there are, and whether they are sufficient for the purpose of said act." On the 2d of October, this committee reported that the number of returns was 110, "and that they were very various;" whereupon, Messrs. Frazier, Partridge, Roberts, Leonard and Ward were appointed a committee "to consider what steps are proper to be taken to obtain the returns from the several towns."

The following resolve* was probably reported by the committee last named: —

"State of Massachusetts Bay In the House of Representatives Octr. 5th 1778

Whereas by a late Law of this state the assessors in the several Towns within the Same, for the year one Thousand seven Hundred & seventy eight were Required to Return into the Secretarys office true and perfect lists of the Rateable property of Each Town in this State by the 20th Day of June last, and upon Examination there is found to be but an inconsiderable Number compared with the whole that has obeyed the order aforesaid.

Therefore Resolved that if the Delinquent Assessors in the Several Towns in this State for the year one thousand seven Hundred & seventy eight do not Return into the secretarys office true and perfect lists of the Rateable Property in Each of their Respective Towns agreeably to ye Law aforesaid by the first Day of December Next this Court will proceed to Doom every Town that shall Neglect to comply with this order.—

And whereas some Towns within this State have pleaded ignorance of the act aforesaid.—

It is further Resolved that this Resolve be printed in hand bills and sent to the Sheriffs of the several counties within this State and that they Cause one hand bill to be sent to Each Town without Delay ^ in order that a Compleat Return may be obtained by the first Day of Decemr. next as aforesaid. — Sent up for Concurrence

The town of Worcester was doomed under this resolve, but applied for abatement. For the proceedings in that case, see the note to 1779–80, chapter 12, post.

The above resolve was followed by another resolve† for distributing the handbills; viz., —

On the 6th of January, 1779, the secretary was ordered "to lay upon the table a list of the towns and other places who have made returns on the valuation act;" which was accordingly done, on the 8th, when the list was read, and the subject assigned to the 12th, "to determine whether the matter thereof shall be taken up the present session, and what is proper to be done respecting the same."

On the 12th, it was voted to adjust the proportion of the several towns that session, and to appoint a committee consisting of members from each of the counties, to be nominated by the members from the respective counties; viz., four from Suffolk and Essex; three, each, from Middlesex, Hampshire and Worcester; two from Plymouth, Barnstable, Bristol, York, Cumberland and Berkshire; and one from Lincoln,—to consider the returns. This committee was appointed, and ordered to "proceed to business as soon as may be," on the 14th, and on the 16th, the chairman reported to the House that the committee were in doubt "whether by the act the tax is to be laid upon the principal of the estates, * * upon their income, or upon both; and whether the returns are to be the only guide for the committee to proceed by." The House thereupon assigned the 20th, "to take this matter into consideration."

On the 20th, the House proceeded, according to appointment, to consider the above questions, and voted "that said committee proceed according to the valuation act, on the returns, in such way as they shall judge best."

Changes were made in the committee, from time to time, until the 26th of February, when it was voted that the committee "sit after the adjournment of the court, for completing the business assigned them," and ordered that the committee "in determining what each town shall pay towards a tax of £1000, estimate the polls at one penny each."

In the mean time, a petition was received from the selectmen of Dartmouth, as follows: —

"To the Honourable the Council and House of Representatives of the State of Massachusetts Bay Conveened at Boston the 6 of January

The Petition of the Select Men of the Town of Dartmouth Humbly Shews. that your Petitioners beg leave to Represent to your Honours the loss sustained By many individuals Inhabitants of this Town by the Ravage of the Brittish eneny on and about the 5th of September last: that there was Not an Inhabitant But whot Sufered in a greater or lesser degree from the place of their landing to the place of their Embarkation: and that their are some that have but little or nothing more left them than the amount of their tax in a late assessment made upon this Town and not any collected until since the aforesaid Ravage of the Brittish Enemy. and that your Petitioners have herewith Transmited an Estimate of the loss Sustained in Rateable property given in under oath by the individual Sufferers and Valued by the assessors of the aforesaid Town at the same Rate the said Rateable property being before valued in the Valuation bill preceeding this and transmited to the secrataries office. your Petitioners have likewise transmited an Estimate of the loss in Household furniture wareing apparel &c. Not Rateable given in as aforesaid under oath and valued at the current price such articles were at at the time of their being distroyed.

and whereas a verry considerable part of the loss sustained as aforesaid consisted in property not Rateable yet the individuals are so much the poorer and incapacitated to pay their taxes. therefore your Petitioners pray that so much of the Towns proportion of the Next Tax (according to the valuation aforesaid transmited to the Secrataries office) May be Eased on said Town as your Honours in your wisdom shall think just and Equitable. your Petitioners have likewise Transmited to your Honours the just amount of the Tax upon the Rateable property of the individuals (that was Distroyed) Being in the same proportion With their whole Tax as it stood assessed in the Rate Bills Last made. that your Honours if in your wisdom should see fitt to Remit any part or the whole in proportion to their Loss and your Petitioners as in Duty Bound Shall Ever Pray

This petition was referred, January 16th, to the committee on valuation, and, on the 17th of February, the following resolve was passed thereupon. Ten days later, it was voted to refer the subject of the petition to the next session: —

"Resolved, That the Committee upon the Valuation be and hereby are directed to deduct out of the Sum total of the List given in by the Assessors of the Town of Dartmouth the Sum of Twenty-two Thousand eight Hundred and seventy-six Pounds, which is nearly the Amount of the rateable Property destroyed by the Enemy in said Town, on or about the fifth Day of September last, and which was included in said List." — House Journal, p. 146.

On the fifteenth of April, the committee brought in their report, and the afternoon was immediately assigned "for the consideration thereof." On the 20th, it was "voted, that the sum each county ought to pay be first determined upon." The debate upon the report then proceeded, and on the 23d, after full discussion, "the sum laid on the county of Suffolk as their proportion of a tax of £1000," was accepted, "by a majority of 76 out of 106." The House then proceeded to vote upon the whole report, "so far as respects the sum laid on the several counties," and it was accepted "by a majority of 80 out of 107," and the further consideration of the report was referred to the next day, to give opportunity for the members from the several counties to "consider what alterations, if any, were proper to be made in the sums set on the towns in their respective counties."

On the 27th, the House "passed upon the sums set on the several towns in all the counties except Suffolk, Hampshire and Berkshire," and on the next day, they adjusted the valuation of the towns of these counties, and "by a majority of 60 out of 82" adopted the following list, for the whole state: —

An unsuccessful effort was made to revise this list in respect to Suffolk County; and a petition for correcting the number of polls charged to Cape Elizabeth, and another for readjusting the proportion of the towns in Cumberland County, were presented but were not granted. On the 22d of June, the members from Essex County reported "that they had agreed to take off three shillings, in the valuation, from the town of Andover, and to add the same to the town of Boxford," whereupon a resolve was passed confirming this agreement.

This act, which had been so long preparing, was superseded by chapter 41 of the acts of 1779-80, passed April 28, 1780 — which was just one year after the list of proportions reported by the committee on valuation had been adopted.

The Memorial & Petition of the Inhabitants of the Southerly part of the town of Bolton in the County of Worcester — Humbly Sheweth—

That your memorialists live, upon an average, upwards of four miles from the meeting House, in said town, which renders it very difficult for them to attend public worship, with their families. especially in severe seasons: —

That your memorialists on the second Instant, prefered a petition to the said Town, praying their consent, that all the Inhabitants South of a certain line known in sd town, as a line run some years since by one Mr Longley, together with their Estates might be set off as a seperate parish, with liberty for every Individual in said town, to attend public worship, in either parish as he pleased, he paying his ministerial taxes, to the parish where he should chuse to attend divine service,—That on the said second Inst the town aforesd at a legal meeting voted, to grant the Prayer of the said petition, and that the sd Inhabitants be set off in manner as abovesaid, with the liberty aforementioned, Provided that the Inhabitants of each parish, should return their names to the assessors of the said Parishes—some time in the month of Sept—annually, specifying which parish they choose to attend at—And that those who should not thus return their names—to be taxed to that Parish within the limits of which, they lived—which provision is agreeable to your Memorialists—

Your Petitioners therefore pray your Honors, to take their case into consideration, and set them off, in manner and form as above prayed, and consented to by said town—All which is humbly submitted by your petitioners, and they as in duty bound will ever pray—

The foregoing petition was read, in the House, Feb. 18, 1778, and leave was granted the petitioners to bring in a bill. Nothing further appears to have been done in regard to the subject of this chapter, until the next session, when, on the 8th of April, the Council, having given the bill of this chapter two readings, passed it to be engrossed and sent it down for concurrence. In the House the bill was read a first time, April 10th, and, the next day, it was passed, in concurrence, to be engrossed, and, on the 13th, it was passed to be enacted by both branches.

Chap. 31. In 1772, the first meeting-house erected in Needham being greatly out of repair, the subject of repairing it, or building a new one, was brought forward in town meeting, and led to a discussion which was continued, with increasing bitterness, at several subsequent meetings of the inhabitants. The fact that the site of the old meeting-house was not in the geographical centre of the town, induced one party to favor the project of repairing the old building, from the apprehension that if a new building were erected, it would be upon a site less convenient to them; while another party, living in the westerly part of the town (now included in the town of Wellesley), objected to repairing the old house, or building another on its site, ostensibly because of its unequal distance from the two principal settlements.

That this opposition from the inhabitants of the westerly part of the town did not spring, solely, from a desire to have the meeting-house conveniently near for worship, may be inferred from the fact that they were supporting a separatist assembly in their midst, and that between the years 1743 and 1761, several of them had been, at their own request, set off to the town of Natick, and were then set back again to Needham, "for the peace of Natick," as the joint committee of the Legislature of the latter year, say in their report,— these malcontents having attempted, on the ground that it was necessary for their convenience, to remove the Natick meeting-house away from the Indians, for whose use it was built by the voluntary contributions of persons and corporations not belonging to the town. In 1767, these persons, or their successors, had applied to the Legislature, to be re-annexed to Natick, but their petition was dismissed; and, seven years later, while the differences were pending which resulted in the passage of the present act, they once more applied to be united to Natick, but without success.

The town chose a committee to coöperate with a surveyor, in determining the geographical centre of the town, and upon the report of this committee, votes were passed at a meeting of the inhabitants, May 28, 1772,— to which time the business had been adjourned, — refusing to build at the centre, and resolving to build a new meeting-house, and selecting as its site "the north side of the [old] meeting-house, as near as it could conveniently be built." The subject of choosing a committee "to proceed in building the new meeting-house" was dismissed for want of an appropriation for the purpose.

At the March meeting in 1773, the subject of building was again postponed, but the old structure having been consumed by fire on the morning of Oct. 17, of that year, another town meeting was called for November 4th, the warrant for which contained articles proposing a reconsideration of the vote fixing the site for a new building, and submitting the question of dividing the town into two parishes, and proposing measures for erecting the new building upon the site selected. The town at this meeting refused to consent to a division of the town or to reconsider their former vote fixing the location of the meeting-house; and voted that, when built, the new edifice should stand as located by the former vote. On the 18th, the town passed a series of votes, granting £200, to be raised by a single rate, as other town taxes, for building the meeting-house, appointing a committee to contract for the same, and arranging the details of the new building. They also voted a reward of £10, for the apprehension and conviction of the incendiary who set fire to the old house.

At another town meeting, on the 22d of December, in accordance with an article in the warrant the petition of Jonathan Deming and others, inhabitants of the westerly part of the town (who by this means once more endeavored to have the new meeting-house erected in the centre of the town), was rejected; and other propositions for changing the location were again voted down.

Deming and his associates now applied to the Legislature, praying for the appointment of a committee "to view the said town at the expense of the petitioners, and to order where the meeting-house, voted by the said town to be erected, shall be placed, or that the said town may be divided into two parishes." On the 3d of February, the General Court ordered notice to be served, by copy, on the town clerk, returnable the seventeenth. In the mean time, the town chose a committee, consisting of Josiah Newell, Jonathan Day, Nathaniel Fisher, Timothy Newell and Josiah Eaton, to make answer to this petition. At the time appointed, the petition and answer being considered, the former was dismissed, by a unanimous vote of the Council in which, however, the House nonconcurred, and a joint committee consisting of Messrs. Lincoln and Greenleaf, of the House, and Dexter, of the Council, was thereupon appointed to "hear the parties and report what may be proper to be done." The report of this committee seems to have been kept alive by a joint order of March 9, 1774, by which all unfinished business was "to have the same day in the next session of the General Court;" and, accordingly, the report of a majority of the committee, that the petition be dismissed, was accepted by the Council and sent down to the House, for concurrence, May 28, 1774.

What further action was taken by the General Court, and what further was done by the committee, upon this petition, does not appear in the state records; but from an entry in the town records, it appears that the judgment of this committee was, "that the meeting-house should stand at or near the second centre, in order to accommodate the town." It is probable that all legislative proceedings on this petition, ceased upon the presentation of the following petition: —

"To His Excellency Thomas Gage Esqr Capt General and Governor in Chief in and Over His Majesty's Province of Massachusetts-Bay, The Honorable Council and House of Representatives, in General Court Assembled the 26th Day of May, A. D. 1774.

The Memorial of the Subscribers Inhabitants of the Westwardly Part of the Town of Needham. Humbly Sheweth,

That Your Memorialits have for a Number of Years Past Attended the Publick Worship of God in the Meeting House in sd Town, Lately Consumed by Fire, which stood more than a Mile from the Centre of the Town, and have thereby been put to Extraordinary Cost and Difficulty, which has been a very great hardship, Especially to those Living Remote, Some being more than Four Miles Distant therefrom and others, within the Limits, more than Six Miles.

And whereas a Vote hath been Passed (by a Trifling Majority) at a Town Meeting, for Erecting a New Meeting House where the Former House stood, and they Persist therein, Notwithstanding Repeated Application hath been made for Erecting it at, or near, the Centre of the Town, and the Opinion of a Committee from this Honorable Court for the Same; under which Cruel hardship and Oppression, Your Memorialists must Remain Remediless without the Interposition of this Honorable Court, They therefore most humbly Pray that the said Town of Needham may be Divided into Two Seperate Parishes, in Such Manner & Form as to Your Excellency and Honors, in Your great Wisdom, shall be thought most Convenient; and Your most Humble Suppliants (as in Duty bound) shall Ever Pray.

The town meeting referred to in the foregoing petition, and at which the inhabitants had again refused to reconsider their vote locating the site of the new meeting-house, was held on the ninth of May. Before this, at other meetings of the town, they had voted to borrow money for building the meeting-house, and to procure a supply of shingles, clapboards and underpinning for the structure.

The above petition was read, in the House, June 8th, and committed to Messrs. Brown of Abington, Whetcomb, and Freeman of Harwich, of the House, and Leonard and Preble, of the Council, and, on the 10th, notice thereon was ordered to be served on the town, returnable on the 21st, if the Court should then be sitting, and if not, then on the third Wednesday of the next session; and the petitioners were exempted from "any expense for building a new meeting-house, in the meantime."

The town, at a meeting held June 17th, refused to accept the "judgment" of the committee above referred to, but voted to proceed to build, without any attempt to come to a new agreement as to its location. It was also voted to answer the last petition of Deming and others; which business was left to the selectmen.

During the summer the preparations for building proceeded agreeably to votes passed at town meetings held from time to time. And, during the same period, twice, by tie vote; viz., July 4th, by a vote of 44 to 44, and July 11th, by a vote of 43 to 43, — the town repeated its refusal to reconsider the vote by which the site of the proposed new building had been fixed.

At a town meeting duly warned, and held on the 3d of October, 1774, the inhabitants refused to exempt the petitioners and others, "to the amount of one-half of said town," from contributing towards the expense of building and finishing the "meeting-house already erected," and from the support of the ministry there, but voted in favor of setting off the westerly part of the town, into a distinct precinct or parish, and to free the inhabitants there from all charges on account of the new meeting-house, "provided they do proceed in building a meeting-house, and maintain preaching among them." They also again refused to change the site of the meeting-house to a place nearer the centre of the town.

At another town meeting, held Mar. 23, 1775, the town refused to reconsider their vote passed at the last meeting, and refused to choose a committee to settle a line of division of the town, but voted "to make some proposals of reconciliation, to the westerly part of said town, relating to the meeting-house lately erected;" and a committee for that purpose, consisting of Nathaniel Fisher, William McIntosh, Amos Fuller, John Fisher and Josiah Eaton, was chosen.

At an adjourned town meeting, held a week later, the committee above named, with the substitution of Henry Dewing, for John Fisher, who declined to serve, reported, as a proposition to be voted upon, "that the town vote to free and exempt the westerly part of the town (from any cost and charge about the meeting-house) that lieth at a greater distance, westwardly, from the meeting-house, than that part of the town that lieth eastwardly of the meeting-house, where the meeting-house now stands." This report was accepted, and the vote carried, accordingly.

The first session of the Legislature of 1774 was dissolved, on the 17th of June, and the General Court did not again convene, as such, until July 26, 1775.

In the mean time, the meeting-house was finished, and the removing of it to another site had ceased to be a subject of contention. The project of dividing the town, however, was renewed in the fourth session of the Legislature of 1775-76. No petition for that purpose, of the inhabitants of the westerly part of the town, has been discovered, but a petition praying for a confirmation of the town vote, of October 3d, was read in the House, March 25, 1776, and the prayer thereof granted, and a committee appointed to bring in a resolve for that purpose. On the next day, the House ordered notice to be served on the town of Needham, of a petition of "a number of the inhabitants." It is probable, therefore, that this differed from the former petition; and it would seem, from the records of the Council, where the order of the House, appointing the second Wednesday of April, for a hearing thereon, was concurred in on the twenty-eighth, that it was preferred by the inhabitants of the westerly part of the town, and contained a prayer to be set off into a separate precinct or parish, without the conditions contained in the vote of the town.

The town met on the 8th of April, and chose a committee, consisting of John Slack, Robert Smith and Ebenezer Newell, to be joined with the selectmen, to answer this petition. On the 10th, the General Court passed the following order, in concurrence: —

"Whereas there are Matters of the utmost Consequence relative to the Defence of this Colony now under Consideration, that this Court cannot give their Attention to Matters merely of a private Nature: Therefore, Ordered, That the Consideration of the within Petition, and the Answer, and all Matters relative thereto, be referred to the third Wednesday of the next Session of the General Court." — House Journal, p. 106.

On the fourth of June, 1776, at a town meeting, the vote of October 3d, relative to setting off the inhabitants of the westerly part of the town, was reconsidered, and it was voted to renew proposals to the petitioners; and Josiah Eaton, Nathaniel Fisher, Timothy Newell, Michael Metcalf and Jonathan Day were chosen, "to draw up said proposals."

On the 26th of June, the Legislature postponed the petition, answer, "and all matters relative thereto, to the third Wednesday of the next session;" and on the 11th of September, still another postponement was ordered, "to the third Wednesday of the next session, agreeable to the request of the parties."

It does not appear that the subject was further considered until the next General Court. On the 11th of June, 1777, a joint committee, consisting of John Whetcomb, of the Council, and Messrs. Wood and Sewall, of the House, was appointed, "to consider the petition of the inhabitants of the towns of Needham and Natick, and to hear the parties, and report what is proper to be done thereon." The report of this committee was made and accepted the same day, and Messrs. Powell and Palmer, of the Council, and Wood, Nichols and Kimball, of the House, were appointed "for the purpose mentioned in the report." As this report has not been found, its purport can only be gathered from subsequent orders and votes. From these it appears that it recommended the appointment of a committee "to repair to the towns of Needham and Natick," hear the parties, and report measures for a settlement of the contention between the two parties in the town of Needham, and their neighbors, of Natick, who were opposed to a union with the dissatisfied inhabitants of the former town, — the petition of the latter having been, on the 12th, referred to this committee. On the 17th, Daniel Davis, of the Council, was appointed on this committee, in place of Joseph Palmer, excused.

On the first of July, the committee last named submitted their report, which was read and accepted by both houses. It is probable that this report was merely the draught of the bill of this act, accompanied by a verbal introduction, since this bill appears to have had its first reading in the Council on that day, and was assigned to the next day for a second reading.

Here the matter rested until the third session, when, on the 12th of September, the House assigned the 17th, "to take into consideration the report" above mentioned; and, on the 18th, the report was committed, for further consideration, to a joint committee, consisting of John Taylor, of the Council, and Mr. Niles and Col Orne, of the House.

The report (which has not been found) of the committee last appointed, was read and accepted, by the Council, on the 26th of September, and sent down for concurrence. The House concurred, with sundry amendments, and proposed a committee to bring in a bill, accordingly, — this committee to be "directed to insert a clause in said bill giving liberty to the non-resident proprietors to join their lands to the east precinct in like manner as the resident proprietors." In these amendments the Council refused to concur; and the House, having been apprised thereof on the 16th of October, ordered the secretary "to lay said report upon the table." On the 17th, a committee of conference, on the subject, was appointed, consisting of Messrs. Powell, Taylor and Fuller, of the Council, and Brooks, Greenleaf and Pickering, of the House. On the day following, in accordance with the report of this committee of conference, the "petitions, with all the papers accompanying the same," were referred to the next session.

On the 3d of December, "the petitions from Needham" were brought down from the Council, with the vote of that body further postponing the consideration thereof "to the second Wednesday of the next session of the General Court." The House refused to concur in this vote, and assigned Monday, December 8th, for that purpose, to which the Council agreed.

In the mean time, the following petition appears to have been presented to the House, and was probably considered by the committee: —

"To the Hon^ble the Council and Hon^ble House of Representatives of the State of Massachusetts Bay, in General Court Assembled —

The Petition of Jonathan Deming Agent for the West part of the Town of Needham — Humbly Sheweth,

That in May last they exhibited a Petition to this Hon^ble Court Praying that a line might be run between the two Parishes, whereupon the Court appointed a Com^tee to hear the Parties, accordingly the Parties from both Parishes and Natick met, and requested the favor of the Hon^ble Court to chuse another Com^tee to go upon the Spot and View the premisses and whatever said Com^tee did all the said Parties Agreed to stand by accordingly a Com^tee was appointed for that purpose who went upon the premisses and Viewed both Parishes and Natick, and made report to your Honors how the dividing line should run, which Report by some means or other hath never yet passed this Hon^ble Court.—

Your petitioner therefore humbly prays this Hon^ble Court would be pleased to take the said Petition and report into consideration, and accept of said Report, and that the dividing line between said Parishes should run Agreeable to said Report,—

And as in duty bound shall pray &c

Decr. 1777 JONA DEMING Agent." — Mass. Files: House, no. 180.

In the sixth session, the subject was revived, and, evidently by common consent, and without discussion, the bill which, in July previous, had been read in the Council, was, on the 23d of April, read a first time, in the House, and was there passed to be engrossed, and went up to the Council, for concurrence, on the next day. In the Council it was read, a first time, on the 24th, and, on the 25th, it was read a second time, and passed, in concurrence, to be engrossed. It was passed to be enacted, by the House, April 27th, and, on the 28th, by the Council.

Thus ended a controversy which is graphically described by the Rev. Mr. West, in his manuscript journal or autobiography, still extant, and of which the town clerk of Needham possesses a copy. The following are extracts therefrom: —

"On the 17^th of Oct., 1773, about 4 o'clock in the morning, I discovered our meeting-house to be on fire. * * * It was undoubtedly sat on fire, by design. There had been much conversation, and some warm dispute, with respect to pulling down the old and building a new house. But there appeared but little probability that it could ever be effected in an orderly way, as some of the wealthiest people among us were zealous for patching up the old house and making it answer for years to come, as it had for many years before. It is then supposable that some person who wished for a new house, and saw no prospect of obtaining it so long as the old house was standing, might, in that wicked and hazardous way, get rid of it. * * * * The event produced great alarm and confusion, and in the the course of the day most of the inhabitants of the town came to view the smoking ruins, and some even wept over them. Much pains were taken to find out the incendiary, but to no purpose; which I then thought and think still an happy circumstance as the spirit of resentment was so high against him that he would have found no mercy from the hands of his prosecutors. * * * * The people were soon called together, and after resolving on some measures for detecting the culprit and bringing him to punishment, they agreed in a vote for building a meeting-house, but were very much divided as to the place where they should set it. Many months passed before they could come to any decision on the subject. A survey of the town was taken, but the centre fell where it would suit neither party. However, they finally got a vote, by a small majority, to erect it on the old spot. The opposing party were extremely exasperated, and, for my own part, I feared they would use force to prevent its going on. This building was not commenced until June, 1774. A Mr. Blackman, of Stoughton, was the undertaker, and there could not be found a man better qualified for the purpose. The house was raised, August 2^d and 3^d. They began to raise (after a prayer had been made) at ½ after 5, A. M. The opposing party came about 9 o'clock, supposed they should be in season to prevent its going up. But when they found the work in such forwardness they were discouraged, and prudently withdrew, althcugh with much resentment and many threats. The consequence was a division of the town into two parishes, after a long, tedious and expensive contest, and erecting another meeting-house about three miles to the westward of this."

In 1792, an effort was made to procure a repeal of this chapter, and to have the towns of Natick and Needham so divided as to reduce the number of parishes in those towns from three to two. A bill for that purpose was brought in, agreeably to the report of a committee, to whom the petitions for division and the remonstrances against it had been referred; but the bill failed to pass.

In the course of the discussions which this movement elicited, it was found that some important papers relating to the setting off the West Precinct, were lost from the secretary's files; and the followlng petition and certificates, and the resolve thereon, show how the proof of these lost papers was established: —

"Commonwealth } To the Honle Senate and House of Representatives in General

It was read in the House, a first time, on the same day, and, on the 27th, it was read a third time and passed, in concurrence, to be engrossed, and, on the following day, it was passed to be enacted in both branches.

Chap.* 33. On the 19th of October, 1776, Messrs. Sergeant, Pickering and Otis were appointed a committee to bring in a bill "impowering the justices of the Superior Court of Judicature, &c., when it appears expedient, to continue any causes brought before them, by appeal from any of the maritime courts, in this state, to the next session, in any county within the same district." Five days later, this committee was ordered to "consider and bring in a clause to prevent persons fixing out vessels from this state, and trading with the British dominions; and also to revise the maritime law, and propose such alterations as they may judge necessary," and Messrs. Murray and Coffin were, at the same time, appointed upon the committee, in place of Messrs. Sergeant and Otis, who were absent.
No report by this committee has been discovered: which is probably explained by the fact that the following order for a joint committee upon the same subject superseded the prior appointment:—
"Oct. 31, 1776. Daniel Hopkins, Esq; brought down from the honorable Board, the following vote of Council, viz. In Council, October 31, 1776. On motion, Ordered, That David Sewall and Francis Dana, Esquires, with such as the honorable House shall join, be a committee to take into consideration, the several laws and resolves of this State, relative to Maritime matters; some of which have never been published; and to bring in a bill with such alterations, amendments and additions, as to them may seem meet, reducing the whole into one act. Sent down for concurrence. Read and concurred, and Mr. Metcalf, of Dedham, Judge Sergeant and Judge Sullivan, are joined." — House Journal, p. 140.
No further proceeding, either by the committee or by either branch of the Legislature, has been discovered until April 11, 1778, when the bill of this chapter was read, a first time, in the Council. On the 13th, it had its second reading in the Council, was there passed to be engrossed, and sent down for concurrence. In the House, this bill was read a first time on the 13th, and a second time on the 16th; and, on the 28th, was passed, in concurrence, to be engrossed, with an amendment by which the word "foreigners" was substituted for "aliens" in the third section. On the 29th, the bill was passed to be enacted.

Supplementary note to chapter 18. — An imperfect copy of the House Journals for the political year 1776-77, in the library of the American Antiquarian Society, enables us to trace the movement resulting in the passage of this chapter, back to January 6, 1777, when a bill, entitled "An Act for prescribing and enjoining an oath of fidelity to this state," was read a first time. It was read again on the following day, and then, "after debate thereon, ordered, that the matter should subside." The subject was renewed in the House, on the 24th of March, by the introduction of the bill of this chapter, which proceeded to enactment as narrated in the note on p. 838, ante.

Be it enacted by the Council and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, [Sect. 1.] That in such cases, affidavits may be taken and used in like manner, and with the same restrictions, as the depositions of persons bound to sea may, by law, be taken and used. Persons who are enlisted into service of this or the United States may have the affidavits taken out of court.

CHAPTER 3.

AN ACT TO IMPOWER THE PROPRIETORS OF A NEW TOWNSHIP IN THE COUNTY OF CUMBERLAND, CALLED PEARSONTOWN, TO LAY A YEARLY TAX, NOT EXCEEDING A PENNY PER ACRE, FOR THE TERM OF FIVE YEARS, UPON THE UNIMPROVED LANDS THERE, AND TO SUBJECT THE LANDS OF SUCH AS SHALL REFUSE OR NEGLECT TO PAY THE SAME, TO BE SOLD FOR THE PAYMENT THEREOF.

Whereas the proprietors of a new township called Pearsontown, in the county of Cumberland, have petitioned this court, shewing that they have occasion to raise monies, for the support of the gospel, making and repairing roads and bridges, running and marking the lines of their lot[t]s, and other necessary charges of compleating the settlement of that township, but that by reason of their having divided most of their lands there into lot[t]s, and drawn the same, their former method, by law prescribed, of laying taxes on their several rights, is inconvenient, and, where the same right is owned by different persons, in several lotts, may, in many cases, work injustice; and therefore praying that they may be impowered to lay a tax upon every unimproved lot[t] there, for a certain time, for the purposes aforesaid,— Preamble. 1753-54, chap. 1.

Be it therefore enacted by the Council and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, [Sect. 1.] That the proprietors of said township be, and they hereby are, impowered, some time in the present year, 1778, and once in every year for the term of four years next succeeding the present, at a meeting called and held in the method already last agreed on by them for calling their meetings, to lay a tax, not exceeding one penny per acre, upon every thirty-acre lot[t] and every hundred-acre lot[t] there (except such lot[t]s as belong to the minister there, or are appropriated for the use of the ministry, or support of schools, and except every other lot[t], of which five acres shall be cleared and brought Proprietors of the town of Pearsontown, for the space of five years, empowered to lay a tax, not exceeding one penny per acre, upon the unimproved land.

And at each of said meetings said proprietors shall and may choose a committee of three persons, which committee, or the major part of them, shall publish said tax, at the proprietors' cost, by posting up the same in said Pearsontown, and in Falmouth in the same county, in some public place, and by causing the same to be inserted in one or more of the Boston weekly newspapers, for three weeks successively; and in said publication shall require the owners of said lot[t]s to pay said tax to said proprietors' treasurer; and advertise a time, and place in said county, for the sale of so much of every lot[t], the tax upon which shall remain due and unpaid at the time appointed for such sale, as shall be necessary, in the judgment of said committee, or major part of them, to pay said tax, with charges of sale and conveyance: the said time of sale to be thirty days at least after such publication.

[SECT. 2.] And the said committee, or the major part of them, are hereby authori[z][s]ed and impowered, at the time and place advertised for that purpose, as aforesaid, at public vendue, to sell so much of every lot[t] there, the tax upon which, or any part of it, shall then remain due and unpaid, as they shall judge necessary to pay the same, with charges of sale and conveyance, to such person or persons as will offer most for the same; and to make, execute and acknowledge a good and lawful[l] deed or deeds for conveyance of the same, to the purchaser or purchasers, in fee simple; w[hi]ch deed or deeds, being also recorded according to law, shall be good and valid, to all intents and purposes, in law, for the conveying such lands to the purchaser or purchasers, his, her, or their heirs and assigns, forever. And said committee, or the major part of them, may adjourn and continue said vendue from time to time until[l] all delinquent owners' lots, or so much of them as shall be necessary, are sold, if for want of time or purchasers they cannot sell the whole on the day appointed, or they shall judge it for the interest of such delinquent owners so to do. And the said committee shall make out two fair lists of all lot[t]s, or parts of lots, sold, expressing the sums they sold for, and to whom they were sold, under their hands, or the hands of the major part of them, and deliver one of those lists to the said proprietors' clerk, to be filed in his office, and the other to the said proprietors' treasurer; also a fair account of the charges of sale and conveyance; and shall immediately pay over all the monies arising by such sales, to said treasurer, deducting said charges; said account[s] of which, they shall also deliver to said treasurer. And the said treasurer shall give them a receipt for said monies, and shall divide said charges among all the lot[t]s the whole or part of which were sold, according to the quantity so sold; and if the sum arising from the sale of any lot[t] or part of a lot[t], deducting its proportion of said charges, still exceeds the tax laid upon it, the said treasurer shall pay such overplus money to the owner or owners of such lot[t], if he or they demand the same in two years from the time of sale; otherwise it shall be for the use of the said proprietors, and appropriated to the same purposes with the taxes aforesaid.

Provided, always, —

Proviso that the owners of the land shall be allowed eighteen months to redeem it.

[SECT. 3.] That the owner of every lot[t] or part of a lot[t] sold, shall have eighteen months from the time of sale allowed him to redeem the same, and upon payment or legal tender, within that time, to the purchaser or purchasers, his or their heirs or assigns, of the principal sum the land sold for, with double interest, cost of recording the deed, and costs of improvements, if any there shall be, such purchaser or purchasers, his or their heirs or assigns, shall, at the cost of such owner, reconvey, by a proper deed, to be executed and acknowledged according to law, such lot[t], or part of a lot[t], to such owner, and in case of refusal, be liable to his action for recovery of the same, with damages for his refusal. And the business of said meetings to be held by virtue of this act, shall be expressed in the application and warning for the same; and any other articles may be therein inserted upon which the said proprietors may lawfully act and vote. [Passed June 13.

Preamble. 1777-78, chap. 27.

Whereas it appears to this court that the time limitted, by a late act, for prolonging the time for calling in the bills of credit of this state, not on interest, was not sufficient for that purpose, —

[Sect. 2.] That the treasurer do forthwith send his warrant, directed to the selectmen or assessors of each town or other place, within this state, that are taxed, requiring them, respectively, to assess the sum hereby set upon such town or other place, in manner following; that is to say, to assess all male polls above the age of sixteen years, within their respective towns or other places next adjoining to them, belonging to no other town or place, including negroes and molattoes

* Sic: Alford.

(and such of them as are under the government of a master or mistress, to be taxed to the said master or mistress, respectively, in the same manner as minors and apprentices are taxed), at twenty shillings; and to assess the remainder of the sum set to each town (after deducting the amount of the sums assessed to the polls as aforesaid) on the inhabitants of said towns or places as aforesaid, according to the proportion of the just value of the whole real estate by each inhabitant of such town or place, respectively, possessed in his own right, or in the right of others, lying within said town or place, improved or not improved; and on the non-resident possessors of real estate, lying within said town or place, in their own right, or in the right of others, improved or not improved: saving all agreements between landlords and tenants, and where no agreement is, the landlord to reimburse one-half of the tax; and also on the inhabitants of such town or place, according to the proportion of the amount and just value of their whole personal estate, including money at interest more than they pay interest for, debts due to them, not on interest, monies of all kinds in hand more than they are indebted, and also the amount of the just value of all goods, wares and merchandize, stock in trade, vessels of all sorts, with their stores, appurtenances and appendages, plate, horses, oxen, and cattle of all sorts and ages, sheep, swine, grain of all sorts, and all kinds of produce of the land, and of all other property whatsoever (excepting hous[e]hold furniture, wearing apparel, farming utensils and the tools of mechanicks), of which they were possessed on the first day of November, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-seven, according to the price of such real and personal estate, on the said first day of November; and on the amount of their income from any profession, faculty, handicraft, trade or employment; and also on the amounts of all incomes and profits gained by trading by sea and on shore, and by means of advantages arising from the war, and the necessities of the community, according to the lists ordered to be taken for assessing the tax for which such lists were taken, — making such alterations therein as the present circumstances of any persons or the value of the several kinds of estate may require (or to take new lists if they shall think it necessary): likewise requiring the assessors to make a fair list of said assessments, setting forth, in distinct columns, against each person's name, how much he or she is assessed at for polls, and how much for real estate, and how much for personal estate as aforesaid; and if as guardian, or for any estate in his or her improvement, in trust, to be distinctly expressed; and the list or lists so perfected, and signed by them, or the major part of them, to commit to the collector or collectors, constable or constables, of any such town or place, and to return a certificate of the name or names of such collector or collectors, constable or constables, with the sum total to each of them committed, unto himself, some time before the thirtieth day of July next.

[SECT. 3.] And the treasurer for the time being, on receipt of such certificate, is hereby impowered and ordered to issue forth his warrants to the collector or collectors, constable or constables, of such town or place, requiring him or them, respectively, to collect the whole of each respective sum assessed on each particular person, and to pay in their collections, and to issue their accounts of the whole, at or before the first day of October, in the present year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventy-eight: provided, that the owners of unimproved land shall pay the tax that may be assessed thereon, though the same may not be in their [immediate] possession, any agreement between landlord and tenant, previous to the knowledge of this act made, notwithstanding.

Provided, nevertheless, —

[Sect. 4.] That the following persons; viz., the president, fellows, professors, tutors, librarian and students of Harvard Colle[d]ge, who have their usual residence there, and settled min[n]isters of the gospel, and gramm[e][a]r-school masters, are not to be assessed for their polls or their estates, unless their real estate be not under their actual management and improvement, or not in the parishes where they are settled; and also all persons who have the management and improvement of the estate belonging to Harvard Colle[d]ge, are not to be assessed for the same; and other persons, if such there be, who, thro'[ugh] age, infirmity or extreme poverty, in the judgment of the assessors, are not able to pay towards the public charges, they may exempt their polls or estates, or abate part of what they are set at, as they on their oath shall think just and equitable. And where no person appears to discharge the taxes on non-resident proprietors' unimproved land, to the collector, he shall publish, in all the Boston newspapers, three weeks successively, the names of all such proprietors, where they are known, with the sum of the taxes assessed on their lands, respectively, and where they are not known, the sum of the taxes on the several rights or divisions, and post the same in the town where the said land lays, for the term of one month; and if no person shall appear thereupon to discharge said taxes, in such case the constable or collector shall proceed to sell so much only of said uninproved land as will be sufficient to discharge said taxes and intervening charges; and, having given notice of the intended sale thereof, and the time and place where it will be made, in the same manner as is herein, above, directed for giving notice to the proprietors of their taxes, shall sell the same, at public sale, to the highest bidder, and shall give and execute a deed thereof to the purchaser, expressing therein the cause of such sale: saving to the original proprietor the right of redemption of any lands so sold, at any time within three years from the time of sale; and the same shall be reconveyed to him or them on paying, within three years, the sum such lands sold for, and twelve per cent interest on said sum.

And be it further enacted,

[Sect. 5.] That the several officers and soldiers now in the army, shall be considered as resident in the several towns and other places to which they belonged at the time of their engaging in the army, their absen[e][s]e notwithstanding; and the assessors of the several towns and other places in this state, shall consider such officers and soldiers as resident in such town or place, and tax them accordingly: provided, that such as are engaged in the Continental Army, for the term of three years, or during the war, be, and they hereby are, exempted from their poll tax.

An[d] be it further enacted,

[Sect. 6.] That the assessors of each town or other place, respectively, where new lists are to be taken, in convenient time before the making the assessment, shall give seasonable warning to the inhabitants, in a town meeting, or by posting up notifications in some public place or places in such town or other place, or notify the inhabitants some other way, to give and bring in to the assessors true and perfect lists of their polls, and of all the real and personal estate they were possessed of on the first day of November last, — viz[t]., houses, lands, and all real estate, whether improved or not improved, and the just value of the same, — to the assessors of the town or place where such houses, lands and other real estate lay; distinguishing those in the management and possession of some other persons, as also the amount of all their personal estate, including money at interest more than they pay interest for, debts due, not on interest, more than they are indebted for; and of monies of all kinds, in hand, and also the amount of the just value of all goods, wares and merchandize, stock in trade, horses, plate, oxen, cows, cattle of all sorts and ages, sheep, swine, grain of all sorts, and all kinds of produce of the land, and of all other property whatsoever (excepting hous[e]hold furniture, wearing apparel, farming utensils and the tools of mechanick[s]), more than they were indebted on the said first day of November, according to the current price of such real and personal estate on the s[ai]'d first day of November; and of the amount of their income from any profession, faculty, handicraft, trade or employment; and also of the amount of all incomes and profits gained by trading by sea and on shore, and by means of advantages arising from the war, and the necessities of the community; which they are to render to the assessors, on oath, if required; which oath either of said assessors are hereby impowered to administer. And if any person or persons shall, upon such notice given, neglect or refuse to give in to the assessors the list of their polls and rateable estate, according to the d[i][e]scription thereof before given, which they were possessed of on the said first day of November, or shall bring in a false list and shall be convicted thereof before the said assessors, it shall [and may] be lawful to and for the assessors, and they are hereby directed, to assess such person or persons, according to the best judg[e]ment and estimation they can form of the real and personal estate of said person, according to the d[i][e]scription before given. And if any person or persons shall not bring in a list of their estates as aforesaid to the assessors, he or they so neglecting shall not be admitted to make application to the court of general sessions, for any abatement of the assessment laid on him or them.

[SECT. 7.] And if the person be not convicted of any falsehood in the list, by him presented, of the polls, real and personal estate, such list shall be a rule for such person's proportion to the tax which the assessors may not exceed.

Provided, nevertheless,—

[SECT. 8.] That nothing in this act shall be construed to extend so as to require any assessors to assess any person, for an estate real or personal, in his possession, that is the property of the United States, or any of them.

Provided, also. —

And be it further enacted,

[SECT. 9.] That the particular sum assessed to each town or place, shall not be considered as the exact proportion of such town or place, but, being paid into the treasury, shall be placed to their respective credit until[l] the quotas shall be finally ascertained and adjusted agreeable to the settlement upon the next valuation; and if it shall then appear that any town or place has been assessed more than its just proportion of this tax, the surplus shall be deducted out of the sum at which such town or place [shall be] [has been] assessed in the tax next after such surplus shall be made to appear; and if it shall appear that any town or place has been assessed at less than its just proportion, such deficiency shall be added to the tax at which such town or place shall be assessed in the next assessment after such deficiency shall appear: said surplus or deficiency to be adjusted by the general court.

And be it further enacted,

[Sect. 10.] That where the assessors of any town shall assess the polls and estates of any person not belonging to any town, pursuant to this act, such sum so assessed shall be considered for the use of the state, and paid into the treasury, accordingly.

And be it further enacted,

[Sect. 11.] That the assessors of the towns of Worcester, Sutton, Oxford, Leicester, Walpole, Stoughton, Stoughtonham and Wrentham shall assess the inhabitants of the towns of Ward and Foxborough, and the constables or collectors of those towns, respectively, are required to collect the taxes laid on such inhabitants, in the same manner as has been heretofore done; the act for incorporating said towns of Ward and Foxborough, or any other act, to the contrary notwithstanding. CHAPTER 32.

AN ACT TO PREVENT THE DESTRUCTION OF SALMON AND OTHER FISH IN AGAWAM OR WESTFIELD RIVER.

Preamble.

WHEREAS the salmon and other fish taken in Agawam River, have been of great service to the inhabitants of some part of this state, and still will be so if due care is taken to prevent the unnecessary destruction thereof; and whereas, by the constant fishing with seines, net[t]s and pots, and by erecting wears and other incumbrances there, to prevent the passage and facilitate the taking of the fish, they are greatly diminished, and there is danger of their being wholly destroyed; therefore, —

Be it enacted by the Council and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, Certain times allowed to catch fish.

[SECT. 1.] That no person or persons whatsoever be allowed, from and after the fifteenth day of March next, and so during the continuance of this act, to catch salmon or other fish, of any kind whatsoever, with seines, net[t]s or pot[t]s, in any part of Agawam or Westfield River, or in any of the rivers or streams running into said river, oftener than three days in a week: the days to be Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, in every week: and if any person or persons shall presume to catch fish there at any other times than hereby is allowed, each and every person so offending shall, for each offence, forfeit and pay the sum of fifty pounds; and the same ne[t]t or po[t]t used in such fishing shall be forfeited. Penalty.

And be it further enacted,

[Sect. 2.] That all wears, fence-hurdles, and other incumbrances whatsoever, now erected, or that hereafter shall be erected, in any part of said Agawam River, or in any stream running into the same, for the stopping the course of the fish, or to facilitate the taking of them by seines, net[t]s, pot[t]s, or otherwise, be deemed common nuisances, and as such shall be pulled down and demolished; and all persons that hereafter shall erect any such wears, fences, or other incumbrances, or that shall continue any such already erected, on due conviction thereof, shall forfeit and pay the sum of thirty pounds. Penalty for erecting weirs, fences and other incumbrances.

And whereas it is found that fishing at the mouth or entrance of said river Agawam into the great, or Connecticut, River, and in the mouth or entrance of the rivers and streams that run into said Agawam River, and in the ponds from which said streams issue, prevents the said salmon, shad and alewives from going into said rivers and streams, and so into the ponds above, to cast their spawn, and tends to destroy the increase of said fish; therefore, —

Be it enacted,

[Sect. 3.] That no person or persons, from and after the said fifteenth day of March next, shall, at any time during the continuance of this act, catch, or attempt to catch, any salmon, shad or alewives, with seines, net[t]s or pot[t]s, at the mouth or entrance of said Agawam River into Connecticut River, — nor in said Connecticut River, within forty rods of the south side of the mouth of said Agawam River, or within ten rods of the north side of the mouth of said Agawam River, — nor anywhere in said river Agawam, between the mouth of said river and ten rods west of Mitteneague Falls, so called, nor within twenty rods of the mouth or entrance of any river or stream that runs into said Agawam or Westfield River, nor in any of the ponds from which said streams may issue. And if any person or persons shall presume to catch any of the above-mentioned salmon, shad or alewives, otherwise than is hereby allowed, each and every person so offending shall, upon due conviction thereof, forfeit and pay the sum of fifty pounds for each offence. Penalty for breach of this act.

And be it further enacted,

[Sect. 4.] That all fines and forfeitures incurred by any breach of this act shall and may be recovered by action or information, in any of the courts of record within the county where such offence shall be committed: one moiety thereof to be paid into the county treasury, to be appropriated for the payment of the necessary charges of the county, the other moiety to him or them who shall commence the prosecution by action or information; and all offences for fishing, or obstructing the course of the fish, contrary to this act, shall and may be presented by the grand jurors for the respective counties where the offence is committed: and the said grand jurors are hereby enjoined dil[l]igently to inquire after, and duly to present such offences. How fines may be recovered.

[Sect. 5.] This act to continue and be in force five years from and after the said fifteenth day of March next, and no longer. Limitation.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid,

[Sect. 2.] That the treasurer do forthwith send his warrants, directed to the selectmen or assessors of each town or other place, within this state, that are taxed, requiring them, respectively, to assess the sum hereby set upon such town or other place, in manner following; that is to say, to assess all the male polls above the age of sixteen years, within their respective towns or other places next adjoining to them, belonging to no other town or place, including negroes and molattoes (and such of them as are under the government of a master or mistress, to be taxed to the said master or mistress, respectively, in the same manner as minors and apprentices are taxed), at three pounds twelve shillings; provided, that in any town or other place where the sum hereby ordered to be set on the polls therein shall exceed one-third of the tax set on such town or other place, the assessors in such town or other place shall lower the said poll tax, so as to make the sum to be raised on the polls as near as may be to one-third of the tax set on such town or other place; and to assess the remainder of the sum set to each town (after deducting the amount of the sums assessed to the polls as aforesaid) on the inhabitants of said towns or places as aforesaid, according to the proportion of the just value of the whole real estate by each inhabitant of such town or place, respectively, possessed in his own right, or in the right of others, lying within said town or place, improved or not improved; and on the non-resident possessors of real estates, lying within said town or place, in their own right, or in the right of others, improved or not improved: saving all agreements between landlords and tenants, and where no agreement is, the landlord to reimburse one-half of the tax; and also on the inhabitants of such town or place, according to the proportion of the amount and just value of their whole personal estate, including money at interest more than they pay interest for, debts due to them, not on interest, monies of all kinds in hand more than they are indebted, and also the amount of the just value of all goods, wares and merchandize, stock in trade, vessels of all sorts, with their stores, appurtenances and appendages, plate, horses, oxen, and cattle of all sorts and ages, sheep, swine, grain of all sorts, and all kinds of the produce of the land, and of all other property whatsoever (excepting household furniture, wearing apparel, farming utensils and the tools of mechanicks), and on the amount of their income from any proportion, faculty, handicraft, trade or employment; and also on the amounts of all incomes and profits gained by trading by sea and on shore, and by means of advantages arising from the war, and the necessities of the community; requiring the assessors in determining the quantity and number of the several kinds of property, and amount of the incomes before enumerated, to each individual belonging, to govern themselves by the return made into the secretary's office pursuant to an act intitled "An Act for enquiring into the rateable property of this state;" and to settle the value of the several kinds of property aforesaid, according to the current price thereof, in their respective towns, on the first day of February, 1779: provided, that if in any case the assessors shall apprehend there has been any material alteration in the property of any individual after making the above-mentioned return, before the said first day of February, 1779, they shall then call upon such individual to give in, upon oath (which oath the said assessors are hereby impowered to administer), a true list of their polls, and of all the property by them possessed on the said first day of February; and if any person so called upon shall refuse or neglect to give in, on oath, such a list, or shall give in a false list and be thereof convicted before the said assessors, they shall then proceed to assess such person, according to the best judgment and estimation they can form of the several kinds of property by him possessed, according to the foregoing description. And the person neglecting to bring in his list, as aforesaid, when required thereto by the assessors, shall not be admitted to make application to the court of general sessions for an abatement of the assessment laid on him.

[SECT. 3.] But if the person be not convicted of any falsehood in the list of the polls or real and* personal estate by him presented, such list shall be a rule for such person's proportion to the tax which the assessors may not exceed.

[SECT. 4.] And the treasurer in his said warrant, shall likewise require the assessors to make a fair list of said assessments, setting forth, in distinct columns, against each person's name, how much he or she is assessed at for polls, and how much for real estate, and how much for personal estate as aforesaid; and if as guardian, or for any estate in his or her improvement, in trust, to be distinctly expressed; and the list or lists so perfected, and signed by them, or the major part of them, to commit to the collector or collectors, constable or constables, of any such town or place, and to return a certificate of the name or names of such collector or collectors, constable or constables, with the sum total to each of them committed, unto himself, some time before the fifteenth day of April next.

[SECT. 5.] And the treasurer for the time being, on receipt of such certificate, is hereby impowered and ordered to issue forth his warrants to the collector or collectors, constable or constables, of such town or place, requiring him or them, respectively, to collect the whole of each respective sum assessed on each particular person, and to pay in their collections, and to issue their accounts of the whole, at or before the twentieth day of May next.

[SECT. 6.] That the following persons; viz., the president, fellows, professors, tutors, librarian and students of Harvard College, who have their usual residence there, and settled ministers of the gospel, and grammer-school masters, are not to be assessed for their polls or their estates, unless their real estates be not under their actual management and improvement, or in the parishes where they are settled; and also all persons who have the management and improvement of the estate belonging to Harvard College, are not to be assessed for the same; and other persons, if such their be, who, through age, infirmity or extreme poverty, in the judgment of the assessors, are not able to pay towards the public charges, they may exempt their polls or estates, or abate part of what they are set at, as they on their oath shall think just and equitable. And where no person appears, to discharge the taxes on non-resident proprietors' unimproved land, to the collector, he shall publish, in two of the Boston newspapers; viz., the "Continental Journal" and "Boston Gazette," three weeks successively, the names of all such proprietors, where they are known, with the sum of the taxes assessed on their lands, respectively, and where they are not known, the sum of the taxes on the several rights or divisions, and post the same in the town where the said land lays, for the term of one month; and if no person shall appear thereupon to discharge said taxes, in such case the constable or collector shall proceed to sell so much only of said unimproved land as will be sufficient to discharge said taxes and intervening charges; and, having given notice of the intended sale thereof, and the time and place where it will be made, in the same manner as is herein, above, directed, for giving notice to the proprietors of their taxes, shall sell the same, at public sale, to the highest bidder, with power to adjourn, from day to day, if necessary, to compleat said sale, not to exceed three days,* and shall give and execute a deed thereof to the purchaser, expressing therein the cause of such sale: saving to the original proprietor the right of redemption of any lands so sold, at any time within three years from the time of sale; and the same shall be reconveyed to him or them on paying, within three years, the sum such lands sold for, and twelve per cent annual interest on said sum, together with all intervening taxes thereon.

And be it further enacted,

[Sect. 7.] That the several officers and soldiers now in the army shall be considered as resident in the several towns and other places to which they belonged at the time of their engaging in the army, their absence notwithstanding; and the assessors of the several towns and other places in this state, shall consider such officers and soldiers as resident in such town or place, and tax them accordingly: provided, that such as are engaged in the Continental Army for the term of three years, or during the war, be, and they hereby are, exempted from their poll tax.

And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid,

[Sect. 8.] That if any town or plantation within this state, shall chuse to raise a larger sum than that set against such town or plantation, in every such case the assessors of every such town or plantation are hereby fully impowered to assess, upon the inhabitants, any sum agreed on in legal town meeting, over and above the sum laid on them by this act, in the same manner and by the same rules laid down in this act; and any sum so raised and paid into the treasury shall be carried to the credit of such towns or plantations, respectively.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid,

[Sect. 9.] That all town and county rates that may be ordered after the passing this act, and before the passing another tax act, shall be taxed and assessed by the rules hereinbefore given.

Provided, also, —

And be it further enacted,

[Sect. 10.] That the particular sum assessed to each town or place, shall not be considered as the exact proportion of such town or place, but, being paid into the treasury, shall be placed to their respective credit until the quotas shall be finally ascertained and adjusted agreeable to the valuation now prepairing; and if it shall then appear that any town or place has been assessed more than its just proportion of this tax, the surplus shall be deducted out of the sum at which such town or place has been assessed in the tax next after such surplus shall be made to appear; and if it shall appear that any town or place has been assessed at less than its just proportion, such deficiency shall be added to the tax at which such town or place shall be assessed in the next assessment after such deficiency shall appear: said surplus or deficiency to be adjusted by the general court.

And be it further enacted,

[Sect. 11.] That the assessors of the towns of Worcester, Sutton, Oxford and Liecester, in the county of Worcester, shall tax such of the inhabitants of the town of Ward, in said county, as were inhabi-

AN ACT FOR CONFISCATING THE ESTATES OF CERTAIN PERSONS COMMONLY CALLED ABSENTEES.

Preamble. 1 Mass., 360. 2 Mass., 236, 244. 4 Mass., 299.

WHEREAS* every government hath a right to command the personal services of all its members whenever the exigencies of the state shall require it, especially in times of an impending or actual invasion, no member thereof can then withdraw himself from the jurisdiction of the government, and thereby deprive it of the benefit of his personal services, without justly incurring the forfeiture of all his property, rights and liberties, holden under and derived from that constitution of government to the support of which he hath refused to afford his aid and assistance; and whereas the king of Great Britain did cause the parliament thereof to pass divers acts in direct violation of the fundamental rights of the people of this and of the other United States of America, particularly one certain act to vacate and annul the charter of this government, — the great compact made and agreed upon between his royal predecessors and our ancestors, — and one other act, declaring the people of said states to be out of his protection; and did also levy war against them for the purpose of erecting and establishing an arbitrary and d[i][e]spotic government over them; whereupon, it became the ind[e][i]spensable duty of all the people of said states forthwith to unite in defence of their common freedom, and, by arms, to oppose the fleets and armies of the said king; yet, nevertheless, divers of the members of this and of the other United States of America, evil[l]y disposed, or regardless of their duty towards their country, did withdraw themselves from this and other of the said United States, into parts and places under the acknowledged authority and dominion of the said king of Great Britain, or into parts and places within the limits of the said states but in the actual possession and under the power of the fleets or armies of the said king, thereby abandoning the liberties of their country, seeking the protection of the said king, and of his fleets or armies, and aiding or giving encouragement and countenance to their operations against the United States aforesaid, —

† Be it enacted by the Council and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, Persons who have aided and assisted the enemy since the 19th of April, 1775, and have withdrawn themselves, to be considered as aliens.

[SECT. 1.] That every inhabitant and member of the late province, now state, of Massachusetts Bay, or of any other of the late provinces or colonies, now United States of America, who, since the nineteenth day of April, Anno Domini one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five, hath levied war, or conspired to levy war, against the government and people of any of the said provinces or colonies, or United States, or who hath adhered to the said king of Great Britain, his fleet or armies, — enemies of the said provinces or colonies, or United States, — or hath given to them aid or comfort, or who, since the said nineteenth day of April, Anno Domini one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five, hath withdrawn, without the permission of the legislative or executive authority of this or some other of the said United States, from any of the said provinces or colonies, or United States, into parts and places under the acknowledged authority and dominion of the said king of Great Britain, or into any parts or places within the limits of any of the said provinces, colonies, or United States, being in the actual possession and under the power of the fleets or armies of the said king; or who, before the said nineteenth day of April, A[nno] D[omini] one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five, and after the arrival of Thomas Gage, Esq[uire], late commander-in-chief of all his Brit[t]an[n]ic[k] majesty's forces in North America, at Boston, the metropolis of this state, did withdraw from their usual places of habitation within this state, into the said town of Boston, with an intention to seek and obtain the protection of the said Thomas Gage and of the said forces then and there being under his command, and who hath died in any of the said parts or places, or hath not returned into some one of the said United States and been received as a subject thereof, and, if required, taken an oath of allegiance to such states, shall be held, taken, deemed and adjudged to have freely renounced all civil and political relation to each and every of the said United States, and be considered as an alien.

* And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid,

[Sect. 2.] That all the goods and chatt[l]e[l]s, rights and credits, lands, tenements and hereditaments, of every kind, of which any of the persons hereinbefore described were seized or possess[e]d, or were entitled to possess, hold, enjoy or demand, in their own right, or which any other person stood or doth stand seized or possess[e]d of, or are, or were, entitled to have or demand, to and for their use, benefit and behoof, shall escheat, enure and accrue to the sole use and benefit of the government and people of this state; — and are accordingly hereby declared so to escheat, enure and accrue. Estates of persons described, shall escheat, enure and accrue to the full use and benefit of the government and people of this state.

Provided, always, —

[Sect. 3.] That the escheat shall not be construed to extend to, or operate upon, any goods, chatt[l]e[l]s, rights, credits, lands, tenements [or] [and] hereditaments, of which the persons aforedescribed, or some other in their right, and to their use, have not been seized or possessed (or were intitled to be seized or possessed of, or to have or demand as aforesaid), since the nineteenth day of April, Anno Domini one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five, and at or after the time of the offence committed. Proviso.

And whereas it is necessary that some mode of trial should be instituted whereby to determine what estates are forfeited and do escheat by force of this act, and whereby those persons who may be accused of offences in this act described may have their property defended in the best manner that their situation will admit of, —

[Sect. 4.] That the attorney-general of this state, or such other person as he shall especially appoint for that purpose, may and shall exhibit to the justices of any inferior court of common pleas, for any county within this state wherein such estate lies, a complaint against any person who hath offended in manner, before, in this act, described, and who, at the time of such offence committed (or at any time, whereby the same is or may be forfeitable, according to this act), owned or held any lands, tenements or chattels-real, whatsoever, within such county, therein setting forth, clearly and plainly, the offence such person is charged with, and a full and true description of the estate in such complaint demanded as forfeited and escheated; and the justices of the same court shall thereupon continue the same suit to the Attorney-general to exhibit to the justices of inferior courts of common pleas within this state, complaints against persons so described.

NOTES. — The sessions of the General Court this year were held at Boston. The second session was held after a prorogation and several adjournments. The third and fourth sessions were held by adjournment. In the printed resolves the date of the beginning of the fourth session is erroneously given as Wednesday, April 6th, whereas Wednesday fell on the 7th, which corresponds with the date as given in the journals of both branches.

All the acts of this year were printed — chapters 12 and 39 separately; and the engrossments of all are preserved, those from chapter 17 onward (except chapter 39, part of which is missing) being on parchment. All the engrossed bills were signed by fifteen or more of the Council.

The following is the title of the only private act passed this year: —

"An Act for Naturalizing Peter Landais, Esquire."— [Passed October 15.

Chap. 1. On the thirtieth of January, 1766, sundry inhabitants of Wrentham, Stoughtonham and Walpole presented a petition to the General Court, "Setting forth that by Reason of their distance from any place of public worship, they have erected the frame of a Meeting House, for their better Accommodation. And praying that they may be erected into a seperate town, District, or Precinct, according to certain Bounds mentioned, in their said Petition, by which means Seventy three Families, will be so accommodated, as that only three or four of them, will be above three miles distant from the Centre, where the sd Frame is erected." *

On this petition, which has not been found in the state archives, an order of notice was issued to the town of Stoughton, and the other places above mentioned, returnable on the second Thursday of the next session of the Legislature.

The town of Wrentham, agreeably to an article in the warrant for the March meeting of its inhabitants, voted, at the meeting held March 7, 1766, "to choose a committee to espouse the town's cause with respect to the aforesaid petition," and Messrs. Jabez Fisher, Jeremiah Day and Lemuel Kollock were chosen for that purpose. At an adjourned meeting, on the 17th of March, the town passed the following vote: —

* Council Records, vol. XXVI., p. 147.

"Voted that the Comtee Chosen to make answer at the General Court on the Second Thursday of their Next Sessions, to the Petiti of Samuel Pettee and others be Directed to observe the following directions: and if the petitioners will Comply to the following proposals, not to make any answer to said Petition. Otherwise to give the following Reasons together with such others as may appear to said Comtee to be Reasonable.—

1st that said petitioners take no more of the Inhabitants of this town than such as are Willing to go—

2ly that they return Such Money as the Town have Expended on said tract of land so petitioned for since their Annextion to this Town—

3ly that they take no part of the Publick Money of this Town—

4ly that they take the poor if any their be that Originated on said tract of land—

5ly that if they go of to a District or Parish that they be not Called of this Town—

6ly that the line so Petitioned for Come not two near the Meeting House in the first Parish in this Town." — Wrentham Town Records, vol. IV.

On the fifth of June, following, the above petition, together with the answers which had been received thereto, was referred to a joint committee, and two days later, upon the report of this committee the petition was dismissed.

On the tenth of June, 1768, another petition, was presented by "Samuel Pettee and others inhabitants of Wrentham, Stoughtonham and Walpole," setting forth, "That by reason of their situation they are put to great difficulties to attend the public Worship in the several Towns they respectively belong to, they living from four to eight miles distant. And praying that they may be incorporated into a separate Town or District by certain metes and bounds in said Petition mentioned; and that as all the Lands within the said Bounds were originally a part of Dorchester, further praying that they may have their proportionable part of the public monies & Lands originally belonging to the said Town." *

Notice upon this petition, the original of which has not been found, was ordered to be served upon the places named, returnable on the second Wednesday of the next session of the Assembly.

Before this application was made to the General Court, William Hewes and others had requested of the town to be set off "according to their former petition (exclusive of the money they then asked for) as a township, district or precinct, or to join with them in sending for a court's committee to settle the affair as they shall see fit," and the town at an adjourned annual meeting held March 8, 1768, passed the following vote, an article upon the subject having been inserted in the warrant: —

"the Petition of William Hews & others being again brought under Consideration—

for the Comtee were Chosen, Capt Simon Slocom, Mr Samll Lethbridge, Mr Ezra Blake, Mr Asa Whiting Levt John Hancock—

then the Meeting was adjourned for half an hour: & then met again & Voted that Capt Simon Slocom & others a Comtee Chosen to wait upon William Hews & others, who pray the Town to set them of as a Township District or Precinct, & Consider the prayer of their petition, Vew the Bounds prayed for, & desire the Petitioners to Asceartain the Same, Vew the lands affeted by said Bounds, make Such proposals to the petitioners Respecting said Bounds, or any other matter or things that may Affect the Town in that Case, & also hear any proposals made by the petitioners Relating to the premises, & make report to the Town at the Annual Meeting in May Next for the Towns Acceptance." — Ibid.

At the time appointed the inhabitants reassembled and the committee chosen as above made to them the following report: —

"To the inhabitants of the Town of Wrentham Assembled in town Meeting this Sixteenth day of May 1768

Pursuant to your Votes of the 8th day of March 1768. whereby your were pleased to make Choice of us the Subscribers to take under Consideration the Petition of William Hews & others, to Vew the Bounds prayed for & to desire the petitioners to Asceartain the Same, Vew the lands Affected by Said Bounds, & to make Such proposals to the petitioners Respecting said Bounds, or any other matter or thing that may Affect the Town in that Case, also hear any proposals made by the petitioners Relating to the premises, & make report to the Town at the Annual meeting in May next, for the Towns Acceptance—

We have accordingly attended Said Service, & on the first monday in April met with the petitioners on the lands prayed for, Vewed the Bounds prayed for, & after taking the affair under Consideration Informed the petitioners who were present by their Comtee that we Could not by any means, report to the Town in favour of the Bounds prayed for, & that because we thought it Came too near the Meeting house in the first Precinct in this Town, for as it appears to us by the plans that from the Meeting House in Wrentham first Precinct to flints Corner one of the Bounds prayed for, is but one mile & an half, but from flints, Corner to dark Swamp Meeting House is two miles & forty Rods, Whereupon Agreable to our Instructions we proposed to the petitioners a line which we thought might be more Agreable provided the Town Should think proper to Set them of, Viz, from Attleborough Corner a Strait line to Walpole Corner Which is East of flints Corner half a mile & twelve rods which makes it two miles & twelve rods from Wrentham Meeting House to the new proposed line, & from dark Swamp Meeting House one mile & an half & twenty eight rods—then the petitioners objicted against this new proposed line because it took mens Habitations on one Side & left part of their farms on the other Side which would make Difficulties in time to Come to Solve which this proposal was made Viz that if the line Should run thrº any persons home farm that the whole Should do duty on that side the line on which the mans Habitation fell, which was left with the Petitioners for their Consideration, but on the tweluth Instant the Petitioners Desired a Meeting, which we Attended & then Informed us that they Could not Consent to our Proposed line but Propose then to run from Attleborough Corner to the Croched Oak Standing by the Side of the way that leads by Thomas Mans to Stoughton & from said Oak to Walpole Corner—

Which line as appears by the Plan is Eighty Eight rods east of flints Corner & one mile & three Quarters & eight rods from Wrentham Meeting House, & from dark Swamp one mile & three Quarters & Thirty two rods—and upon the whole we are humbly of the Opinion that the Petitioners ought to be Incoraiged in their Indevours to Settle the gospel among them. & that the Town Signify their Willingness that the Petitioners be Set of into a Seperate District by Either of the lines menshoned that the Towns Shall think best, But are humbly of the Opinion that the line to run Strate from Attleborough Corner to Walpole Corner is most Equal & just & if the Town Shall think proper to Set the petitioners of as a Seperate District, that they take Ithamir Hills as their part of the poor of the Town—

All of which is Humbly Submited to the Town by us SIMON SLOCOMB, SAMLL LETHBRIDGE, EZRA BLAKE, JOHN HANCOCK, ASA WHITING." — Ibid.

Upon this report the following vote was passed: —

"Proposed to the Town, to Set of William Hews & others whose petition has been read to the Town, by Some line which the Town Shall hereafter discribe, that they may be incorperated, Together with others that may join with them, into a Township or District & the Vote passed in the Affirmative." — Ibid.

After an adjournment for half an hour the voters reassembled, some debate ensued, and the following vote was passed: —

"Voted that William Hews & others praying that they may be Set of from this Town to join with a Number of Inhabitants of other Towns, to be Incorporated into a Township or District be accordingly Set of for that purpose, by the following line. Viz—Begining at the Northeast Corner of Attleborough thence a Strait line to a Croached Black oak Standing on Dochester old line, by a Corner of Mr Brastows fence thence to Walpole Corner or Dedham Rock So Called, & provided this line Shall divide or Cut any mans lands, that those lands Shall be held to do duty on that Side the line that the propriator Dwells, and Said new proposed Township be held to maintain Ithamir Hills who is a neady poor person further it is Voted that if they be Set of as a Township or a district, that they be not Annexed to nor Called of this Town." — Ibid.

For some reason not discovered in the records, no further proceedings in this business seem to have taken place until April 6, 1771, when it appears that "the petition of Samuel Pettee and others" was revived in the House and a new notice thereon, and on the petitions of Eleazer Robbins and others, and William Paine and others, was ordered to be served upon the parties adversely interested, returnable on the second Wednesday of the next session. At a meeting of the inhabitants of Wrentham, duly warned, and held May 20th, Mr. Jabez Fisher was empowered, as agent of the town, "to give reasons before the General Court why the prayer of the petition of Samuel Pettee and others should not be granted, except the petitioners comply with the conditions on which the town voted them off."

On the fifth of June, 1771, the above petition, and the answers thereto, were read and referred to a joint committee, upon whose report, the next day, this petition, also, was dismissed.

In the May session of 1773, the subject was again brought before the Assembly, by the following petition: —

"Province of the Massachusetts Bay } To his Excellency Thomas Hutchinson Esqr Captain General and Governour in Chief in and over his Majestys Province of the Massachusetts Bay in New-England to the Honble his Majesties Council and house of Representatives in General Court Assembled in their session in May 26 AD 1773

On the eleventh of June, a joint committee, consisting of Messrs. Spooner, of the Council, and Rawson and Thayer, of the House, was appointed "to view the premises petitioned for, at the cost and charge of the petitioners, after notifying all parties interested to be present, if they see cause, and fully to hear them and report to the Court what may be proper to be done thereon." This committee reported, Feb. 11, 1774, "their opinion, that the prayer of the petition be so far granted that the lands included in the said petition, with the inhabitants thereon, be incorporated into a separate township, with certain reservations mentioned in said report." This report, the original of which seems to have been lost from the files, was read and accepted in the Council who voted that the petitioners have leave to bring in a bill accordingly. The House nonconcurred in this vote, and ordered the report to be referred to a joint committee, to take it "under consideration, together with the petition of Josiah Hodges and others, and report." The Council concurred in this order. To this joint committee was also referred, on the 17th, the petition of Joseph Everett and others, "praying that they may not be included in the district or town petitioned to be erected." The last two petitions have not been found in the archives.

The next movement for the passage of this act that has been discovered, was the revival of the petition of 1773, which was done by vote of the House, Feb. 5, 1778; and a joint committee was thereupon appointed, consisting of Messrs. Holten, of the Council, and Kimball and Singletary, of the House," to inquire into the subject matter thereof, and report what is proper to be done thereon. On the seventh, this committee reported, "as their opinion, that the further consideration of said petition be referred to the second Tuesday of the next sitting of the General Court"; which was done, on the same day, by a concurrent resolve.

In the mean time the inhabitants of Wrentham met (March 9th), and voted that their representative "be instructed to move in the General Court that this town be notified before that the petition of William Hewes and others praying to be set off from this town as a township, district or precinct, be any further passed upon."

The next record of proceedings relative to setting off the petitioners is the following from the minutes of the Council: —

"Apr. 14, 1778. Ordered—That Daniel Hopkins Esq with such as the Hon'ble House shall join be a Committee to consider the Petition of a Number of y^e^ Inhabitants of the Town of Stoughton and the Papers accompanying the same, hear the Parties who are now attending & report what is best to be done thereon Sent down for Concurrence came up Concurred with an amendment at A & Col^o^ Peck, & Cap^t^ Kimbal are joined read & Committed to the Committee on the Petition of a Number of Inhabitants of Stoughton with the Papers accompanying the same. Sent down for Concurrence came up Concurred with an amendment at A read & Concurred." — "General Court minute book."

The amendment proposed by the House changed the former of the above votes so as to include, in the reference to the committee thus appointed, a petition "from a number of inhabitants of Wrentham, Walpole, Stoughton and Stoughtonham."

This committee reported to the Council, "That a committee should be appointed by this court to repair, at the expense of the petitioners, to the premises, hear all the parties concerned, and report to the next General Court, on the second Wednesday of their next session, the propriety or impropriety of the said incorporation; and that the said petitioners serve all the towns and parties concerned, with a copy of this order, on or before the first day of May next; and that the petition of Eleazer Robbins and others, praying that they may be incorporated with the town of Mansfield, be referred to the consideration of the General Court, on the second Wednesday of their next session." This report the Council refused to accept; but ordered that the petitioners "have liberty to bring in a bill for the purposes mentioned" in their petition. In this the House concurred, and accordingly, a bill, with the title of this act, was brought down from the Council, to the House, April 27th, with a memorandum endorsed thereon, that it had been passed to be engrossed. After giving this bill two readings, the House ordered it to be "referred for consideration to the next session of the General Court."

On the third of June, 1778, the bill was "read a first time," in the lower branch of the new Assembly, and, on the next day, it was read a second time, and referred to a committee. On the fifth, it was read a third time, passed to be engrossed, and sent up for concurrence, and, on the tenth, it was passed to be enacted.

On the 5th of September, 1778, a warrant was issued for a town meeting to be held in Wrentham, on the 21st, to choose committees for the following among other purposes: under article 6, to settle with Foxborough the proportion, for which each town should be responsible, of the men hired or to be hired into the Continental service, and the cost of their families; under article 7, to ascertain what was due to the town of Foxborough on account of what was paid by the west precinct of Wrentham towards building a meeting-house, by their vote of March, 1764, and to repay the money; under article 14, to run the line between the two towns, in conjunction with the selectmen or others appointed for that purpose by the town of Foxborough. The following votes were passed at the meeting so called; and at an adjournment thereof, on the 29th, the consideration of article 14, was dismissed: —

"Voted that Mr. Bejamin Day Capt. Oliver Pond & Capt. Samll. Fisher be a Comtee to Settle with the town of Foxborough what shall be their proportion of the men that has or Shall be hired by this town to goe into the Continental Service for three years or during ther war, and what Shall be their proportion of the Cost of the families of those men who went into the Continental Service for the town of Wrentham—

IV.*

At a town meeting warned February 6th, and held March 1, 1779, the following report was read and accepted: —

"Pursuant to the 5th Article the Comtee reported as follows Viz. Although the actual settlement of the place is said to have begun in 1760, the proprietors commenced levying assessments for public charges as early as June, 1752. A fort eighty feet square, with two flankers measuring, respectively, thirty feet square and fourteen feet square, was completed by them in May, 1754, at their expense, and in this fort, for several years, a garrison of eight men was maintained at the expense of the proprietors.

From 1765 to 1768, assessments were voted by the proprietors, for the purpose of building a meeting-house and for paying the Rev. Edward Russell and the Rev. Timothy Brown, for preaching to the inhabitants. In October, 1768, the Rev. John Tompson began his ministry at Pearsontown. He accepted a call upon the vote of the proprietors offering, besides other grants of land and money, a salary of £80 per annum "from the time he shall be settled a Congregational minister there" until "there shall be fifty families there"

The following voluntary agreement was also signed by inhabitants of the township, towards the same object: —

This, the proprietors claimed, terminated their obligation to raise money for the salary of a minister, under their vote of October, 1768; but as they desired the continuance of the Rev. Mr. Tompson in the work of the ministry at Pearsontown, they voted, June 25, 1776, to direct their treasurer to pay him £25, lawful money, out of the tax voted at their meeting in March, previous, provided he would continue to officiate until April 29, 1777. At the same time they granted to the inhabitants, "for a place of public worship," the meeting-house, which, though not completed, had been erected at the expense of the proprietors.

The inhabitants, dissatisfied with this action of the proprietors, presented to the Legislature the following petition: —

"State of the)
Massachusetts Bay)

To the honorable Counsell & the honorable House of Representatives of s[d] State at Watertown in general Court assembled — the Inhabitants of Pearson-Town in the County of Cumberland & State afores[d] humbly shew — That in October 1768—17 Years after the Grant of Pearson-Town to it's Proprietors—s[d] Proprietors were pleas'd to settle a Minister in s[d] Township, & Voted to pay him his Salary till there should be 50 Families in s[d] Pearson-Town. In Consequence of the Destruction of Falmouth, a Number of it's Inhabitants fled from the Flames to s[d] Pearson-Town & helped the Proprietors to their 50 Families — Consequently in March last at a Proprietors Meeting they voted to support the Gospel in this Place no longer than till the 29[th] of April following, & further to distress us neglected to make the usual Provision for Repairing Roads. Your Petitioners therefore being reduced to this hard Alternative, either to be deprived of a preached Gospel; & endanger our Limbs & Lives by travailing over broken Bridges & unrepair'd Roads or to take upon ourselves an unsupportable Burden earnestly Pray that such Method may be Taken to oblige s[d] Proprietors to do their Duty, & redress the Grievances above mention'd as you in your Wisdom shall see best—And your Petitioners as in Duty bound shall ever pray—

Pearson-Town Nov[r] 8[th] 1776 — JOHN DEANE, DOMINICUS MITCHELL, PETER MOULTON,) In the Name & by the Desire of the Inhabitants of Pearson Town."—Ibid., p. 307.

Notice for a hearing upon this petition was ordered, Nov. 29, 1776, to be given to the proprietors, returnable on the second Wednesday of the next sitting of the General Court.

In the mean time (December 26th) the proprietors met and appointed a committee, consisting of Ephraim Jones and Theophilus Bradbury, to prepare an answer to the above petition of the inhabitants, and to request Jedediah Preble, Samuel Allyne Otis, Samuel Freeman and Joseph Noyes to present the same and to appear at the General Court, in their behalf. Under another article in their warrant, the proprietors voted to prepare a petition for an act of incorporation of their township. The advocacy of this petition they intrusted to the same committee — Noyes and Preble being then representatives from the town of Falmouth, and Freeman clerk of the House, and all of them proprietors of Pearsontown.

The following is the answer sent in by the proprietors: —

"State of the)
Massachusetts Bay—)

To the honorable the council & house of Representatives of said State in general court assembled

The proprietors of Pearsontown in the county of Cumberland in answer to the petition of the Inhabitants of said township humbly beg leave to say.

That although seventeen years elapsed after the grant of the township before a minister was settled there, yet no culpable neglect is justly chargeable upon them. Because, instead of building a house for public worship which would probably have been immediately destroyed by the Indians, they were obliged very soon after the township was granted to build at their own expense a strong fort eighty feet square with two large flankers one of which was thirty feet square & designed for a place of public worship and to rebuild it again, it having been burnt before it was quite finished, & to support a number of men in it, in addition to the garrison placed there by the province which was a safeguard not only to the settlers, but to all the inhabitants of this part of the country against the indians who had committed hostilities, tho war was not yet declared, nor was the township free from danger untill the peace in 1760, which not only retarded the settlement but renderd it imprudent to build any other house of public worship and considering the great expense before mentioned & the inconsiderable number of settlers occasioned by y^e^ danger of living there, it would not be reasonably expected that the Propr^s^ should procure a preacher. But altho a minister was not settled till October 1768 yet the Propr^s^ built a meeting house and expended near one hundred pounds for preaching before that time, & have since given the meeting house to the Inhabitants. They also gave the revd^d^ M^r^ Thompson the present Minister to encourage his settlement, twenty acres of good land mostly improved near the centre of the settlement and twenty six pounds thirteen shillings & four pence in Money and voted him eighty pounds sallery a year untill fifty families should be settled in the township & he moreover acquired a right through the township as the first settled minister and another right during his ministry, so that by the assistance of the propr^s^, & in consequence of their settling him, principally, he has acquired a very valuable farm there with a good house & barn upon it. And although the said inhabitants subscribed & promised the proprietors at the time of M^r^ Thompsons Settlem^t^ to pay them Twenty two pounds 2/8 yearly to ease them in part of the burthen of his sallery yet they never paid more than £34··3··8 in the whole, except which, the whole burthen fell on the proprietors.

The Inhabitants in their petition go on to say that y^e^ number of fifty families was made up by those who fled from the flames at Falmouth (which was in Oct^o^ 1775.) & that in March 1776 The Propr^s^ voted to support the Gospel in Pearsontown no longer than 29^th^ April 1776.—To this the proprietors answer that fifty families were settled in Pearson town before Falmouth was burnt, and that none who fled there, (on that account) were reckoned to make up that number & they cannot recollect more than three or four families now there who went from Falmouth after the burn^g^ of the town.—And that at said Meeting in March 1776 they not only voted six months sallery more than they were held to pay him by their contract made at his settlement, but also at an adjournment of that meeting voted him twenty five pounds more to encourage him to preach another year from & after April 29. 1776. & sent a committee to the Inhabitants to see if they would contribute anything towards his further support, but they discoverd very little disposition to do any thing about it, and have not since subscribed more than eighteen or twenty pounds as the Proprietors are informed.

The Proprietors are further complained of for not making the usual provision in March 1776 for repairing the roads. To this they answer that they had before that time expended large sums upon the roads, & that it was not with a design to distress the inhabitants, as they unkindly assert, but because they had done as much as they ought to do, & because they thought it but just the inhabitants who hitherto had done little or nothing, should take this burthen upon themselves. that they did not vote any more money for that purpose—Your Respondents further beg leave to add that so far from having a disposition to discourage or distress the settlers at Pearson town, they have on all occasions manifested a forwardness to encourage & help them. they have already raised & expended to bring forward the settlement no less a sum than two thousand one hundred & six pounds lawfull Money which is seventeen pounds & Eleven shillings to each right a larger sum than many of them lately sold for or would probably now fetch. seven hundred & seventy pounds of which have been expended to support the Gospel & several hundred pounds upon roads.

The Fort meeting house & incidental charges have consumed the rest. Moreover, besides many lots given away by private proprietors, The proprietors have granted away several hundred acres at least to encourage settlers. And perhaps, no other proprietors in this state have done & expended so much towards encouraging & promoting a settlement.

They farther beg leave to add that many of the settlers at Pearson town are forehanded men, have good farms & are good livers, and there are but few of them but what are freeholders with thirty acres at least, and if they are unable to pay so large a sallery as M^r^ Thompson reed from the propr^s^ yet y^e^ propr^s^ think them able to pay as much as he at present ought to be content with; and as the Proprietors are now drawing the last division of their lands, &·have already done so much, they humbly apprehend they ought not to be compelled to do any more.

They trust this honorable court, being a legislative Body, will not judge upon a contract made by the Proprietors with the minister of Pearsontown, nor compel them to make a new one with him, and that they will not lay a tax on their lands for his support or for mending of roads, more especially at this time when many non resident proprietors & others engaged in the service of their country will be in danger thereby of having their lands sold at vendue when it may not be in their power to prevent it & perhaps when they cannot know of it. But on the contrary they hope your honors will be convinced of the propriety & necessity of the immediate incorporation of said Township agreeable to the Petition of the proprietors herewith to be presented, which they humbly pray may be done & the Petition of s^d^ Inhabitants dismissed— And as in duty bound said Proprietors will ever pray &^c^.

BENJ TITCOMB. Prop^s^ Clerk in the name & by Order of The Proprietors."—Ibid., p. 320.

With this answer, the clerk of the proprietors wrote to Samuel Allyne Otis, who was a representative from Boston, and whose father was a proprietor of Pearsontown, that the time fixed was uncertain, "because the meeting of the General Court yesterday is only a continuation of the same session and not the beginning of a new one," and that "if next Wednesday is the time," the proprietors would be unable to prepare their evidence. He also gave other reasons why the hearing should be postponed, and added that the proprietors had "informed the Rev Mr. Tompson, agent for the inhabitants, that they cannot make and support answers before February 19th, next, and also that they intend to petition for the incorporation of the township and get the inhabitants notified to make answer at that time, so that by deferring both petitions to that time expense and trouble may be saved to both parties."

The hearing upon the petition and the above answer was accordingly postponed to Feb. 19, 1777, "if the court be then sitting, and, if not, on the second Tuesday of the next meeting of the General Court." To the same time, also, was made returnable an order of notice to the inhabitants of Pearsontown, upon the following petition: —

"State of the } To the honorable council & honorable house of Representatives Massachusetts Bay— } of said State in general Court assembled.

The Petition of the Proprietors of Pearsontown in the county of Cumberland humbly sheweth.

That they have at great expense, built and given the inhabitants of said township, a house for public Worship settled and supported a gospel Minister among them, cleard out roads & made Bridges & amended & repaired them, & done as much as they ought or were able to do to promote the settlement of the township; That there are now settled there between fifty and sixty Families most of whom are Freeholders and many of them have good farms & are forehanded farmers & good livers & well able to pay their minister a competent Sallery if not so large an one as he has received from the Generosity of the proprietors, yet such an one as he ought at present to be content with untill said Inhabitants shall be able to increase it, considering he has already principally by the proprietors assistance, acquired a very good estate in the township.— That the last division of lands there is more than half drawn already and y^e^ draught of y^e^ whole will soon be completed, so that they will be proprietors of common lands there but a little while longer and the Business of the propriety as such will soon be finished & closed.

Having therefore done as much for said Inhabitants as they ought or are able to do, The Proprietors humbly pray that the said Inhabitants may be obliged to support the Gospel there amend the roads & bear the burthens incident to towns corporate & that they may also be intituled to the privileges of such.and for these purposes the Proprietors humbly pray that said Township may be incorporated, and they as in duty bound will ever pray—

BENJ^a^ TITCOMB Props^s^ Clerk in the Name & by Order of the Proprietors." —Ibid., vol. 182, p. 44.

The third session of the General Court was adjourned Feb. 8, 1777, so that the business went over to the next sitting. It is impossible to ascertain precisely what further was done relative to this business, by the Assembly of 1776-77; but the following answer by the inhabitants remains in the archives: —

"The Inhabitants of Pearson-Town beg Leave to Object to the Incorporation of s^d^ Township for the Follow^g^ Reason The Proprietors have n^t^ fulfilled the Conditions of the Grant of their Township, there are but 54 Families & a No of them have no Estate—several at Pres^t^ resident here wait only for convenient opportunity to remove & of the Residue many are very poor & very few able to pay a Tax without being Distresst. there never has been raised Provisions enough for the Support of y^e^ Inhabitants the Proprietors have not built a Meeting House they have indeed put up a Small House 40 by 32, but it is neither wholly glaized Clapboarded nor the Floor laid. & Noth^g^ done within to render it comfortable to meet in for publick worship. They have indeed voted to give this Shell to the Inhabitants but on this Express condition that we use it for an house of Publick Worship so that if we find it Necessary to build a larger House we forfeit this— consider'g therefore the Negligence of y^e^ Proprietors in not building a Meeting-House, nor Introducing 60 Families into the Township—nor building a Griss-Mill. — & also the utter Inability of the Inhabitants to bear the Burden conseq^t^ upon an Incorporation we earnestly pray that the Incorporation may be delayed MICHAEL PHILBRICK, JOSIAH SHAW, PETER MOULTON } Committee of the Inhabitant." — Ibid, Pearson-Town Feb^y^ 10^th^ 1777

vol. 181, p. 326.

It would seem also by the following petition that leave was given to the proprietors, in March, 1777, to bring in a bill, but that no bill was brought in that session and that the matter remained unsettled at the opening of the next General Court: —

"State of the }
Massachusetts Bay }

To the honorable Council & hon^ble^ House of Representatives of s^d^ State in general Court assembled

The Petition of Jn^o^ Tompson of Pearson-Town in the County of Cumberland & state afores^d^ Clerk humbly sheweth that in November last the Inhabitants of s^d^ Pearson-Town prefered a Petition to the general Court praying that the Proprietors of s^d^ Township might be obliged to support the Gospel maintain Roads &c in s^d^ Township. as usual. By order of Court s^d^ Proprietors were notified to shew cause (sometime in January last) why s^d^ Prayer should not be granted. Your Petitioner agent for s^d^ Inhabitants set out for Boston to support s^d^ Petition, but met a Request from s^d^ Proprietors to delay the Matter till the 19 of February: previous to which Time, they would petition the general Court for an Incorporation of s^d^ Township & give the Inhabitants Timely Notice to answer. The Delay was agreed to. Accordingly s^d^ Inhabitants were notified to shew cause on s^d^ 19 of Feby (if the Court was then sitting & if not on the 2^d^ Tuesday of their then next Meeting) why s^d^ Township should not be incorporated your Petitioner again took his Journey & travaild between 20 & 30 Miles when he obtain,d Information of the Adjourn.

ment of the Court. this being the Case the Matter was to have been taken up about the 18th of March—Your Petitioner being then necessarily detained by sickness in his Family in his Turn, prayed the Proprietors to postpone these Matters to the Day after Election. to which they consented; & the Proprietors Agent engaged his Influence to this Purpose. Notwithstanding this Engagement, the Petition for an Incorporation was taken in Hand, the Incorporation urged, & the absence of your Petitioner used as an argument to proue the actual Consent of the Inhabitants to be incorporated & I am informed by sd Agent that leave was obtained to bring in a Bill for the Incorporation but that it is not yet done. Your Petitioner in the Name of sd Inhabitants prays that an Act for an Incorporation may not pass; not only because we, have never had an Hearing but also for the following Reasons Viz. sd Proprietors have not fulfilld the Conditions of the Grant of sd Township, which were to settle 60 Families build a Meeting House & settle a Minister. all within 5 years. It is now about 26 years & there are but few more than 50 Families reckoning Refugees from Falmouth. No Minister settled in 17 years after sd Grant. & he, (then settled) voted out of a living more than a year ago. The Meeting House cant be sd to be built; nor is the Fraim large enough for that Purpose. It is 40 by 32 Feet not wholly clapboarded Glaized nor the Floor laid. given (it is true) to the Inhabitants. But upon the express Condition that it be for an House for Publick worship, therefore forfeited, if found too small & appropriated to any other Use. The Inhabitants are absolutely unable to bear the Expence incident to Towns corporated. many are very poor, few able to pay any Tax without being really distresst. Your Petioner for the above Reasons earnestly prays that the Incorporation of sd Township may be delayed till sd Proprietors shall have ful filled the Conditions of the Grant of sd Township; & it shall appear to this Honorable Court upon a thorough Knowledge of the Matter, that the Inhabitants are able to bear the Burthen Consequent upon an Incorporation. & your Petitioner as in Duty bound shall ever pray —

Boston May 30 1777 JOHN TOMPSON." — Ibid., p. 327.

The above petition appears to have been presented June 2d, and ordered to lie. On the fifth, it was referred to a committee, consisting of Messrs. Spaulding, Whitney and Lewis, who submitted the following report, which was accepted: —

"The Committee Upon the Petition of the Settlers of Pearson Town & the Petition of the Proprietors of Said Pearson Town have taken the Same Under Consideration together with their Several Answers. And beg leave to Report—they Are of Opinion that it might be for the peace, growth, & well being, of the Plantation for it to be incorporated, Provided the Inhabitants Are Sufficiently Secured that their Assessors Shall be impowered for the Space of four years to make a land tax of a half penny ℔' Acre ℔' year on all the lands within the Township, with Sufficient Authority to collect the Same, to be for & towards the Support of the Gospel & repair of the roads, as it Shall be ageed upon from time to time by the Inhabitants After incorporation, the Agents for the proprietors Agreing to the Above proposals,—the Committee Submiting it to the Determination of the Honbl House whether it may not be left for the Consideration of the Settlers Until the second Tuesday of the next Siting of the General Court, As there is Some doubt with respect to the power of their Agent

This report elicited the following adverse petition from the inhabitants: —

"To the Honb'e Council & Honble House of Representatives of the State of the Masschusetts Bay in General Court assembled

Whare-as a Committee in June last appointed By the Honorable House of Representives of this State to take under Consideration the Petition of the inhabitents of Pearsontown and a Petition of the Proprietors of sd Township together with Several answers have reported it as their oppiaion that it would Be best to have the Town Ship incorporated provided a tax of one half peney pr acre might Be annally levyd for the Space of four years on all the lands in Pearsontown leaveing it to the Consideration of the inhabitents to the Next Sitting of the general Court. the inhabitents have taken sd Reopt under Consideration and Beg leave to replye that with difference to the oppiaion of the Respectable Committee we Cant think it reasonble to incorporate the Township at the request of the Proprietors. Contrary to the desire of the inhabitents to releave Sd Proprietors of a Burden which they ought in Justice and are Bound By Compact to bare,and lay it on the Shouklers of the inhabitents. it is Just that they Should pay a Consideration for their lands and this thay Contracted to do and till this is done we humbley Concive thay Cant with a good face Desire the incorporation thay Contracted to Settle 120 Familyes Build a meeting house and Settle a Minister allwhich ought to have been Done Ninteen years ago aCording to their own account of the matter. they have not settled half that number of Familevs. the meting house has nothing done with in and not finished with out their minister they Seported Seven years and an a half and then Voted that they ware nolonger held to Seport hijn. and have totally with holden his Salery and not with with standing sd Propiotors have done so little towards fullfiling the Condisions of the grant of sd Towship in their answer to a former Petition of the inhabitents they are pleased to inform the great and general Court that they have Done as much as thay are able or ought to do. it is Strange that thay should say thay have done as much as thay ought to do when thay dont pretend thay have done half so much as their grant requires thay Surely must be able while thay hold the town ship, thay have indeede repesented the Township as not worth so much as they have paid. Declare in the aboue mentoned answer that they have paid Seventeen pounds Eleven shillings, upon a right, and that Rights will not sel for much more than half that sum. when thay speak of Rights upon which thay have paid such a tax thay must surely be understood to meau whol Shares, when thay speak of rights sold thay must mean nothing but Comon and undevided lands after two divisions of the Best land, for it is Certain that the lowest that thirty acre lots have been sold for. for Sumtime Past is Eighteen pounds which is more than the whole Expence of a right and some allthough uncultivated have been sold for thirty pounds hundered acre lots have been sold for fifty and sixty pounds thay Close their anwer aboue refered to, with observing that thay had Near Done Deviding Land, and so Closed their Bussness as a proprioty and seeme Puzzled to levey taxes in future if y^ is a plea of sofient wate thay might have injoyed their Township and Saved nearely the whole Expence if thay had been so happy as to have Compleated their Division twenty years ago to Conclude these Remarks we humbley submit to this Honourable Court whether the Township ought to Be incorporated at the request of the Proprietors Because thay are unable or ought not in Justice to be at aney more Expence. with regard to our Selves we beg leave to observe that though an incorporation is accompanied with maney Priviliges yet we Cannot Conseive that it would be for the groth peece and wellbeng of the Township to Be incorporated in our infante State and take a Burden which those grown to maturity say thay are unable to Bare a incorporation would prevent our groth groth on two accounts first it would Dirve some of the inhabitents out of the Town Ship to ascape so heaver a tax and prevent others Coming in. Secondly it would Reduse the remaining inhabitents to great strates to repair and maintain Roads which have been Neglected By the proprietors tow years past Seport the gospel and pay other Town Charges Beside County and State taxes, and we are threatned By the back settlers that we shall be imeadetly presented upon the incorporation for the Neglect of the high-wayes. we have Ever With Chairfullness and dispatch furnished our quota of of Soldiers Since the Commensment of the unnatural war and are Disposed to pay our proportion of the public Expence But Cant so Chairfulley pay a Consideration for land, which the pro prietors enjoy therefore again request that the incorporation be posponed that the Prayer of our former Petition may be granded that the proprietors may be obliged to maintain the gospel and repare Road as usual however Relying upon the wisdom and integrity of the great and General Court Chairfulley hope to find Releafe and as in duty Bound Shall Ever Pray

The above petition was read, September 30th, and committed to Messrs. Williams, Mills and Jenkins. On this committee Messrs. Johnson and Coffin were substituted, Feb. 4, 1778, for Messrs. Williams and Mills; and on the 19th, Messrs. Davis and Boardman took the places of Johnson and Jenkins, who were absent.

On the 23d of February the committee reported, verbally, "that a bill be brought in for the incorporation of that place," and this report was accepted.

Notwithstanding this vote, no bill for incorporating the town appears to have been reported. The subsequent action of the proprietors justifies the inference that they were disposed to accept a bill less objectionable to the inhabitants than an act of incorporation but which would relieve them from the operation of the act of 1753-54, chapter 1, which made the first explicit provision for calling meetings of proprietors of common lands not belonging to townships, and for authorizing such proprietors to raise money for public charges. This act required assessments to be laid, proportionately, on the shares or rights of the proprietors; and as most of the proprietorship of Pearsontown had ceased to be an estate in common, by reason of partitions and subdivisions by conveyance in severalty, the method of assessment provided by the existing law was not conveniently applicable to the circumstances of the township.

The proprietors made the following application to the next General Court for the passage of a bill containing the provisions of this chapter: —

"State of the Massachusetts Bay.

To the honorable the Council and honorable the house of Representatives within and for said state in great and General Court assembled

The petition of the proprietors of a new township called Pearsontown in the county of Cumberland humbly sheweth.

That notwithstanding the considerable sums by them already expended, they have still occasion to raise monies for the support of the Gospel, making & repairing roads and bridges, running & marking the lines of their lots & other necessary Charges of compleating the settlement of that township; but that by reason of their having divided most of their lands there into lots & drawn the same, their former method by law prescribed, of laying taxes upon their several rights is become inconvenient, and where the same rights are owned by several persons, in several lots, may in many cases work injustice.

Wherefore your petitioners humbly pray, that they may be impowered to lay and raise a yearly tax not exceeding one penny per acre upon every lot of land there, except lots belonging to the minister appropriated to the ministry, or the use of a school, & every lot of which five acres shall be cleared & brought to fit for mowing or ploughing, for the purposes aforesaid for the term of five years next ensuing of which the present year to be accounted one— And your Petitioners as in duty bound shall ever pray &c

This petition was presented June 3, 1778, and referred to a committee, consisting of Messrs. On the next day, the bill was introduced and passed, in the House, to be engrossed, and on the 13th, it was passed to be enacted.

The resolve † referred to "for setting on foot a lottery," was brought in the same day. No report of the above committee has been found; but both the following and foregoing resolves were passed on the same day on which they were introduced: —

The foregoing petition, described in the House Journal as the petition of "Samuel Nash and others," was read in the House Sept. 23, 1777, and committed to Messrs. Ellis Gray, Joseph Simpson and David Jeffries, who reported verbally, October 21st, that the petitioners have leave to bring in the bill they prayed for. This report was accepted, but the bill did not have its first reading until June 18, 1778, and the next day it was passed to be enacted.

Chap. 8. The bill of this chapter was read a first time in the House, June 17, 1778, and was passed to be engrossed the same day. The next day the Council passed it, in concurrence, to be engrossed with an amendment striking out from the first and second lines of the preamble, as orginally reported the words "in the 4th year of William and Mary," and inserting instead thereof the reference to the Christian era, as it stands in the act.

Chap. 9. The following petition, and the record of the action of the General Court thereon, are given in full, because they were the foundation of proceedings under the act of 1776–77, chapter 48, which led to the enactment of the present chapter, confirming, defining and extending the application of chapter 32 of the acts of the same year: —

There was necessarily great delay in bringing to trial these and other persons committed for, or charged with, treasonable practices. Political dissensions which, during the Revolution, divided the people in Hampshire and Berkshire Counties more equally than in most other parts of the province, were attended, particularly in the latter county, with such acts of lawlessness as to disorganize the courts from the beginning of the popular resistance to Governor Gage. The April term of the Superior Court, at Northampton, in 1774, was attended by two justices, only, who, for want of a quorum, adjourned the court, by writ, under their hands and seals, to the following September; but the court did not sit again until a year from the time to which it was adjourned, — and at that and the subsequent sessions, which were not regularly held, but little business was done. The courts of general sessions of the peace were also entirely discontinued for a time, which caused the General Court to pass a resolve, in February, 1777,† directing the justices to hold their regularly appointed sessions, and recommending the people "to do all within their power to aid and support the civil magistrates in the execution of their offices."

On the tenth of May the necessity, for some purposes, of holding the regular sessions of the peace was obviated by the enactment of chapter 48 of the acts of 1776–77 which authorized the holding of special sessions for the trial of such town inhabitants as should be charged with being inimical to the safety of the state.

After the surrender of Burgoyne, the revolutionary committees in Berkshire, began to move more vigorously for the enforcement of the laws against the king's abettors and sympathizers. On the first of December, a memorial of Asa Douglass, in behalf of the selectmen and committee of correspondence of the town of Hancock, praying for the appointment "of a special court, to try a number of persons confined in the jails at Great Barrington and Northampton, for joining the enemy in the late battle near Bennington," was read in the House, and referred to a joint committee, consisting of Messrs. Porter and Clapp, of the House, and Sever, of the Council, "to consider the same, and report." This committee reported, a fortnight later, that the memorialist "have leave to withdraw his petition," which was accepted, and a vote was passed in accordance with the report. A month later, "Benjamin Gardner and a number of others, inhabitants of Hancock, now prisoners in Northampton jail," prayed the General Court that they might be liberated upon giving bond; but their petition was dismissed. These were among the prisoners ordered to be detained in custody by the resolve passed on the sixth of October.

In the mean time five persons were convicted under the act of 1776-77, chap. 48, by the verdict of a jury, at a special sessions of the peace held at Great Barrington, on the thirteenth of December. Two of these, — Elisha and Edward Martindale, had been arrested under the fifth section of the act, upon the complaint of the selectmen of Lenox, to William Whiting and Charles Goodrich, two justices of the peace, quorum unus; two others — John Borghardt and James Tyler, had been brought to trial upon the vote of the inhabitants of Great Barrington, under the first four sections of the act; and the fifth — Gideon Smith of Stockbridge, had been apprehended under the fifth section of the act, upon complaint made to Timothy Edwards and Jahleel Woodbridge, justices, quorum unus, by Samuel Brown, jr., and others. After conviction, the accused were sentenced to be sent to the Board of War, to be by them dealt with as provided in the fourth section of the act.

The release of these prisoners, by the Board of War elicited the following representation and petition: —

"To the Honourable the Council & house of Representatives of the State of Massachusetts Bay — We your Complainants for ourselves & in behalf of a large Number of People in the County of Berkshire beg leave by way of Complaint, to communicate our Sentiments respecting a Number of Persons, who not long since were apprehended in said County as Dangerous Persons, they had a fair & impertial Trial before a Special Court of the General Sessions of the Peace & a very respectable Jury for that Purpose, were found guilty after a lengthy deliberate & expensive Trial of such base, Wicked & inimical Conduct, that their residence any longer with us was judged to be Dangerous, wherefore by one certain Law of this State, made & provided for Transporting inimical Persons, The Court upon the Verdict of the Jury ordered Edward Martindale & Elisha Martindale, John Burgheadt 3d Gideon Smith & James Taylor to be conducted to the Board of War, under a proper Officer & a Sufficient Guard for that Purpose, now while we were Solacing ourselves, that Justice had taken Place & that the Sentence would soon be put in execution, & those dangerous Enimies restrain'd of their Liberty; we were at once surprised with the Disagreeable News of those Persons & a great number of others under like Circumstances being at full Liberty in the Capatal of this State, where their helish splean might have its full latitude, & while we were ruminating on the very disagreeable Tidings, behold a number of these Persons make their Personal Appearance in this County, we are surprised & in this Alarm are constrain'd to observe that we the People of Berkshire, by some of our former Representatives have been stigmatized & branded as being a Lawless and disobedient part of this State, while we essert that the hand of Violence was never lifted so high in opposition to the Legislative & executive Authority of this State as by those Diebolical emisaries who were sent to the Board of War, who are a disgrace to Humane Nature, Religion, Reason & every thing that is Honourable & praise Worthy in God's World of Intellegences, & all this in the Face of our supreme Authority, & those who are the vilest of Men escape with Impunity and unnoticed for aught we know; Now as faithfull Friends to the Cause of our Bleeding Country, we are constrain'd in this Way to call on the Wisdom & Segacity of our General Court, & we flatter ourselves we shall be heard in that behalf; We beg leave to give a fair but imperfect account of several Crimes, that some if not all of those Persons are guilty of, beyond the least possibility of a doubt, by a Number of Witnesses whoes truth & veracity will not be disputed. In the first place some of them are guilty of braking open Continental Stores & Stealing large quantitys of goods, to the amount of five or six Hundred Pounds & attempting to justify their Conduct by saying we had taken the same Goods from their King, & that they had as good or a better right to them than we, and also in a most private & designing manner with a Number of their Associates, collected in Great Barrington, when Arming themselves & disfiguring & painting their Faces, this Banditti entered the House of Timothy Youngloye, by Force, where there was a guard for the safe keeping of a number of inimical Persons who were legally apprehended, they assaulted the Guard, resqued the Prisoners & in the Scurmish, badly wounded the Officer, and many other enormities done & parpetrated by those Cruel and Blood thusty Tools of the Tyrant of Great Britain, and in this Alarming Situation, viewing ourselves neglected, have no other alternitive left, but to put forth every Manly exertion to restrain those Wicked & designing Men from puting into execution their Wicked & Cruel Combinations & to prevent their further disturbing the Peace & Tranquility of the People of this County, untill Law & the Civil Authority be found Sufficient to bring them & others to condign Punishment, which we most earnestly desire may be our speedy Situation, We have further to inform your Honours, that one of the Persons above mentioned, namely said John Burgheadt, has since his Absconding from the Board of War gone over to the Enemy & has since been taken in Taritown upon Hudsons River, in arms against us, of which Town the Enemy are now in possession & from late intellegence passing up the River And being in this Alarming Situation have taken up, Elisha Martindale above mentioned & restrain'd him of his Liberty, for the present, to prevent him from acting the same Villinous Part with the said Burgheadt; A Number of People from fifteen Towns in this County, being collected and now at the Town of Stockbridge appointed by their respective Towns, to consider upon the expediency or inexpediency of holding said Martindale in Custody & in what way & manner. And in the several Opinions & Debates, mention was made, that Justice Edwards would upon Complaint order said Martindale to be committed, the Question being asked, Esqr. Edwards, answered that he should decline doing anything in the matter for the present, on account of certain Intellegence that there was a perticular act of the General Court requiring the Justices as well as all other Civil & Military Officers, to take the Oath of allegience by the twentieth of March last,* but he declared at the same time, he was ready & willing to take said Oath (if there was such a one) & then to proceed in his Office, for which reason among others, it was determined by a large Majority said Martindale should be retain'd in the Custody of the People, and viewing all those embarris ments & Distresses which your Petitioners labour under, We most earnestly implore in this our broken & imperfect Petition that your Honours in your great Wisdom would prescribe & direct some mode of proceeding to releve the fears & distresses of your Petitioners in particular & the good People of this State in General which shall opporate speedily & effectually —

The above petition was referred, April 11th, to a joint committee, consisting of Messrs. Wood, Ely, Dix, Kimball and Pynchon, of the House, and Artemas Ward, Thomas Cushing, Joseph Palmer and Benjamin Austin, of the Council; and, on the first day of May, the following resolve* was passed, apparently, as reported by the committee: —

"State of Massachusetts Bay In the House of Representatives May 1st 1778

Whereas it has been represented to this Court that a number of Persons in the County of Berkshire that have been convicted as inamical to the United States and sent to the Board of War; have returned to the towns to which they respectively belong, Which causeth a very great uneasiness in the several towns in said County Therefore

Resolved that all such Persons in the County of Berkshire as have been Condemned and sent to the Board of War, as persons inamical to this and the other United States; and are now at large be and hereby are directed to be immediately taken up and confined in Close Custody By any of the Committes of Corespondence &c in any town in said County, 'till the further order of the General Court and the said Committes are also hereby directed to Continue in Close Custody all such persons condemned as aforesaid which they have confined without any law or order of the General Court untill the further order of the General Court. And the Clerk of the Court of Special Sessions before which such persons were tryed & condemned is hereby directed to transmit to the Sheriff of the County of Berkshire a List of all such persons as were Sentenced & committed by virtue of any Judgment of the Court of Sessions aforesaid And the keeper of the Goal in said County, is hereby directed to receive into his Custody all such persons condemned as aforesaid & retain them 'till the further order of the General Court." — Ibid., p. 421.

Before the passage of the above resolve, the Legislature made the following provision for bringing to trial, before the Superior Court of Judicature, the persons whom, in October previous, on the petition of the selectmen and committee of Hancock, they had ordered to be detained in jail until released by due course of law, or by order of the Council or of the General Court, and for the trial of whom, they had, in December, refused to appoint a special court, upon the petition of Asa Douglass: —

On the same day on which the General Court directed the recommitment of the prisoners released by the Board of War, the following resolve ‡ was passed confirming the clause in the resolve of October, which authorized the seizing and disposing of the real and personal estate of those who, by that resolve, were ordered to be detained as prisoners: —

In the first session of the next Assembly, the bill of the present chapter was introduced. The design of the act appears to have been to remove all doubt as to the validity of the appointment of the term for the trial of the prisoners held on the charge of treason, &c. The act of 1776–77, chapter 32, § 6, provided that the court should be held "within such county as the supreme executive authority of this state shall order and direct," and though there could be no question of the power of the whole Assembly to make this appointment, it was not so certain that the Council alone had sufficient authority.

The bill was read a first time, in the House, June 12, 1778, and there, four days later, it was passed to be engrossed. It was then sent to the Council, for concurrence, where, on the 19th, it was passed, in concurrence, to be engrossed, with seven amendments by which the name of Berkshire County was added to that of Hampshire wherever the latter appeared in the bill; and on the 20th, it was passed to be enacted.

At the appointed term, twelve indictments were tried under the act above mentioned; and of these, the following; viz., Daniel Peirce and Richard Huddleston, of Tree's Grant, near Williamstown; Elijah Cunningham, Elijah Brown, Martin Townsend, John Franklin, Simeon Franklin, Thomas Rogers, John Gardiner, and Benjamin Gardner, all of Hancock; and Joseph Vaughan of Williamstown, — were acquitted, but severally ordered to be put under bonds for their good behavior, in from £400 to £800 penalty. John Pell of Sheffield, who had been indicted at the April term previous, and whose case had been continued to this term, was convicted of having "endeavored to persuade Asa Hiscock and Eli Lyon to enlist in the enemy's ranks," and was sentenced to be set in the pillory, at Springfield, one hour, at Northampton, one hour, and to suffer two years' imprisonment, and pay the costs of prosecution.

Chap. 11. On the 17th of June the House ordered Messrs. Bacon, Wales and Greenough to bring in a supply bill. On the same day a bill was reported, which passed through its several stages, to engrossment, during the two following days, and was sent up to the Council, for concurrence, with a blank left in the third section, for the date on which the tax of 1782 was to be paid into the treasury. On the 19th, the House sent for the bill, and returned it to the Council on the 20th, with a proposal to fill this blank with the words "the first day of July, seventeen hundred and eighty-three," according to the records of the Council. This however appears to be a clerical error, for the original bill shows the amendment to have been the substitution of the form in which the clause stands in the act, for the clause as originally reported.

Chap. 12. This tax act provided for raising the remainder of the $820,000.00 called for by the resolve of Congress of Nov. 22, 1777, the first instalment of which was raised by the tax act of 1777–78, chapter 26, as shown in the note to that chapter, ante.

Congress having required the fifteen battalions of the Continental troops from Massachusetts to be filled up by draught, the General Court, April 20, 1778, passed a resolve* for raising, "by drafts from their militia or some other way" two thousand men, who, by the same resolve, were apportioned among the several towns; and, on each town which should be deficient in its quota, a fine of £100 was ordered to be laid, in a subsequent tax act, for every man wanting to make up the number required. Besides the reinforcement thus ordered to be raised, thirteen hundred men were ordered to be detached from the militia to rendezvous at Peekskill, on the Hudson, and two hundred more to march to Providence, for the relief of Rhode Island.† To encourage the towns to raise their respective quotas, a resolve was passed granting £30 for each man so enlisted on or before May 20th, — the whole amount of this allowance to be deducted from their respective proportions of their next state tax.‡ Provision for effecting this deduction out of the tax laid by this chapter, was made by another resolve,§ passed on the 20th of June.

On the 18th of June, a bill for levying a tax of the amount ordered to be apportioned and assessed by this chapter,— the same to be paid before October 1st, 1778,— was ordered to be prepared and brought in by Messrs. Noyes, Gray and Wood; and, accordingly, on the same day, the bill of this chapter was reported, and was read a first time — the printed act of the previous year (chap 26) being used for the purpose, with the necessary alterations. On the 19th, it was passed to be engrossed, and sent up for concurrence. On the same day, it was passed to be engrossed by the Council; and, on the 20th, it was passed to be enacted by both branches.

The foregoing petition was read, in the House, and committed to Messrs. Kollock, Davis and Cutts, Sept. 16, 1778, and two days later this committee returned the petition and the accompanying papers, with a report that the prayer of the petition be granted and that the petitioners have leave to bring in a bill accordingly. This report was at once accepted, and on the 21st, the bill of this chapter was read a first time, in the House. Chap. 15. "Middlesex ss: At a Court of General Sessions of the Peace and Inferior Court of Common Pleas held at Cambridge in and for the County of Middlesex on the third Tuesday of May Anno Domini 1778

Henry Gardner, Josiah Stone, Oliver Prescott, Eleazer Brooks & Jonathan Brown Esqrs are desired by the Courts, to apply to the General Court of this State for a Law to hold the Court of General Sessions of the Peace & Inferior Court of Common Pleas, which by Law are now to be holden at Groton on the last Tuesday of November to be holden at that Time at Cambridge, and that those Courts now to be holden at Cambridge on the third Tuesday of May be hence forth holden at that Time at Groton.

Attt. TEAD MASON Cler." — Mass. Files: Bills, 1778.

A memorandum of the foregoing request of the court of sessions of Middlesex is filed with the bill, which originated in the Council. No record of any petition or proceeding relative to this act has been found earlier than the second session of the General Court. After two readings, and having been passed to be engrossed, the bill of this chapter was sent down to the House, September 21st, where it was read a first time, on the same day, a second time, on the 22d, and was passed to be engrossed, on the 23d. It was passed to be enacted, on the 29th, by both branches.

Chap. 16. "Sept. 24, 1778. ORDERED, That Mr. Gorham, Mr. Choate and Maj. Goodman be a Committee to bring in a Bill for lengthening the Time in which the Oath of Allegiance may be taken by the Officers within this State; and the Committee are directed to insert therein a Clause directing the Brigadiers to see that the said Oath is tendered to the Military Officers." — House Journal, p. 53.

In accordance with the foregoing order, the bill of this act was reported to the House, and there passed to be engrossed, September 26th, and was immediately sent up for concurrence. On the 29th, the Council concurred in the bill, with two amendments by which the last three lines of the preamble were added, except the first word "for" (which, in the bill as first reported, was followed by the words "that purpose," — stricken out by this amendment); and ten words were inserted after the word "prolonged," in the third line of the first section. The House concurred in these amendments, on the same day, and, on the second of October, the bill was passed to be enacted.

Chap. 17. On the 19th of September, the House passed an order for a joint committee, "to examine the temporary laws, and report a bill for reviving and continuing such as are expired and near expiring;" but the Council had already prepared such a bill, which, on the same day, having passed to be engrossed, was sent down for concurrence. The bill was read a first time, in the House, September 21st, and was passed, in concurrence, to be engrossed, October 2d, and, three days later, was passed to be enacted.

Chap. 18. On the 15th of June, 1713, six families in Newton, "lying next to the south part of Roxbury," were, by order of the General Court, released from ministerial charges in Newton, so long as they should continue to attend and contribute towards the support of regular worship in Roxbury.

In 1775, a similar movement was begun in the westerly part of Newton by the presentation of the following petition: —

"To the Honorable Council and House of Represent^{s} of the Massachusetts Bay in General Court Assembled at Watertown the 29th Day of November A D. 1775.

The Petition of the Subscribers Inhabitants of the Westwardly Part of the Town of Newton. Humbly Sheweth

That Your Petitioners and many others in s^{d} Westwardly Part Live at a great Distance from the old Meeting House (so Called) in said Town Who, with their Predecessors, had for many Years been put to Extraordinary Difficulty in attending the Publick Worship of God in s^{d} House Especially in Winter Seasons and they and their Families often Detain'd therefrom by Storms & bad Travelling, and in Order that they might oftner & with more Convenience attend Publick Worship, they Built a Meeting House at their own Cost more than Eleven Years ago, and Supported Preaching therein every Winter Since, and in Private Houses Chief of the Winters for about Thirty Years before which has been very Burthensome; and what has Added to their Burthen is their being Obliged to Pay their Proportionable Part of the Ministerial Taxes which a Number of Families at the Southwardly Part of the Town have been Exempted from more than Forty Years past who do not Live so Remot from s^{d} old Meeting House as a greater number of Your Petitioners; The which is Humbly Conceived to be a Cruel hardship, and Deprivation of a Privilege which they have been Compelled to allow to others

Your Petitioners while Labouring under these Difficulties and Burthens (too hard to be Borne) and Desirous that Peace and Unanimity might Continue in the Town, have Repeatedly applied to the other Inhabitants for Relief, humbly Requesting that they would bear a Part of said Burthens, but the Majority of them being so attached to their own Interest and Regardless of the Interest & Welfare of Your Petitioners that no help could be obtain'd, notwithstanding their Enjoyment of greater Privileges to Enable them (and their Superior Abilities, in general) to bear Publick Charges, as there now Remains no other Means to Obtain Justice but by applying to this Honorable Court Your Petitioners therefore most humbly Pray that Your Honors would be Pleased to Encourage their Enjoying that Invaluable Privilege of having the Gospel Dispensed to them at all Seasons of the Year for the Future, by Ordering the s^{d} Town of Newton to Grant a Tax Yearly for Defreying the Charge of Preaching in the Meeting House Built by your Petitioners as aforesaid in the Months of December, January, February & March annually, or otherwise as in your Wisdom shall be thought most Expedient, and Your Humble Suppliants (as in Duty Bound) shall Ever Pray.

ALEXANDER SHEPPARD JOHN PIGEON
ABRAHAM FULLER PETER DURELL." — Mass. Archives, vol. 157, p. 352.

Upon this petition the Council, in which branch it was first read, ordered notice to the inhabitants of Newton, to appear on the 26th of December, and shew cause why the prayer thereof should not be granted; but other urgent business of the session prevented further action at that time.

The project was renewed three years later, by the following petition: —

"To the Honorable the Council, & House of Representatives, of the State of Massachusetts Bay, in General Court Assembled at Boston January 14th 1778

The Memorial of the Subscribers, Freeholders & other Inhabitants of Newton in the County of Middlesex & State aforesaid Humbly Sheweth—

That your Memorialists & their Predecessors, being Settled in the Westerly part of said Newton, have labored under great difficulty for more than a Century past in Attending the Public Worship of God in the old Meeting House (so called) from the situation of the old meeting House aforesaid; being but one mile & 120 rods from the South East line of said Town, as appears by a Plan taken by order of said Town; and also by reason of the badness of Travelling being chiefly by lanes, which in Winter seasons are frequently rendered impassible—

Your Memorialists in early Day, being but few in Number, their Pacific Inclination prevented a Complaint of their burthens, about the year 1737 they being increased in Number; hired a learned Protestant Minister (by Subscription) to preach the Gospel to them during the Winter season; which method was pursued with Intermissions untill the Year 1762 without complaining or seeking redress—at which time their Numbers being greatly increased, did enter into a more firm Union for the support of the Gospel; did then engage the Rev^{d} Samuel Williams now Pastor of a Church in Bradford, for Two Winters—but a difficulty then arising, of obtaining a suitable place for Public Worship; which before had often been the case—led your Memorialists to consider of the Expediency of building a House suitable for said Service; as they were then so greatly increased in Number that no private House could conveniently contain them—did therefore in 1764 at their own cost & Charge; Erect a Convenient House for that purpose; on much the largest road thro, said Town—And nearly the same distance from the North-west Boundary; that the old Meeting House is from the South East Boundary of said Town; & as near the Centre of said Town into 70 Rods—as appears by a report of a Committee chosen for that purpose — who examined the Plan aforesaid in which meeting house they have had learned Protestant Ministers to dispense the Gospel to them every Winter since —

Your Memorialists being burthened as aforesaid and the Extraordinary expence of Supporting the Gospel, which for Sixteen Years last past; has been more than that of all the other Parts of the Town— did in November A.D. 1775 present a Petition to the Great and General Court then Assembled at Watertown Praying for some Relief of their great Burthen; having no other mean to obtain it—which Petition was read & an order Passed that the Petitioners serve the adverse party with a Copy that they Shew cause if any they have: why the prayer of of the Petition should not be granted—but important Public Business prevented a further examination—

Your memorialists being very unwilling to trouble this Hon^ble Court with a decision of a Matter (as we humbly conceive) so plain & obvious—did on the 8^th day of Decr last petition to the Town again for some relief but were again denied by a very Small Majority (as has usually been the case)—at this time we beg leave to observe that the Ministerial Taxes in said Town is not Two farthings on the Poll each Sabbath; and had we obtained the Prayer of our Petition would not have raised the Poll Tax to Three Farthings as aforesaid—the foregoing are facts we are ready to prove— And now having no other means whereby we may hope for redress, from our great Burthens; but the Interposition of this Honorable Court—

Therefore most humbly Pray, that your Honors would be Pleased to order, that a sufficient sum of Money be paid Annually out of the Town Treasury of said Newton; for the support of the Gospel in said Westerly part; or that our Ministerial Taxes & also the the Ministerial Taxes of such as live nearer the new meeting House aforesaid & usually congregate in said Meeting House be abated & that they be impowered to Tax themselves for the support of the Gospel—or that your Memorialists with those living within them may be set off from s^d Newton with Parish Priviledges— Or that your Honors would be pleased to Grant us such other Relief as to you in your great wisdom & Tenderness shall think most Expedient— & as in duty bound, shall ever Pray—

This petition was read, in the House, January 30th, when notice† to the "adverse party" was ordered, as on the former petition, returnable on the "second Tuesday of the next sitting" of the General Court. On the second of February this order was concurred in by the Council.

A committee chosen by the inhabitants of the westerly part of Newton, and consisting of several of the signers of the above petition, presented a memorial, the day before the hearing, setting forth the fact of the presentation of the petition aforesaid and reciting the order of notice thereon, and concluding as follows:—

"Your Memorialists have Complied with the aforesaid Resolve and served the Town Clerk of said Newton with a Copy thereof as directed But by said Resolve the parties are to attend this Hon^ble Court At the place where the Court shall then be Assembled; which place your Memorialists humbly conceive will not be so likely to obtain facts Relative to the premises, as it would be if the parties were to be heard in said Town of Newton—from these motives— Your Memorialists most humbly pray, that a Committee may be appointed (at the Cost & Charge of your Memorialists) to hear the parties in said Newton upon the Day before appointed, at such Place in said Town, as said Committee shall think most proper & as In Daty bound ever pray.—

} Committee for the Inhabitants of the Westerly part of Newton."—Ibid., vol. 218, p. 37.

Upon this memorial the House ordered that Mr. Ely bring in a resolve granting the prayer thereof, who, accordingly, prepared a resolve, which was accepted by both branches, in concurrence, appointing Messrs. Hall and King, of the House, and Whetcomb, of the Council, a committee to view the premises, hear the parties, and thereupon report to the General Court.

This committee proceeded, at once, with their duties. Meanwhile a committee chosen by the town of Newton to oppose the aforesaid petition, appeared, on the day appointed for the hearing, and filed the following objection:—

"To the Honorable Council and House of Representatives of the State of Massachusetts Bay, in General Court Assembled, April 14^th A: D; 1778,—

We the Subscribers being a Committee Chosen by the Town of Newton to appear at the General Court in the behalf of the Town to make answer to the Petition of Sundry of the Inhabitants of the Westwardly part of the Town beg leave to Say;—

* This name is obscure. † Printed resolves, chapter CII.

That we Humbly Conceive that a Draught out of the Treasury or to abate their Ministeral Tax would be unreasonable as it would Draw money from a great number of the Inhabitants of Said Town who live at a greater Distance from the old meeting house than many of the Petitioners Do,—and have Equal reason to ask the Same favour— Furthermore we Conceive the Estate of the petitioners is not one fifth part of the town,—we therefore apprehend that to grant the Prayer of the Petition would be greatly Detremental to the Peace and Unity of the Town which we Doubt not your Honors have So much at heart that it will have its Due weight with you—therefore we Pray that the petition may be Dismiss,d;—

BENJA HAMMOND JOHN WOODWARD JEREMIAH WISWALL." — Ibid., p. 35.

The following request was also made by certain inhabitants of the westerly part of the town: —

"This may Certify whom it may Concern that we the Subscribers inhabitants of the westwardly part of Newton living Intermix'd with those who have Petitioned the Honourable Court of this State to be Set off as a Parish—that we are against the Motion and pray that we and our Estates may not be Set off,—

Two days later, the committee last chosen by the General Court, made their report as follows: —

"The Committee of both Houses, on the petition of Alexander Shepard Junr & others, Inhabitants of the westerly part of the Town of Newton—Praying, that they may be impowered to draw out of the Treasury of said Newton, a sum of Money, sufficient to support the Gospel in said westerly part of said Town—be abated their ministerial Taxes, or be set off a parish—

Having been to said Town, heard both parties by their Respective Committees, & viewed the premises, beg Leave to Report, as our oppinion, That the petitioners, with their estates, be set off a parish and Endow'd with all Parish priviliges, together, with such other persons, & their estates, who are intermixed with them, & shall desire it, within six months, after the said petitioners, be set off as aforesaid— All which is submited

The General Court was prorogued on the first of May, without further action upon the subject of this chapter; but the matter was brought up in the next Assembly by a bill with the same title as this chapter, which was read, in the House, a first time, June 22d, and, on the next day, was passed to be engrossed, and sent up for concurrence. The prorogation of the Assembly, on the 23d of June, ended the business for that session; but at the second session it was revived by the following memorial: —

"To The Honorable the Council of the Massachusetts State Assembled at Boston September 16th 1778.— The Memorial of Alexander Shepard Junr Nathan Fuller Nathaniel Greenough and Benjamin Parker a Committee chosen by the Inhabitants of the Westerly part of the Town of Newton— Humbly Sheweth—

That said Inhabitants obtained leave of the General Assembly of this State, to bring in a Bill for setting of the said Westerly part of Newton into a Seperate Parish— In drafting which Bill great care was taken not to include any person, nor the Estate, or any part of the Estate of any person against their Will; whereby they should be Subject to a Tax in said Precinct— In drawing the line Your Memorialist began on one extreme part of the Petitioners for said Parish and run on a direct line to the other extreme of said Petitioners as no other line could be drawn without a very great Number of very different Courses,—We have included no one Farm or Family but such as were Intermixed with the Petitioners aforesaid, but had that been the Case and we had included Twenty More Families — we humbly conceive it would have been no other injury to any of the Inhabitants of said Town, but that of Lodging their Names in the Secretarys Office and the including non-Residents Lands, the former of which could be no great hardship, and the latter none at all—as not more than one third part of said Town is included in said Parish— Your Memorialists in a late conference with the Honble Abraham Fuller Esqr (whom we consider as one of our greatest opposers) requested that Gentlemans advice relative to said Bill—but he utterly refused it and said, 'I will have nothing to do with it; I dont choose to have my Land Taxed to the Parish, bring in a Bill agreeable to the Resolve & I have no objection' and at the same time acknowledged it, as his opinion, if we Formed the Bill agreeable to the Resolve we could not Tax the non Residents Lands; which we Esteem a Great Priviledge allowed to Parishes by a law of this State— If therefore we had complied with the letter of said Resolve, (with due defference) we conceive we should have run counter to the Spirit —

Your Memorialist's have offered the Comittee on the part of the Town a Conference in order to a Mutual settlement of disputes (if any) but they Evade it— from which we cannot but conclude the intent of the adverse party in endeavoring to protract the progress of the Bill, is, that they may obtain another Ministerial Tax on the aforesaid Petitioners—

As it is the wish of your Memorialists not to retain any Person in said Precinct contrary to their Inclination if there is any defect in said Bill whereby any Person who live on the East side of said line, or any part of their Estates may be subject to a Tax on the West side of said line, or any Part of the Estates of any of those on the West side of said line may be subject to a Ministerial Tax on the East side of said line— Your Memorialist most humbly Pray that your Honors would be pleased to make such Amendments or Proviso, to said Bill as may give free Liberty of Conscience to each party— And as in Duty bound ever Prays—

This memorial, together with a petition, hereunder given, from the town of Newton, was read, in Council, September 23d, and referred to a joint committee, consisting of Benjamin White, of the Council, and Messrs. Greenleaf, and Phillips of Andover, of the House, to consider the same and the accompanying papers, "hear the parties, and report what may be best to be done thereon."

The petition of the town of Newton, and the accompanying papers referred to above, were as follows: —

"To the Honorable Council and House of Representatives of the State of Massachusetts Bay in General Court Assembled Sepr 16th A: D 1778,

We the Subscribers being a Committee Chosen by the Town of Newton to make answer to the Petition of Sundry Inhabitants of the westwardly Part of Said Town Relative to there being Set off into a Separate Precint begg leave to Object against a bill Exhibited to this Honorable Court in June last for the Purpose afforesaid

1 Because we apprehend Said bill is not Agreeable to the report of the Committee and Resolve of this Honorable Court upon the Same,

2d as it will Take in large Tracts of land belonging to men Living on the East Side of the line fixt in Said bill And as the bill now Stands we Apprehend Said Land is liable to be taxt to Said Precint which we View as a grievance,

3d As it takes in a Valuable woodlot Call,d the Church Lot which we Apprehend ought to be Exempt out of Said Precint, and no Provision is made therefor in Said Bill,

For these and other Reasons we Begg the favour of being heard by this Honorable Court before Said bill passes Into a Law. BENJA HAMMOND } Committee." — Ibid.

The Committee appointed to take into consideration a Resolve of Congress, recommending to the legislature of the several States to refrain from further emissions of Bills of credit, small bills for change under a dollar excepted,—report as their opinion, that it would be advantageous to the State to emit, as soon as may be, ten thousand pounds in bills of the twelve lowest denominations in the emission last made by this State."—Mass. Archives, vol. 216, p. 324.

This bill provided for the issue of 14,572 bills of credit, of the same denominations as required by the present chapter and amounting in value to £13,600. 1*s*. 8*d*. for the redemption of all the Massachusetts bills of credit bearing date June 18, 1776, and under the denomination of six shillings; for which the treasurer was also authorized to give bills of credit of the United States. These bills were to be printed from new plates, with a "handsome border;" and the value of each bill was to be expressed on its face "in several places;" and on its back, the value was also to be printed, with "suitable ornaments, in metal type." A new committee was to be appointed to sign these bills. The bill also embraced provisions similar to those of sections 6, 7 and 8, and the clauses in sections 3 and 4 relative to the receiving the bills into the public treasury in all public payments; and to the delivery of the bills, when printed, to the treasurer, and to the compensation of the committee. The provisions of the last four sections of the present chapter, however, were not included in the bill.

The subject does not appear to have been again brought forward until September 21st, when the House appointed Col. Brown, Col. Coffin, and Mr. Whitney of Sherborn, a committee "to consider what is proper to be done respecting the small bills of credit emitted when the Court sat at Watertown." This committee reported to the House, Sept. 26, 1778; whereupon Messrs. Gorham, Bliss and Pope were appointed a committee to bring in a bill "for calling in all such bills, excepting those that were emitted on the last plate."

On the fifth of October, the bill of this chapter was read a first time, in the House, and on the 7th,* having been read three times, it was there passed to be engrossed, and sent up for concurrence. In the Council it was passed, in concurrence, to be engrossed, on the 9th, and passed to be enacted, on the 13th, by both branches.

Chap. 20. On the 19th of April, 1749, the General Court appointed a committee, consisting of Timothy Dwight, John Choate and Oliver Partridge, to lay out two townships "near Hoosuck." By the following October the committee had attended to this duty, and had caused a plan of one of the townships so laid out, to be prepared by Nathaniel Dwight, surveyor. On this plan were designated, as monuments marking the corner bounds of the township, the trees mentioned in this chapter as bearing the initials of the surveyor and of the several members of the committee. The township thus projected was, in form, a parallelogram, 2300 poles in length and 1600 poles in width, — allowing "one rod in twenty, for stray chain," — and contained, therefore, almost precisely the area required by the order of the General Court, which was "of the contents of six miles square."

This territory was sold by the province, in 1762, to Nathan Jones, John Murray and others, and a settlement was begun there in 1765. In a petition presented to the General Court, in 1772, by John Murray, in behalf of himself and his associates, it is alleged that the western line of the township had never been run, notwithstanding the doings of the committee in 1749. Upon this petition Messrs. Bigelow of Worcester, Ingersoll and Day were appointed "to repair to the township," etc., "and run the westerly line of said township, and any other lines that may be thought doubtful, and make report of their doings at the next sitting of the General Court; provided the petitioners desire the same, and shall engage to pay the expense thereof in case it shall appear that said township is of the full contents of six miles square, exclusive of former grants: provided, also, that if it shall appear, upon running the lines, that there is more than the contents of six miles square, the overplus shall be returned to the province." No further proceedings upon this petition have been discovered.

In June, 1774, Eliel Todd and others, of "East Hoosuck," applied to the General Court for an abatement, and stay of execution for the levy, of certain province taxes laid on that plantation, and for an act of incorporation into a town. Their petition was referred to Messrs. Ingersoll, Williams of Stockbridge, and Dwight, who, according to the House Journal, made a report, on the 15th of June, favorable to the petitioners, and Col. Jones was thereupon appointed to bring in a resolve, which was adopted, and is printed in the note to the act of 1774, chapter 8, ante. Notwithstanding the House Journal shows that this committee reported verbally, their written report remains in the archives † by which it further appears that they recommended that the petitioners have leave to bring in a bill for the incorporation prayed for. The Journal, moreover, shows that such a bill was read, a first time, on the 13th of June, — two days before the record of the verbal report above mentioned, — and that, on the 14th, this bill had been read, in the House, three times, and passed to be engrossed. This bill remains in the archives, and bears a memorandum showing that, on the 17th, it was read, twice, in the Council, and there passed, in concurrence, to be engrossed, "as taken into a new draught," and was thereupon sent down for concurrence. The sudden dissolution of the Assembly, on that day, probably prevented the enactment of the bill.

This bill is unprecedented in some of its features, and it sets forth so many facts of interest relative to the purchase and settlement of the township, that it has been deemed worthy to be printed here. It is as follows: —

On the fifth of October, 1778, the following petition was read, in the House, and committed to Messrs. Bacon of Barnstable, Stafford and Parks, with orders to bring in a bill for incorporation, as prayed for: —

A bill was reported, accordingly, the same day, and, on the 12th and 13th, it had its several readings, and was passed to be engrossed and sent up for concurrence. On the 14th, it was passed to be enacted, in the House, and on the 15th, in the Council.

On the second clause of the petition the committee made the following supplementary report; but no action thereon by the Legislature has been discovered: —

"the Committe on the Petition of a number of the Inhabitants of the Plantation of East Hoosuck Beg leave further to Report that a Committe be appointed to Repair to Said plantation in the Recess of this Court at the Expence of the Inhabitanst thereof and to make particular Enquirey Into the Subject matter of Said petition and to Report to this Court=whether the three Sixty third parts of Said plantation (for Quantity and Quallity) are Laid out and appropriated to publick uses agreable to the true Design and meaning of the Great & Genl Court that Granted and Sold the Same to the origanal of Said plantation proprietors and if any failure thereof has been made on the part of Said proprietors—then to Report to this Court at their next Session what they may think proper for this Court further to Do thereon." — Ibid.

Chap. 21. October 10, 1778, Mr. Freeman of Falmouth, and Messrs. Crane and Starkweather were appointed, by the House, a committee "to consider the fee-table, and report what is proper to be done," and the same day the bill of this chapter was read a first time. On the 12th, it was "read a second time and committed to Mr. Lowell." On the 13th, it was again read, in the House, passed to be engrossed, and sent up for concurrence. On the 15th, the House sent a message to the Council, proposing, as an amendment to the first section of the bill, the insertion, after the title of the act of William and Mary, of the words, "instead of the fees and allowances set down in said act;" and as another amendment to the bill as originally drawn, the insertion of the second section of this chapter. The Council agreed to these amendments, and the bill, having already been passed, by the Board, in concurrence, to be engrossed, was passed to be enacted, by both branches.

The fees of officers and others in maritime cases not having been established either by this act or the previous acts therein referred to were regulated by the following resolve,* which was reported on the fifth of February, 1779, by Messrs. Freeman of Falmouth, Phillips of Boston, and Brooks, who had been appointed a committee for that purpose, on the thirtieth day of January: —

Chap. 22. A committee, consisting of Messrs. Clap, Sumner and Coffin, was appointed, Dec. 2, 1777, to revise the act to which the present chapter is in addition, "and report what addition or amendment is necessary to be made thereto." Thirteen days later, a resolve which had passed the Council was sent down for concurrence, "authorizing and directing the selectmen of the several towns to appoint some person to prosecute such persons as have been or may hereafter be guilty of making great strip and waste in the real estates of absentees." This resolve was concurred in by the House, "as taken into a new draught," and thereupon sent up for concurrence. The Council concurred, and the resolve, which is given in full in the note to 1776–77, chapter 38, ante, was passed the same day.

The subject of preventing waste on the estates of absentees seems not again to have engaged the attention of the Legislature, until April 29, 1778, when a bill with substantially the title of this chapter, was brought down for concurrence, from the Council, where it had passed to be engrossed. This bill was "read and the consideration thereof referred to the next session."

Early in the first session of the next Assembly (May 29th), Messrs. Sumner, Pope and Wood, of the House, were appointed a committee, "to revise the law respecting the estates of absentees, and report if they think any alteration necessary," but nothing seems to have been done by this committee. Another committee, "to revise the law for appointing agents to absentees' estates, and report what provision is further necessary to be made," was appointed, September 19th, by the House. This committee, originally consisting of Messrs. Freeman, Sumner and Angier, was enlarged, on the 26th, by the addition of Messrs. Gray and Crane, and, on the 28th, the bill of this chapter was read a first time, in the House. On the 2d of October, the bill was read again, in the House, and "ordered to lie." On the 12th, a committee was appointed "to consider what public business was necessary to be acted upon the present session," who reported that this bill be taken up; and, accordingly, the afternoon of that day was assigned for its consideration, when the bill was read and committed to Messrs. Lowell, Gray and Bliss. On the 15th, the House having assigned the afternoon for the third reading of this bill, it was read and passed to be engrossed, and sent up for concurrence, and the engrossment was concurred in by the Council. On the next day it was passed to be enacted by both branches.

On the 8th of February, 1779, the agent on the estate of Doctor William Paine, late of Worcester, an absentee, was directed by resolve * to put Levi Shephard in possession of one-half of a shop in Worcester, the property of said Paine; and on the 10th, Edward Jones, agent for the estate of Ezekiel Lewis, late of Boston, an absentee, was empowered by resolve † to sell two-fifths of a house in Long Lane (Federal Street) in that town, which was the estate of which Jonathan Clarke, the grandfather of said Ezekiel, died seized — the agent giving security for the proper disposal of the proceeds of the sale.

Archives, vol.* 221, p 146.

The following resolves, subsequently passed by the Legislature, extending the provisions of this act to cases not contemplated by the act itself and establishing rules for leasing the estates of absentees, and for securing payment of the rents and profits thereof into the public treasury, are inserted here as appropriate to this chapter: —

"State of Massachusetts Bay In Council Feby 16.' 1779

Chap. 23. The following is the record of the original sale of the territory known as Number Four, afterward Gageborough: —

"June 11, 1762. N[o]. 4. A Township lying East of New Framingham to begin at the Northeast corner of New Framingham, thence Southerly on the Line of said Township until it meets with the line of Ashuelot Equivalent so called; thence in the line of said Equivalent to the Northeast corner thereof; thence East twenty degrees South so far as to make the Contents of six miles Square, to Noah Nash for Fourteen hundred and thirty pounds, and have received of him twenty pounds and taken his Bond together with Oliver Partridge Thomas Morey, William Williams and Josiah Chauncy for Fourteen hundred and ten pounds." — Council Records, vol. XXIV., p. 423.

The legislative proceedings seconding the efforts of the proprietors to hasten the settlement of the township, referred to in the note to 1771–72, chapter 6, ante, are given hereunder in full: —

"To his Excellency Francis Bernard Esq[r] Captain General & Governour in chief in & over his Majesties Province of the Massechusetts Bay in New England and Vice-Admiral of the Same—

To the Honorable his Majesties Council & the Honorable House of Representatives of the S[d] Province in General Court Assembled at Boston on the last Wednesday of May 1765.— The Petition of Noah Nash of Hatfield in behalf of himself & Associates most humbly sheweth; that in the year 1762 he was purchasor of the Township No 4 then sold by the Government: and that he admitted sundry Associates with him who called Meetings & raised Taxes & have laid out near half the Township into Lots in Order to bring forward the Settlement, have also cut a Road thro' the Township & made Bridges and have done considerable labour on S[d] Lots, & have agree'd to give out Lands for the Encouragement of Building Mills & other Purposes to advance the Settlement of the Town. Yet so it is, May it Please y[r] Excellency & Honors that our Settlement is greatly delayed partly by Reason of our not being able to make any Grants of the Land or Enforce the Payment of the Taxes agree'd upon & partly by the Extream Scarcity of Money in the Country: tho' many Persons are disirous of setling in the Township, they cannot sell what they have so as to be able to Remove. And also the great Opening of Townships in New-Hampshire & New York has rendered the Settlement of our new Towns much more Difficult than was Expected by any. I therefore humbly beg in behalf of the Proprietors of S[d] Township that y[r] Exellency & Honors would Enable us legally to Raise & Enforce the Payment of Taxes on the Proprietors & also to grant Lands for the Encouragement of the Speedy Settlement of the Town. Part of the Purchase Money about 400 Dollars has been paid, beside the Money advanced upon the Sale. But by Reason of the very great Scarcity of Money the Proprietors cannot raise the Money yet due, so soon as they hear it is expected, even tho' they should sell their Paternal Inheritances. I therefore humbly request of yr Excellency & Honors in behalf of Sd Proprietors that a further Time may be allowed for the Payment of the purchase Money. And as in duty bound Shall ever pray. In the note to 1779–80, chapter 33, post, is printed, a petition of the inhabitants of the town of Gageborough, dated Jan. 9th, 1777, and signed, by Joseph Hascall, town clerk, praying that the plantation of New Providence may be joined to Gageborough and that the two communities may be incorporated, by the name of Cheshire, for two reasons, the second of which was, "Because the present name, Gageborough, may serve to perpetuate the memory of the detestable General Gage.*" This town, also, was one of the towns named in the title of a bill introduced in the House, Feb. 5, 1778, for changing the names of sundry towns, for patriotic reasons; but that bill having gone over to the next year, after the passage of the present chapter, the name of Gageborough was stricken out.

The inhabitants signified their preference for the name of "Winsor," as follows: —

"At a Town meeting in Gageborough worned & held at Jonothan Trusdils on ye 10 Day of September 1778 At three of Clock after noon Voted that the Town of Gageborough Shall be Called Winsor —

A Trew Coppy Attest JOHN BROWN Town Clerk."—

Mass. Files: House, no. 294.

On the same day they prepared a petition in conjunction with the proprietors of the adjoining township Number Five (most of which is embraced in the present town of Cummington) who had passed the following vote a week before: —

"At a meeting of the Proprictors of ye Township No 5 the 3d Day of Septr 1778 sd Proprietors Voted to Set of the west Part of sd Township to Gageborough Begining at the South East Corner of Lot No 20 Joyning upon Partridgfield Corner and Runing a Strait Line to the north East Corner of Lot No 13 in the Second Devision in sd Township with one third Part of the Publick Lands in sd Township

The joint petition is as follows: —

"To the honle the great and Genl Court of the State of the Massachusetts Bay —

The Petition &c of the Town of Gageborough and of Plantation No 5 in the County of Berkshire humbly Sheweth —

That by Reason of a large Mountain about one third Part of said Plantation is disconnected with the other in such a Manner yt it is extreemly difficult passing and repasing from the one Part to the other, add to this yt the one third Part hereby Petitioning lies in the County of Berkshire and the other two thirds in the County of Hampshire by all which Means' tis very difficult doing the necessary Business of the Plantation, and would be more so in Case the whole was incorporated into a Town —

Your Petitioners beg leave further to observe that said Plantation No 5 never having been incorporated have not hitherto paid any publick Taxes for the support of the War &c

These are therefore humbly to request your honrs to annex too and incorporate said one third Part of said Plantation No 5 Viz that Part lying in the County of Berkshire with the town of Gageborough by which Means only your Petitioners Inhabitants of said one third Part of Plantation No 5 can be accomedated and enjoy Town Privileges A Plan of the Premises will be herewith exhibited — And as in duly bound your Petitioners will ever Pray —

Chap. 24. The act of 1776-77, chapter 45, which, by chapter 10 of the present year was continued in force until June 20, 1779, provided only for the arrest and restraint of persons whose liberty the Council should deem dangerous to the safety of the state. The act of 1776-77, chapter 48, provided for banishing disaffected persons, after trial and conviction, upon penalty of death in case of their return. This act expired Jan. 1, 1778, and between the latter date and the enactment of chapter 18 of the year 1777-78, which was Feb. 3, 1778, there was no law in force for deporting this class of offenders. The last-named act, however, — establishing an oath of allegiance, which, while all persons to whom it was regularly tendered were obliged to take it upon pain of being sent out of the state as public enemies, was denied to the class above mentioned, — put the persons so excluded in the category of persons refusing, and made their voluntary return after banishment a capital crime. Even this act did not expressly forbid the return of those who were intended to be excluded from the benefit of citizenship by reason of their adherence to the king, but left them the chance of escaping detection through the forbearance of their neighbors, or of persons in authority, and only subjected those who did not so escape, to the risk of being expelled, under the extreme penalty provided for a return after such expulsion.

The object of the present chapter was to lessen the chances for evading arrest and banishment, of certain individuals and a particular class, who, from their prominence as citizens under the ministerial administration of the province, or from their zeal for the king, were deemed peculiarly obnoxious, and whom it was thought necessary to deprive of all opportunity to foment dissensions, by their presence in the state.

Shortly after the expiration of the act of 1776-77, chapter 48, and before the enactment of chapter 18 of 1777-78, representations were made to the Assembly that some of the refugees who left the province at the evacuation of Boston, were returning; and the following resolve* was brought in to the House, by Messrs. Davis, Hancock and Pickering, who, on the same day, had been appointed a committee for that purpose: —

"State of Massachusetts Bay In the House of Representatives Jan^{y} 14th 1778

On the 15th, the Council appointed Moses Gill and Daniel Hopkins a committee to take the foregoing resolution under consideration, and report. The committee accordingly reported the following draught of a letter, which was read and accepted on the 20th: —

"State Massachusetts Bay Council Chamber Jan^{y} 19 1778

Sir it having been represented to the General Assembly of this State that many persons inimical to the American States who went off to the Enemy at the time of the Evacuation of Boston, as well as at Other times are attempting to return into this State it is the earnest request of the Council that you wou^{d} be pleased to take order in such manner as you shall Judge proper effectually to prevent all such persons as are above Discribed from returning into this state, from the Island of Rode Island or any Other place in the possession of the Enemie — who shall not produce an Authenticated Certificate of their having the leave and Consent of the General Assembly of this State for that purpose

The Assembly at whose special Instance this Letter is written have this precaution much at Heart, as it is Apprehended that great Evil may arise especally at this Critical Junture from such a practice In the Name and behalf of the Council

The Council also issued the following order, which was ordered to be published in the Boston papers and was printed in the "Boston Gazette" of the 2d of February: —

"State of M B Council Chamber Jan 29 1778

It is therefore resolved & orderd that all Persons before describd or any of them be & they are hereby forbidden to enter into any Part of this State; without special Leave obtaind therefor from the General Assembly upon pain of what shall fall thereon. and the good People of this State are hereby cautiond against receiving or entertaining any such

On the 24th of September, a joint committee, consisting of Messrs. Hancock, Pope, Cross, Goodman and Dunsmore, of the House, and Thomas Cushing, Benjamin Austin, Daniel Hopkins and Eleazer Brooks, of the Council, was appointed "to consider what further provision is necessary to be made to prevent the return to this state of all persons who have left the same and gone over to our enemies, and report." The House enjoined the members of this committee from their body to sit immediately and sent to the Council a message on the 2d, and another on the 5th, of October, requesting them to issue the same injunction to the members of the committee appointed from the Council. On the 12th, the House appointed a committee, consisting of Messrs. Freeman, Hancock, Goodman, Aspinwall and Washburn, "to consider what is proper to be done to prevent the Tories who have joined the enemy, from returning to the state, and also to consider what is proper to be done respecting Tories within the same." On the 13th, the bill of the present chapter was read twice, and on the 15th, it was read a third time, and passed to be engrossed by a majority of 66 out of 69, and was sent up to the Council, for concurrence, by a committee of thirteen of the leading members,with Gen. Hancock at their head. The Council, on the same day, gave the bill two readings and passed it to be engrossed, in concurrence, with the following proposed amendment after the first section: —

"Provided, nevertheless, that if either of the person or persons above named or referred to, shall upon his or their being found in this state, be indicted for treason against the same, or any other capital crime, he or they shall be tried according to law, and suffer the punishment by law annexed to his or their crime, anything in this act to the contrary notwithstanding."

The bill with this amendment was sent down to the House, for concurrence, when it was read and unanimously rejected, and the House voted to adhere to its own vote.

On the 16th, the Council concurred in the bill without the amendment, whereupon the following proceedings took place: —

"Mr Gray came up with a Message from the Honble House to inform the Board that they propose an Amendment in the Bill to prevent the return to this State of certain Persons therein named and Others who have left this State &c. Viz.t to insert in said Bill, Nehemiah Webb of Sandwich in the County of Barnstable, Mariner; Thomas Danforth of Charlestown in the County of Middlesex; Nathanael Mills, John Hicks, John Howe and John Fleming of Boston, Printers.

Benjamin Austin Esq.r went down with a Message to the Honble House to inform them that the Board agreed to the proposed Amendment referred to in the foregoing Message." — Council Records, vol. XXXIX., p. 13.

The bill was then passed to be enacted, by both branches, and was signed by fifteen of the Council.

Before the bill was passed to be engrossed, sundry alterations were made in the names and additions of the persons proscribed. Originally Mather Byles and Henry "Canner," were each described as "Episcopalian, D. D.," and John Troutbeck and William Walter, as "Episcopalian minister." The following persons were designated barristers-at-law; viz., Sampson Salter Blowers, Samuel Fitch, Benjamin Gridley, Samuel Quincy, Samuel Sewell and Joshua Upham. William Coffin was described as apothecary; Sylvester Gardiner, as surgeon; Nathaniel Perkins, as physician; John Gore, as painter; Adino Paddock, as coach-maker; John Sargent, as trader; Archibald Cunningham, as shopkeeper "of groceries, &c.;" John Knutton, as starch-maker and tallow-chandler; Richard Clark, John Erving, jun., George Erving, Joseph Green, Thomas Hutchinson, jun., Elisha Hutchinson, Henry Lloyd, John Powell, Jonathan Simpson, Jonathan Snelling, Gregory Townsend, Edward Lyde and Joseph Scott, were called merchants — the two last, "hardware merchants." Richard Lechmere, distiller, and Joshua Loring, were described as mandamus councillors; Benjamin Hallowell, as "commissioner;" and Henry Hulton and Charles Paxton as "commissioners of customs;" Robert Hallowell, as "comptroller;" and Nathaniel Coffin, as "cashier deputy;" William Martin, as "captain of artillery;" and Joseph Goldthwait, as "deputy barrack-master;" Foster Hutchinson, as "late judge of probate for Suffolk;" and Nathaniel Hatch, as "clerk of the Superior Court;" Arodi Thayer was called "clerk to Paxton;" and the following were called clerks; viz, Samuel Hodges, "to a merchant;" Henry Leddle, "to a shopkeeper;" Daniel Silsby "to a store;" Henry Smith, "to Henry Lloyd." The following names were cancelled in the bill; viz., John Martin, William Wentworth, Arthur Savage,—"deputy surveyor and searcher at Plymouth;" Joshua Smith, Elisha Jones of Weston, "Esquire," and Sir William Pepperrell "of York, in the county of York, Baronet." The name of Arthur Savage, Esq., was subsequently interlined, together with those of Sir William Pepperrell, Joshua Smith, Samuel Porter, Josiah Pomroy and Thomas Cutler, and those inserted by the amendment proposed by the House.

The following proceedings relative to exempting certain persons from the operation of this act seem proper to be inserted here: —

"To the honorable the Council of the State of the Massachusetts Bay.

Francis Johonnot most humbly sheweth

That by the Death of his Father Mr. Francis Johonnott distiller of this Town in March 1775 he found himself necessitated to remain in Boston during the seige of this Town, in Order to preserve the real Estate of his said Father from Waste & Destruction.

That during the whole Time of the Seige he 'a no Instance shew himself an Espouser of the British Interest, was not an Associator, Addressor, or in the least Degree an Assistant to the Designs of the Enemies of this his native Country. Unless his vending Liquors indiscriminately to the Soldiers as well as to the Inhabitants of the Town, & which it was not in his power to have refused, can put him in that Predicament.

That when the Seige was raised, he was unfortunately prevailed upon by the Advice of Persons who he had been used to looking up to for Advice, being then under Age, to quit the Town & remove With the British Army. This step he took purely from Motives of Timidity & not with the most distant View of ever lending a Hand to subjugate or Distress his Country. When his Youth & Inexperience are considered, he hopes this step will not be construed as an Act of deep or unpardonable Criminalty.

That soon after his Arrival at Halifax he sailed for England where he was soon taken sick & confined for seven Months, & then took a Passage to Russia; as the only Remedy left for his Recovery was supposed to be a Sea Air. That he returned from Russia in October 1777 & continued in London during the last Winter, the Reason of which was to be assistant to, & if possible to Effect the Escape of his brother Capt. Henry Johnson then a Prisoner in England. That upon hearing of his Escape, he took the earliest Opportunity of getting over to France & from thence to America, with a View of being restored to his Country, & to be happy in participating in her Distresses & to lend all his little aid to her Protectors.

That during his Absence he has never failed to enquire out & as far as in his Power lay to relieve his American Brethren; ample Vouchers of which he can produce whenever called upon—

All these Facts he stands ready to verefy & prove whenever he may be admitted so to do; He therefore most earnestly prays your Honors to take his Circumstances into your wise Consideration, & while you pity an unfortunate young Man so long exil'd from his Country, Relations & Friends by Inexperience & unsound Advice, You will admit him once more to the Protection of this Country, by permitting him to take the Oath of Allegiance, or give him such a Hearing as may clear up his Character & give him the Privileges of An American Citizen, or take such other Order on the Premisses as to your Wisdom & Goodness shall seem most proper —

And your Petitioner as in Duty bound shall ever pray FRANCIS JOHONNOT

The following petition was signed by John Avery and 157 others: —

"To the honorable the Council & the honorable the House of Representatives in General Court assembled — at Boston January 1779 —

We the Subscribers, Inhabitants of the Town of Boston most respectfully beg leave to recommend to your Honors, as constituting the supreme Legislature of the State, the peculiar Case of our unfortunate Townsman Francis Johonnot, who has, for several Weeks been in close Custody, upon the Charge of having returned to his native Country without first obtaining Permission for so doing.

We humbly conceive the Circumstances of this ill fated young Man so materially differ from the Conduct of those Tories against whom the Vengeance of the State is justly directed, that he ought not to be considered as one of the infamous Number. We therefore recommend him to the honorable Court as a Person who we wish to have restored to our Country & admitted to the Privileges of a Citizen: And earnestly sollicit your Honors to take such Order in his behalf as shall effectually operate in his Favour, & deliver him from his present distressed Situation. And as in Duty bound shall ever pray."—Ibid., p. 314.

"We recommend to your Consideration the Case of Mr Francis Johonnott, who is now Confined in Goal in Boston as a person included in the Act intitled 'An Act to prevent the return to this State of certain Persons therein named and others who have left this State or either of the United States and joined the Enemies thereof.' The Peculiar Circumstances of this Person are fully represented in two Petitions he preferred to the Council— It appeared to the Council that his Conduct during his Absence & since he fled from Great Britain had been such as that in Case he should be sent out of this State as by the Act beforementioned is directed, he would be liable to be Apprehended as a Traitor to the King of Great Britain and to suffer the Punishment Persons of such a Character are by the Laws of Great Britain Exposed to, we therefore thought that his being Sent off under such Circumstances would be deemed, by every Candid Person, as a Species of Cruelty unworthy of Americans & bring such a stain upon the Character of this Government as could not easily be wiped off, we therefore directed the Board of War to Pospone the Sending him off Untill he could have an opportunity to lay the State of his Case before the General Assembly, so that if it was thought reasonable & Proper he might be restored to the Rights Priviledges & immunities of an Inhabitant of this State." — Extract from message of the Council to the House, Jan. 6, 1779: ibid., vol. 158, p. 130.

The Petition of Elizabeth Whittington in Behalf of her Husband William Whitington now confined in Goal Humbly Shews. —

That at the time the Inhabitants were obliged to leave the Town of Boston, and go into the Country by the Town's being blockaded, her said husband applyed for a Pass for himself and Family to go into the Country, with their Effects, and obtained one from General Gage; that he procured Boats to transport his Effects, but could not pass the Admiral without a Permit from him, who would grant one only for himself & Family, taking Nothing with them but Bedding & necessary wearing Apparel; That having a large Stock of Liquors by him, together with other valuable Effects, he did not incline to leave them behind but chose to Tarry in Town to secure his Interest, sending his Wife & Children into the Country, where they remained untill the Town was evacuated by the British Troops; that after the Battle at Bunker-Hill he was anxious to go out of Town, and applyed for a pass and was denyed one, which obliged him to remain in the Town untill the Troops went away, and he with many others not less attached to the Cause of America than himself through Timidity went off with them, to New York; that your Petitioner about twelve months Ago went from here by Permission to her said husband, in order to persuade him to return, when she arrived at New York, they consulted which would be the most likely way to return; and hearing that it was generally supposed by the British Troops that they would not be able to winter in Philadelphia, they concluded to take Passage to that place, thinking if Philadelphia was evacuated, they might chance to be left there, and by that means they would have an Opportunity to return; which turned out to his expectation; (they would observe that while he was in Philadelphia he had little or Nothing to do with the Troops, that contrary to his Will they quartered about Sixty Soldiers upon him) having taken the Oath of Allegiance to the united States of America when our People entered the City, he was permitted to reside there with his Family unmolested, untill the latter End of August last, at which time he with his Family and Effects set off for this place, and arrived here in September then next following, and immediately upon his arrival was committed to Goal by order of the Committee of Correspondence of the Town of Boston: which Commitment your Petitioner apprehends was tottaly illegal, as he knows of no law of the State giving them Power to imprison without judgment of Law: and this was the less justifiable in them as your Petitioner was desirous and ready to prove himself innocent of the Charge of being inimical to his Country, and that he was not within the Spirit or Letter of the late Act for preventing certain persons, therein named and described, from returning into this State; he was however prevented from doing himself this Justice by the aforesaid Conduct of the Committee: he wishes to be considered as he really is, a good & faithful Subject of this State, a cordial Friend to the Liberties of America and a well wisher to the Cause in which she now is engaged: he therefore prays your Honors to take the Matter under Consideration and upon due enquiry into the Circumstances of his Case, order him to be set at Liberty, or take such other Order thereon for his relief as to your Honors shall seem wise & just — And as in Duty bound shall ever pray ELIZABETH WHITTINGTON." — Ibid., vol. 185, p. 312.

On the third of January, 1780, a joint committee, consisting of Messrs. ["Genl"] Warren and Paine, of the House, and Samuel Adams, of the Council, was appointed "to consider and report a draught of a letter to the general assembly of Rhode Island, requesting that they would not permit any person to reside within that state who has been excluded from this state by an act of the government thereof." On the fifth, the following draught, in the handwriting of Samuel Adams, was reported in accordance with this order, and accepted by both branches, who concurred in requesting the president of the Council to sign the letter: —

"State of Massachusetts Bay Jany 5th 1780

Sir The General Assembly of this State, conceiving that great Evil may arise to the United States, from permitting Persons inimical to our Common Cause, to reside within them; and having Reason to apprehend, that certain Persons of such Character, who by an Act of Government are excluded from this State, are meditating a Design to obtain a Residence within the State of Rhode Island, have thought it necessary to address you on the Subject, and request that you would be pleasd to communicate their Sentiments to your General Assembly.

It is, in the Opinion of this Assembly, highly criminal, for a Citizen to be an indifferent Spectator of the Miseries of his Country—much more so, to desert her while struggling for Liberty—and still more, to seek Refuge in the very Time of her Conflict, in the Arms of her cruel & inveterate Enemies. It cannot then be thought strange, that those who love and reverence their Country, feel an Indignation against the Men, who have held her Safety, her Liberty and her Honor at so cheap a Rate.

The Injury which this State unavoidably sustains, from the Acts of too many internal Enemies, hath been a sufficient Caution against receiving into their own Bosom, those, who have withdrawn their Persons and their Aid in the Time of Distress; and there is less Reason for others to expect Favor and Forgiveness, who, having basely betrayd a Diffidence in the Wisdom & Fortitude of their Country, and the righteous Cause she was contending for, have imagind themselves more secure under the Power of its Invaders, and fled to them for Protection.

It is indeed much to be regretted, that the greatest Vigilance is insufficient to detect the most virulent Enemies of the publick Liberty and bring them to condign Punishment. This Government, however, hath taken every Measure which Prudence dictated to effect so necessary a Purpose Notorious offenders have been proscribd by the Laws and forbidden to return from their voluntary and shameful Exile. Mutual Interest, and mutual Friendship most strongly remonstrate against such Persons being permitted to reside within any of the Sister States.—While we are embarkd in the same Cause,—while we are actuated by the same Principles & Views,—while we partake of the same publick Feeling, and are confederated for the same great Purpose of mutual Safety & Defence, Honor and Justice forbid us to entertain a Suspicion that the State of Rhode Island would afford Shelter & Protection to those who have forfeited the Rights of Citizens in the United States.

In the Name & behalf of the General Assembly I am &c

Chap. 25. Before the following resolve by the Continental Congress was passed, the Assembly of Massachusetts had already enacted chapter 18 of the acts of 1775-76, by which forging or altering bills of credit of the United Colonies, or either of them, or the uttering of such forged bills, subjected the offender to ignominious punishment, to incapacity to hold office, and to the payment of treble damages to the person defrauded: —

"Resolved, That it be recommended to the several legislatures of the United Colonies to pass laws for punishing, in such manner as they shall think fit, persons who shall counterfeit, or aid or abet in counterfeiting, the continental bills of credit, or who shall pass any such bill in payment knowing the same to be counterfeit." — Journals of Congress: June 24, 1776.

This resolve was forwarded to the Assembly, together with the resolve recommending the passage of laws for the punishment of treason (printed in the note to 1776-77, chapter 32. ante), in a letter from John Hancock, dated June 25; and on the fifth of July, was referred to a joint committee consisting of Messrs. Palmer, Sergeant of Haverhill, and Mayhew, of the House, and John Winthrop and Francis Dana, of the Council, whose report, if they made one, has not been found.

By chapter 44 of the acts of 1776-77, passed more than ten months after the above resolve of Congress, it was made felony in Massachusetts to forge public bills of credit, and uttering or altering such bills was made punishable by setting in the pillory, cutting off an ear and the end of the thumb of the right hand, whipping and imprisonment. Chapter 47, passed May 10, 1777, did not change these penalties, but avoided all conveyances by offenders, made after conviction, as against the claims of parties injured and the claims of such persons as were entitled to rewards for the detection of the counterfeiters, and also as against the lien for costs and penalties. The provision of 1776-77, chapter 44, against utterers of counterfeit bills did not appear in the printed act — the word "uttering," which appears both in the original bill and in the engrossment, being changed in the print to "altering." It would seem, therefore, that it was supposed that the only law which prescribed a penalty against uttering bills of credit was chapter 44 above referred to, the insufficiency of which, as printed, called for further legislation.

On the third of June, 1778, Mr. Lowell, Col. Freeman and Col. Pope, of the House, were appointed a committee "to revise the laws for preventing the counterfeiting and depreciating the bills of credit of the United Colonies, and report what is proper and necessary to be done thereon." No report of this committee has been discovered, but on the seventh of January, following, Judge Sullivan had leave "to bring in a bill for more effectually punishing persons guilty of passing counterfeit money." On the 11th, the bill of this chapter was read a first time, in the House; on the 15th, it was read a second time; and, on the 18th, it was passed to be engrossed and sent up for concurrence. In the Council the bill was passed, in concurrence, to be engrossed, on the 19th, with an amendment changing the amount of the fine in the second section, from five thousand pounds to thirty thousand. The House refused to concur in this amendment, on the 20th, and voted to adhere to their own vote, whereupon the Council receded, and concurred with the House, on the 21st, and, on the 22d, the bill was passed to be enacted.

Mass. Files: Bills, 1778-79.

The foregoing petition was read, in the House, Jan. 8, 1778, and referred to a committee consisting of Messrs. Perry, Whitney and Wales. The report of this committee was accepted on the 19th, and was probably a draught of the order of notice, which on that day was adopted by a resolve of both branches, and which the petitioners were required to serve upon the town clerk of Methuen, fifteen days before the second Wednesday of the next sitting of the General Court, that the inhabitants might then show cause why the prayer of the petition should not be granted. The General Court was subsequently prorogued to the first of April, but no action upon this petition has been discovered among the doings of that session, nor of the first session of the next Assembly. In the second session of 1778-79, the secretary was ordered by the House to lay this petition upon the table, together with the papers accompanying the same. The only papers on file with the bill, are the petition and order of notice aforesaid, and the following copy of a vote of the town: —

"At a Leagul Town meeting in Methuen on Thursday Febury 12th 1778 the fourth article in said meeting was to see what the Town would vote Respecting the Copey of a petition sent from the Great & Genaral Court of a number of the Inhabetent of said Town attending publick worship at the Red Mr Chapmans meeting House who have Ben Taxed for the support of the Red Mr Sargeant to shew Cause if any they have why the prayer of the petitioners should not be Granted the Question being put and the Town voted not to shew any Cause why the petition should be Granted

Methuen March 30th 1778 a True Copey pr

JONATHAN SWAN Clark of said Town." — Ibid.

The petition was read in the House, September 18th, and the petitioners were granted liberty "to bring in a bill for the purposes mentioned in their petition." On the 21st of January, 1779, this bill was read a first time, and a second and third time on the two succeeding days and was then passed to be engrossed and sent up for concurrence. It was passed, in concurrence, to be engrossed in the Council on the 23d, and, on the 25th, it was passed to be enacted by both branches.

Chap. 27. This act was passed to avoid the inconveniences arising from the existing law relative to the trial of persons charged with committing acts of treason without the limits of the state. Chapter 9 of the acts of this year, in the note to which some account is given of the trial, at Great Barrington and Springfield, of certain persons charged with treasonable conduct, was special, and limited to the particular cases, and to the term, therein mentioned; while the present chapter gave a general jurisdiction to the Superior Court in all such cases.

The bill of this chapter which was read a first time, on the 12th, and was passed to be enacted on the 25th of January, originally contained the following final clause, which was struck out before it had passed, in the House, to be engrossed; viz., "unless the supreme executive power of this state shall order such person to be tried in some county whereof he is not an inhabitant."

By chapter 38 of the acts of this year, one term of the Superior Court was ordered to be held, annually, at Great Barrington, in and for the county of Berkshire, thus establishing a forum for the trial of inhabitants of that county charged with the offences described in this act and the act to which it is in addition.

Chap. 28. On the 7th of January, 1779, the committee appointed to sign the bills of credit ordered to be emitted by chapter 19, were appointed a committee "to bring in a bill for repealing so much of the said act as they shall judge necessary, and for procuring another plate for the impression of said bills." No report of this committee has been discovered, but, on the 19th, the bill of the present chapter was read, a first time, in the House. It was read a second time on the 20th, and was passed, in the House, to be engrossed, on the 21st, and on the 25th, was passed to be enacted, by both branches.

On the 4th of February, Messrs. Sexton, Tyler and Cutts were appointed a committee "to consider what is proper to be done to enable the treasurer to exchange the small bills of credit, agreeable to a late act of court, and report," but no report of this committee has been discovered.
